EDITOR'S NOTE

I hope you like this book and that it will recall to you many pleasant episodes, many happy experiences, and many really great friendships. If it does, you may feel grateful to all those who have contributed biographical sketches of themselves, or written accounts of Class dinners and reunions, or taken pictures of classmates and their families. Possibly I am more conscious than any one else could be of the coöperation by so many which has made this volume possible.

I am especially grateful to Professor Phelps for his volunteered article, "Reminiscences of 1904 Men." He must have liked us!

I am also grateful to Miss Phillips of the Class Secretaries Bureau, without whom none of us class secretaries could function, to Miss Jones and Miss Bergmann of her staff, and to Miss McLaughlin of my own office.

We are proud to report in this volume the lives of many men in our outstanding and congenial Class who are leaders in their chosen profession or business. We are sad to have to record the deaths of other leaders and friends whose service to their generation has been prematurely ended.

THE CLASS COUNCIL MINUTES

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held Friday, January 23, 1931, at 5 P.M. at the Yale Club, New York City.

Present: Messrs. Barnes, Beardsley, Hamilton, Hart, Mendell, McCain, Neergaard, Parks, Stebbins, and Williams, being all members of the Class Council with the exception of Messrs. Brewster, Broeksmit, Ely, Reed, Thacher, and Wiggin.

Mr. Parks, President of the Council, presided.

The minutes of the preceding meeting, or rather of the meeting of the Class, held Tuesday, June 18, 1929, at New Haven were read and approved.

The Secretary presented statements of receipts and disbursements of the regular current fund and of the Class book fund, which, on motion duly made and seconded, were approved and a recommendation made that the two accounts be combined.

Considerable discussion followed as to the advisability of having Class dues, the proceeds to be used in the discretion of the Council to meet any financial emergencies that might arise for members of the Class, for children of members or of deceased members seeking an education, and for partial contribution to reunion expenses. On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that the Council recommend to the members present at the ensuing dinner the adoption of voluntary annual dues not to exceed $10 in amount, the proceeds to be used for the purposes enumerated above and for such other purposes as might be voted by the Council. This recommendation was later adopted by the Class at the dinner. It was the further suggestion of the Council that the bills of solicitation be sent out in October each year so as not to interfere with the solicitation by Lanse Reed for the Alumni Fund.

A letter from Mrs. Baldwin, widow of Seth Baldwin, dated January 20, 1931, was read expressing her appreciation for the help given Thayer Baldwin in completing his course at Taft School.

A letter from Irving Clark, dated May 13, 1930, dealing with the situation of Bobby Burns, was also read.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held Friday, January 22, 1932, at 6 P.M. at the Yale Club, New York City.

Present: Messrs. Barnes, Beardsley, Brewster, Hamilton, Hart, McCain, Neergaard, Parks, Reed, Stebbins, and Williams, being all members of the Council with the exception of Messrs. Broek-smit, Ely, Mendell, Thacher, and Wiggin.

Mr. Parks, President of the Council, presided.

The minutes of the preceding meeting, held Friday, January 23, 1931, were read and approved.

The Treasurer presented a financial statement which, on motion duly made and seconded, was approved.

A portion of a letter dated December 22, 1931, by Lanse Reed, addressed to the Secretary, was read, having to do with the Alumni Fund. As a result of the discussion, the Council agreed to coöperate with Lanse in any way that he might call upon them for solicitation in special cases.

Elt Parks reported having paid to George T. Adee $250 as 1904's subscription for 1931 to the Yale Graduate Placement Bureau. On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that Elt be reimbursed for this amount from the Class funds. On motion duly made and seconded, it was also voted that the appropriation for 1932 to the Yale Graduate Placement Bureau be $150, and the Treasurer was authorized to pay the same on or about November 1, 1932.

There being no further business to come before the meeting, adjournment followed.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held at the Yale Club, New York City, January 27, 1933, at 5 P.M. pursuant to notice.

Present: Thomas H. Beardsley, James H. Brewster, Harry T. Hamilton, William Dickinson Hart, Elton Parks, Lansing P. Reed.

The meeting was called to order and presided over by Mr. Parks, Chairman of the Council. By appointment, Mr. Hart acted as Secretary of the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Council held on January 22, 1932, were read and, on motion, duly approved.

Mr. Parks presented a financial statement of the Class funds, which was, upon motion, accepted and approved.

Mr. Parks presented to the meeting the advisability of utilizing the monies from the Class funds in cases of necessity to assist sons now in college of members of the Class. After due discussion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that the Chairman, Mr. Parks, and the Secretary of the Class, Mr. Stebbins, and either of them be and hereby is authorized in his discretion, to appropriate and expend such sums out of the Class funds as in his judgment may be necessary or appropriate to assist in college, sons of members of the Class of 1904.

The arrangements and programs for the Class Dinner to be held at the club this evening were then reported.

There being no further business, the meeting on motion adjourned.

WILLIAM DICKINSON HART

Secretary of the meeting.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held at the Yale Club, New York City, January 26, 1934, at 6:30 P.M., pursuant to notice.

Present: Elton Parks, Lansing P. Reed, James H. Brewster, Harry T. Hamilton, Clarence A. Barnes, Charles S. McCain, Arthur E. Neergaard, Frederick H. Wiggin, Thomas H. Beardsley.

The meeting was called to order and presided over by Mr. Parks, Chairman of the Council.

By appointment, Mr. Beardsley acted as Secretary of the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Council, held January 27, 1933, were read and, on motion, duly approved.

Mr. Parks presented a financial statement of the Class funds, which was, upon motion, accepted and approved.

Referring to the Class Reunion, to be held in the summer of 1934, Mr. Reed reported that the average contribution to the Alumni Fund for the past twenty years, of thirty year reunion classes was ten thousand ($10,000) dollars.

There being no further business, the meeting, on motion, adjourned.

THOMAS H. BEARDSLEY

Secretary of the meeting.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held Friday, March 8, 1935, at 6:30 P.M. at the Yale Club, New York City.

Present: Messrs. Beardsley, Brewster, Hamilton, Hart, Mendell, Neergaard, Parks, Stebbins, and Williams, being all members of the Council with the exception of Messrs. Barnes, Broeksmit, Ely, McCain, Reed, Thacher, and Wiggin.

Mr. Parks, President of the Council, presided.

The minutes of the preceding meeting, held January 26, 1934, were read and approved.

The Secretary presented a statement of receipts and disbursements for the period June 15, 1934, to March 8, 1935, which, on motion duly made and seconded, was approved.

Harry Hamilton read a letter from Charlie Esty suggesting that the Class funds be used for sending the Alumni Weekly to all non-subscribers in the Class. Following a discussion of this suggestion, the sentiment seemed to prevail that, while it was a very excellent suggestion, at the present time at least the fund could be more advantageously used for financing aid to any members of the Class, their widows, or children who may be in need.

There being no further business to come before the meeting, adjournment followed.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held at Room 1, 18th floor, the Yale Club, on February 14, 1936.

The meeting was called to order at 6:15 P.M., Elton Parks, Chairman of the Council, presiding. The following members of the Council were present: James H. Brewster, James Harvey Williams, Charles S. McCain, William D. Hart, Thomas H. Beardsley, John S. Broeksmit, Clarence W. Mendell, Arthur Edwin Neergaard, Lansing P. Reed, Harry T. Hamilton, Elton Parks, and, by unanimous invitation of the Council members present, Burnside Winslow.

The Chairman appointed H. T. Hamilton to act as Secretary of the meeting.

The minutes of the previous year's meeting were read and approved.

The Chairman read a letter in regard to the Mitchell Prize Award and reported that he was most favorably impressed with the results obtained.

A discussion of the best time for holding a Class Dinner then followed. Upon motion, unanimously carried, it was resolved that the first choice for next year's Class Dinner would be January 22, the fourth Friday in January, 1937, and the second choice would be January 15, the third Friday in January.

The Chairman then brought up for discussion the desirability of taking out subscriptions to the Yale Alumni Weekly for all the members of the Class. After due consideration, the motion was made and unanimously carried not to subscribe to this magazine at the present time.

The financial report of the Class Fund, which had been submitted by the Class Secretary, was read and approved. This report showed a balance on hand as at February 14, 1936, of $1033.13.

Upon motion, the meeting adjourned.

HARRY T. HAMILTON
Secretary of the meeting.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held in Room 1, 18th floor, Yale Club, New York City, on January 22, 1937, at 6 P.M., pursuant to notice.

The meeting was called to order at 6 P.M. In the absence of Elton Parks, Chairman of the Council, H. T. Hamilton was elected Chairman and presided. W. D. Hart was chosen to act as Secretary of the meeting.

The following members of the Council were present: Thomas H. Beardsley, James H. Brewster, Harry T. Hamilton, William D. Hart, Arthur Edwin Neergaard, Lansing P. Reed, James Harvey Williams, being more than five members and constituting the quorum.

The following were absent: Clarence A. Barnes, John S. Broeksmit, Edward C. Ely, Chauncey S. Goodrich, Charles S. McCain, Clarence W. Mendell, Elton Parks, Henry H. Stebbins, Jr., Thomas D. Thacher.

The minutes of the last meeting, held February 14, 1936, were read and approved.

The financial report of the Class Fund, submitted by the Class Secretary, showing balance on hand as of January 22, 1937, of $804.24, was read and approved.

A discussion of the best time of holding the 1938 Dinner was then had. It was deemed advisable to hold the meeting as early as possible in January, as it had been found that later in the month many of the Class were away on winter vacation. The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that the 1938 Class Dinner be held on the first Friday in January, or if that not be available, then on next available Friday.

In order to prevent the making of conflicting engagements, the Class Secretary was requested to send out a reminder notice of the dinner date not later than the middle of October.

The question of holding an informal reunion of the Class in New Haven on a football Saturday next fall was brought up. The arrangement could provide, if say ten or more could attend, that they meet in New Haven for dinner the Friday evening before the game, having Saturday morning available for sight-seeing or golf or other activity, then attending the game together with their families in the afternoon. The Class Secretary was authorized to take the matter up with Dean Mendell, and if the latter approved, to agree with him upon a date and arrange for such an informal reunion, the detail of the program to be left to his discretion.

J. H. Williams then suggested renewing the custom of having informal reunions of the Class at Commencement time in New Haven. It was suggested that the Class Secretary also take this matter under consideration for such action as may seem best.

The Secretary reported the death of the following members of the Class since the last Class Dinner:

Carl S. Flanders	March 17, 1936
Basil J. Scott	July 10, 1936
James T. Craffey	August 11, 1936
Will T. Barker	August 19, 1936

A letter from Malcolm Farmer, Chairman of the Yale University Athletic Association, was then presented, reporting that the Ledyard Mitchell Punting Prize was awarded for 1936 as follows:

First prize, David G. Colwell, '38
Second prize, G. W. Humphrey, '39

There being no further business, the meeting was duly adjourned.

WILLIAM DICKINSON HART

Secretary of the meeting.

Note: Letter from William Dickinson Hart, dated May 25, 1937, requests that the following addition be made to the above minutes:

“Action was taken to the effect that the traveling expenses of the Class Secretary to all class meetings and reunions were to be paid out of the Class Fund.”

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held at the Yale Club, New York City, on Friday, January 7, 1938, at 6 P.M., pursuant to notice.

The following members of the Council were present: Clarence A. Barnes, Thomas H. Beardsley, James H. Brewster, Jr., Harry T. Hamilton, William Dickinson Hart, Clarence W. Mendell, Arthur Edwin Neergaard, Elton Parks, Henry H. Stebbins, Jr., Frederick H. Wiggin, James Harvey Williams, being all members of the Council with the exception of John S. Broeksmit, Edward C. Ely, Charles S. McCain, and Thomas D. Thacher.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the minutes of the last preceding meeting of the Council, held on January 22, 1937, were omitted.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, William L. L. Peltz was elected to membership in the Council to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lansing P. Reed.

The Chairman, Mr. Parks, told of the plan conceived by certain members of the Class to present the new grandchild of Lansing Reed, Ruth Lawrence Gillespie, with a silver bowl from the Class. He also read the following letter which was to accompany the bowl and which was unanimously approved by the members present:

TO RUTH LAWRENCE GILLESPIE

During the next few years you will probably wonder what this silver bowl is and when you reach an age when you are able to read you will probably wonder also why it has your name on it and why it was given to you by members of the Class of 1904 at Yale.

Unfortunately, you will never experience the joy and privilege of knowing your grandfather, Lansing Reed. Nor perhaps will you ever appreciate fully the eagerness with which he was looking forward to the arrival in the world of your dear self—his first grandchild—but to us who were privileged to know him so intimately, as a member of our Class at Yale, he was a rare person. His outstanding qualities of devotion, loyalty, and conscientiousness and his rugged honesty and sincerity in all things endeared him not only to us but to all with whom he came in contact.

We will cherish his memory always and it is as a tribute to him and all that he represented our Class presents this bowl to you with our sincere affection and best wishes.

CLASS OF 1904—YALE

By ELTON PARKS, Chairman, Class Council

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR., Secretary

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that all future deficits on the Ledyard Mitchell Cup should be paid for out of the Class Fund, and the Secretary was requested to write Mac Farmer to that effect.

The Secretary presented a financial report for the period of January 22, 1937, to January 7, 1938, and, on motion duly made and seconded, the report was approved.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that the Class Dinner for 1939 and in succeeding years, until further action is taken, be held on the evening of the first Friday after the first Monday in January.

On motion duly made and seconded, the Chair was requested to appoint a dinner committee by November 1 preceding the date of the annual dinner, and the Secretary requested to send out a preliminary notice regarding the dinner on or about that same date.

The Chair appointed Messrs. Mendell, Wiggin, and Winslow as a committee to make arrangements for the informal reunion to be held in June of this year at Commencement time, following out the practice which was inaugurated in 1937.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted to request the new member of the Council, Mr. Peltz, to write an account of the dinner for the Alumni Weekly.

The Secretary reported the deaths of the following members of the Class since the report made at the dinner a year ago:

George H. O'Brien	November 29, 1936
Thomas M. Shields	March 18, 1937
E. Webster Evans	April 30, 1937
William N. Arterburn	August 9, 1937
William C. Hall	August 15, 1937
Benjamin F. Burns	December 1, 1937
Lansing P. Reed	December 2, 1937

There being no further business to come before the meeting, adjournment followed.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Special Meeting of Class Council.

Held at the Lawn Club, New Haven, Conn., on Monday, June 20, 1938, at 6:45 P.M.

Present: Messrs. Brewster, Broeksmit, Hamilton, Hart, Mendell, Peltz, Stebbins, and Williams.

Mr. Mendell acted as Presiding Officer in the absence of Elton Parks, Chairman.

On motion duly made and seconded the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that an account be opened with, and the funds of this organization deposited in, the Lincoln-Alliance Bank & Trust Company, subject to withdrawal upon the check, draft, note, or order of this organization, signed by the following officer:

Henry H. Stebbins, Jr., Treasurer and the said trust company is hereby authorized to pay such checks, drafts, notes, or orders and also to receive the same for the credit of or in payment from the payee or any other holder when so signed, without inquiry as to the circumstances of their issue or the disposition of their proceeds, whether drawn to the individual order of, or tendered in payment of the individual obligations of the officer above named, or other officers or employees of this organization, or otherwise.

Resolved, that endorsements on behalf of this organization upon any and all checks, drafts, notes, and other instruments of every kind deposited by or on behalf of this corporation with said trust company for credit or collection or otherwise, may be made by the said officer or his successor or by hand stamp impression in the name of this organization.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Regular Meeting of Class Council.

Held at the Yale Club, New York City, on Friday, January 6, 1939, at 5:45 P.M., pursuant to notice.

The following members of the Council were present: Clarence A. Barnes, Thomas H. Beardsley, James H. Brewster, Jr., Harry T. Hamilton, William Dickinson Hart, Arthur Edwin Neergaard, Elton Parks, William L. L. Peltz, Henry H. Stebbins, Jr., Thomas D. Thacher, James Harvey Williams, being all members of the Council with the exception of John S. Broeksmit, Edward C. Ely, and Charles S. McCain.

Minutes of the two preceding meetings of the Council held on January 7, 1938, and June 20, 1938, were read and approved.

The Secretary presented a financial report for the period January 7, 1938, to January 6, 1939, which, on motion duly made and seconded, was approved.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that the $10 limit on the annual voluntary dues to the Class be repealed.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that the Chairman, Elton Parks, appoint a committee for our Thirty-fifth Reunion in June.

Mr. Parks reported that he had recently received an anonymous contribution of shares of stock in the Chrysler Corporation having a market value somewhat in excess of $4,000 and that such figure had been realized by the sale of the stock. After considerable discussion it was voted that we set a mark of three times this amount, namely, $12,000 to be raised to meet reunion expenses and our contribution to the Alumni Fund.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that the kind and style of Class record to be published at the time of our reunion be left to the Class Secretary.

On motion duly made and seconded, it was voted that Mr. Peltz be asked to serve as Historian for the dinner.

The Secretary reported the deaths of the following members of the Class since the report made at the dinner a year ago:

James F. Sawin	February 1, 1938
Rev. Francis D. McShane	February 9, 1938
Carl M. Chapin	February 22, 1938
Hugh J. Murphy	July 5, 1938
Henry K. Love	October 10, 1938
Seth H. Moseley	December 5, 1938

There being no further business to come before the meeting, adjournment followed.

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR.

Secretary.

Minutes of Special Meeting of Class Council.

Held in the course of dinner on Monday evening, June 19, 1939, at 149 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn., at which Thomas D. Thacher was toastmaster.

Elton Parks, Chairman of the Class Council, called a business session for the election of the Council. After reading the names of the present members, motion was made, seconded, and carried that the Secretary be instructed to cast one ballot for the reëlection of all members, as follows:

Clarence A. Barnes
Thomas H. Beardsley
James H. Brewster, Jr.
John S. Broeksmit
Edward C. Ely
Harry T. Hamilton
William D. Hart
Clarence W. Mendell

Charles S. McCain
Dr. Arthur Edwin Neergaard
Elton Parks
William L. L. Peltz
Henry H. Stebbins, Jr.,
Thomas D. Thacher
Frederick H. Wiggin
James Harvey Williams

There being no further business to come before the meeting, adjournment followed.

THE ALUMNI FUND

BY ELTON PARKS

Because I have held the office of Class Agent only two years, my report will be necessarily brief, but the figures which I have to report are pleasant to record because I feel they are a distinct credit to the Class when one considers the conditions which have prevailed these past several years.

In my first year as Class Agent (1937-38), when the living members of our Class numbered 214 graduates and 32 non-graduates, 35 per cent of the former and 6 per cent of the latter—or an average of 32 per cent of the whole Class—contributed $2,902, plus an anonymous gift of $10,000, which it is my understanding was given in memory of Lansing Reed. Last year (1938-39), which was my second year in office, was the year of our Thirty-fifth Reunion, and therefore I made no direct appeal to the Class as Class Agent, but, following our usual procedure in reunion years, we solicited the Class as a whole for contributions to our Reunion Fund, with the understanding that this fund would be applied first to the cost of our reunion and any Class record which might be published—the balance of the fund to constitute our Reunion Gift to the Alumni Fund. Thanks to an anonymous gift from one member of our Class amounting to approximately $4,100, we succeeded in raising a Reunion Fund of $14,890.01, which enabled us to make a Reunion Gift to the Alumni Fund of $8,210.01 after paying the cost of our Reunion and setting aside an amount which it was estimated would be the cost of our Class Record. It was particularly gratifying last year to receive thirteen contributions in memory of the following deceased members of our Class:

Seth W. Baldwin, given by his widow, Mrs. Seth W. Baldwin

David Boies, given by his widow, Mrs. David Boies

Carl M. Chapin, given by his widow, Mrs. Carl M. Chapin

Maurice S. Damon, given by his widow, Mrs. Maurice S. Damon

Robert D. Eggleston, given by his widow, Mrs. Robert D. Eggleston

Mark G. Feder, given by his widow, Mrs. Mark G. Feder

Harold I. Gardner, given by his widow, Mrs. Harold I. Gardner

William C. Hall, given by his widow, Mrs. William C. Hall

Julian B. Huff, given by his sister, Mrs. Murray A. Cobb

John C. Kittle, given by his widow, Mrs. John C. Kittle

Paul S. Ney, given by his two daughters, Mrs. Thomas G. Bennett and Mrs. Robert W. Boas, and by his son, Paul Ney

George E. Nichols, given by his widow, Mrs. George E. Nichols

Edward C. Stone, given by his sister, Miss Jane W. Stone

Looking back over the record of gifts of other classes to the Alumni Fund on the occasion of their Thirty-fifth Reunions, I found with some satisfaction that the amount contributed by our Class last year was the largest amount given by any class since 1927, with the exception of the Class of '97—the amount of their Thirty-fifth Reunion gift to the Fund in June, 1932, amounting to $10,000.

It was of further interest, in looking over the records of previous years, to find that in the last ten years—that is 1930–1939 (both inclusive)—our Class has contributed to the Alumni Fund a total of $64,770.49 and that our total contributions to the Alumni Fund since our graduation have amounted to $164,808.23.

On Friday last, January 19, I had the pleasure of attending a dinner of Class Agents held in the Sterling Law Building in New Haven to celebrate the Fiftieth Anniversary of the establishment of the Yale Alumni Fund Association, which some of you may not know was founded at the suggestion of Thomas Thacher of the Class of '71, father of our own Tom Thacher. It was a most interesting dinner, presided over by the present Chairman of the Fund, Edward J. Dimock, of the Class of 1911 and addressed over a nation-wide hook-up by President Seymour; ex-President Angell; Senator Robert A. Taft, '10; John W. Hanes, '15; and Clare Mendell. Among other things, it was reported at the dinner that the record for the largest number of contributors to the Alumni Fund in any one class in any year was held by the Class of 1924—72 per cent of the members of that Class having contributed to the Fund last year. Our own best record within the past ten years was made last year, when we had 242 members of the Class living—212 graduates and 30 non-graduates—and 52 per cent of the former and 3 per cent of the latter, or an average of 46 per cent of the Class as a whole made contributions to our Reunion Fund.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the coöperation and support which, as Class Agent, I have received from the Class and I hope I may be forgiven if I express the hope that in some not too distant year we will exceed the record of the Class of 1924.

REMINISCENCES OF 1904 MEN

BY PROFESSOR WILLIAM LYON PHELPS, 1887

Dear Henry:

Four years after you were graduated I made a journey to the Rochester alumni and enjoyed one of the greatest round-ups of Yale men I ever saw. Senator Jim Wadsworth of New York made a fine address, and Durand, the author of the immortal "Bright College Years," not only spoke impressively, but the SURPRISE PART of the evening was the moment (forever in my memory) when I was presented with a beautiful silver cup by the Rochester alumni, with words engraved thereon written by Durand. Rochester has always been close to Yale. The Class of 1876, of which my brother was a member, had five members from Rochester; and if I recall it accurately, their five sons were later in one class.

It is painful for me that I missed the Class of 1904 in your Senior year. In June, 1903, my wife and I sailed for Europe and did not return for fifteen months. It was my first sabbatical year; and, while I profited by it enormously, I hated to be away from you. A kind friend informed me that he thought sabbatical years were a grand thing for Yale; the professor goes away on half salary and with the other half the University gets a better man to take his place.

However, your Class had made such a deep impression on my mind before my departure, that I recall many persons and incidents. Burnie Winslow was captain of the nine in his Junior year and was the most efficient catcher of foul flies in the history of baseball. He and I are regular and faithful attendants at every ball game now played in New Haven; and Mrs. Winslow is as accurate a scorer and critic as any of the professional sports writers. If you attend any Yale ball game next spring, you will see the Winslow family, the Zeke Bronson, '03, family, and me. The unhappiest moment in Burnie's life, however, was not when Princeton won that final ball game in New York when Yale was five runs ahead in the ninth inning: the unhappiest moment was when he attempted to present the terrifying and formidable Billy Sumner with a cup. All members of 1904 remember that, and as Mark Twain used to say, let us draw the curtain of charity over the scene.

Among the long list of Yale athletic heroes, Metcalf will always hold in my mind a prominent place. Yale never had a player who got to first base faster than Met. He would shoot a grounder to short, the fielder would pick it up neatly, and with an air of confidence, throw the ball accurately and swiftly to first base, when to his amazement and dismay, he saw Met firmly on the bag. This happened often, and always to the astonishment of the shortstop. The only other man I ever saw who could convert putouts and assists to safe hits was Ty Cobb. Those of you who were unfortunate enough to see the football game at Cambridge in 1901, will remember that we were beaten, 22 to 0. Marshall, the Harvard quarterback, was a marvel and incidentally dropped a goal from the field. It may be remembered that Harvard had a man in the line called CUTTS and there was great doubt as to his eligibility; there was also great doubt as to whether the Yale faculty would grant a holiday on Saturday so that we could all go to Cambridge to see the game. Well, on the preceding Wednesday I addressed a mass rally meeting in Alumni Hall. I said, "I am delighted to inform you that the Yale faculty have finally decided on the eligibility of CUTTS for Saturday morning, so that we can all go to the game!" This was received with terrific enthusiasm.

After that shattering defeat in 1901, when Zeus Holt, our center, lost sixteen pounds, the outlook seemed bad for the next year, 1902. But after we had walloped Princeton, by some strategy that opened wide the enemy line, the Harvard game came to New Haven. We were down near our own goal posts; the ball was passed back to Met—and he went through the Harvard line as if they were somewhere else, ran the entire length of the field, and the famous Marshall, safety man, got just near enough to him so that Met nodded to him casually and went on for a touchdown.

Millions have wondered how General Pershing arose from the dead after all the funeral arrangements had been made. The reason I have kept dark until now. It was really because Clare Mendell showed him how many years ago. In a room in the Yale Infirmary the doctors took Clare's ante-mortem statement. I was informed that he could not live until sunset. Clare fooled them all, for if there is one man alive today who enjoys super-vitality, it is Clare Mendell. Besides being professor of Latin, and an original poet who has published several volumes of English verse, he was for years dean of Yale College, winning the affection and respect of the students and faculty, and was also the first master of Branford College. He is an ideal man for this position, assisted by an ideal wife. I speak with knowledge, for I, although emeritus, am a fellow of Branford. Clare is a fine tennis player, in addition to his other accomplishments.

Seth Bingham, who wrote the music for "Mother of Men," has had almost since graduation a distinguished career in music. Howard "Bo" Church is a fine teacher, but I remember him best as Stanley Williams' partner in tennis doubles, chronic opponents of mine. I called them the Meriden Champions; sometimes they actually defeated me and my associate. Often, too, have I met Howard in Munich, which used to be our favorite city after New Haven.

John Dallas, bishop of New Hampshire, I am proud of; and once, when I was preaching in the Cathedral at Boston, I called the attention of the Harvard men in the audience to the fact that at that very moment there were at the altar with me two bishops and two deans, Dallas, Sherrill, Sturges, Robbins, all of whom had been students of mine at Yale. Those who wonder at the high level of morality in Boston may now think of something else.

"Bull" Durham, for some years a teacher at Yale, is one of the stars of the faculty at the University of California. I stayed at his father's house when I took my entrance exams for Yale in 1883.

Your Class has the great honor of contributing two out of the ten masters of colleges at Yale. Sam Hemingway, lineal descendant of the first Yale graduate, who was valedictorian, salutatorian, and also on probation (for he was not only first but last in his Class—that Class was a very nice fellow) is the master of Berkeley College, and he and Mary make a grand pair. Sam is also chairman of the English Department and is the editor of the latest volume in the Variorum Shakespeare. He and I saw Maurice Evans' complete Hamlet last autumn.

Arthur LaCour entertained me when I was first in New Orleans. I advise him to read P. C. Wren's latest book, Paper Prison, for although Wren (author of Beau Geste) is an Englishman, there is the finest tribute to New Orleans I have ever seen.

Larry Mason was one of the most brilliant scholars and original wits I have ever known. I could tell you scores of wonderful remarks he has made; one will suffice. There was in New Haven a large man who was not at table a neat feeder; and Larry said, "Sir, please remember food is to be eaten, not to be worn." When Larry went to my favorite pension, the Pension Norland in Munich, he wrote me a fine two-line parody of Browning. You will all recognize the poem from which it is taken.

Open my tunic
And you'll find Munich!

Stew Mims, brilliant runner on the track team, elegant French scholar, a professor of history at Yale, and frequently my partner in tennis doubles, is now equally proficient in his chosen profession, and I often see him at the Yale Club.

One of the best-read men in 1904, one of those who love poetry with passion, is Charles Everett Moore, a lawyer in White Plains. We meet often and always have a good talk.

Three men in your Class who have recently died are a great loss to their innumerable friends and also to the community, for they were admired, respected, and loved. They were George Nichols, professor of botany at Yale, Erastus Pierce, a professor of English, and Lansing Reed, a multitudinous blessing. Nichols was a deacon in my church, and I loved him and all his family; Pierce was one of the most brilliant undergraduates I ever had, and if it had not been for bad health, he would have taken rank among the great scholars of the world, and Lansing was the friend of all, rich and poor.

Elton Parks was one of the Glee Club quartet. And I can see and hear him as plainly in this room at this moment, as if he were here. Ogden Reid has occasionally been my boss; not only do I read the Herald Tribune every day, but I have actually contributed to it occasionally.

Walter Spencer has a magnificent career as head of a great New Haven school; I see him very often, but never too often. Your Class should be proud of him. Another splendid public-spirited citizen of New Haven is Fritz Wiggin. Successful in his profession, whenever there is any public work to be done for the benefit of the community, they always get Fritz to do it. His fine singing voice is just as good as it was when he sang on the Yale quartet with Elton Parks. And a close friend of his and mine was Paul Ney, whose death was a great loss to me. I was in his house, Sigourney Street, Hartford, Conn., on the day he was born. I thought the world of him.

I have picked out almost at random just a few men from 1904, but I assure the Class that you have distinguished professors at Yale, clergymen, lawyers, able men in public life and in business, of whom you and I are proud; I remember them well, as I do so many of their classmates.

Your old teacher and friend,

Billy

THE REUNIONS

INFORMAL REUNION, 1931

In accordance with the suggestion made by Harvey Williams at the Yale Club dinner last January, the experiment of a year ago, of holding an informal dinner at the Graduates Club Monday evening of Commencement week, was repeated June 15, 1931. Happily it may be said that Harvey's recovery from his recent alarming illness is convincing and complete.

The president of the Graduates Club, otherwise the dean of Yale College, saw to the arrangements of the evening. Broiled live lobster constituted the substance of the repast; a complete absence of oratory was the sequel, whereby was afforded a superior opportunity for more intimate visiting. Music, chiefly vocal, was furnished via the open windows by the reunionists assembled in the rear of the club in adjacent tents.

Those present were: Allen, Burgess, Chapin, Coburn, Dominick, Bill Ely, Hamilton, Newell Jennings, King, Knox, Marsh, Mendell, Merrill, Ostrom, Peltz, Powning, Harry Reynolds, Soper, Spencer, Thacher, Wiggin, Harvey Williams, and Winslow.

The sharp eyes of the Treasurer discovered that Banker Knox paid for his dinner by a bank note validated by his own autograph—and so far as known, the note was good! In these depressing days, it is a comfort to observe how easily money is made by at least one of our enviable and intimate friends.

The following day six of us sat together in the front row grandstand seats provided by Clare Mendell and saw Yale win a stellar, 7-3, victory over Harvard—a great afternoon.

At the Alumni Luncheon we were made happy by the President's announcement of the election of Tom Thacher as fellow of the Corporation, also that Lanse Reed has consented to serve another year as chairman of the Alumni Fund, to the present administration of which was paid high praise.

Other important events, from the 1904 standpoint, of Commencement week, were the announcement that Sam Hemingway has been appointed full professor on the Yale faculty; the unveiling by Tom Thacher in the Law School of the portrait of Oliver Ellsworth, LL.D. 1790; the graduation from Yale College with the Class of 1931 of the following four sons of 1904 men: James S. Coburn, Edward B. Paine, William L. Peltz, and Luther Tucker.

Before leaving New Haven came the news of the victory of the 150-pound crew in the Far West and the award to Og Reid of an LL.D. at Miami University, Ohio.

Gentlemen, we may not be as young as we used to be, but let no man say that 1904 is not on the map.

THIRTIETH REUNION, 1934

The 1904 Reunion developed no signs of approaching senility, but, on the contrary, an increased youthful enthusiasm for the new Yale. By Saturday night the first batch of arrivals had already looked about them and found much that was to their liking. On Sunday all that were seaworthy put out onto the Sound on the Migrant, Carll Tucker's magnificent and hospitable three-master. For practically all the Class this was a unique and delightful experience, and the cordiality of the host guaranteed the success of the reunion right at the start. The remnant that did not trust their sea legs explored the Golf Course or followed the red line of the Lohmann maps around the new buildings. The two sections of the Class reunited at Gene Soper's for tea in the late afternoon. This delightful lawn party has become a fixture for our reunion, made doubly attractive by the presence of wives and children.

Monday was spent once more at Pine Orchard with tennis, golf, and frequent visits to the Migrant, which lay a mile off shore. In the evening at headquarters at the comfortable Beta Theta Pi house practically all ninety of the reunioners were on hand for dinner. This continued into an evening of singing, splendidly started off when Joe Holmes brought the leading lights of the Glee Club over to headquarters after their concert. There may have been an element of compulsion in this, as John Holmes is leader of the Glee Club, but it was not visible, and Duke Henning's enthusiasm spread rapidly to the whole Class.

The rain on Tuesday did little to dampen enthusiasm. There was a suspicion expressed that the Class showed relief at not having to march to the baseball field. Another delightful dinner on Tuesday night, made especially memorable by the entertainment furnished by George Lord, '14, wound up proceedings, except for the fortunate few who stayed for the big doings Wednesday morning, for the Alumni Luncheon and the exhilarating baseball game and boat race. With the new feeling of optimism and a growing faith in the new Yale, the reunion was altogether successful.

The following attended: John P. Ackley, George W. Adams, Louis H. Arnold, William N. Arterburn, Clarence A. Barnes, Thomas H. Beardsley, James H. Brewster, Jr., Fayette Brown, Garrett A. Brownback, Harry F. Burgess, J. Frederic Byers, Russell Cheney, Edward W. Clucas, James H. Coburn, B. A. Copp, Jr., Winthrop M. Crane, Jr., Joseph F. Cullman, Jr., John T. There were many pearls cast during reunion, of which the following two are good samples:

During the sail on Migrant on Sunday afternoon, Sicher made the following remark, "Well, that's the way life is, thirty years of hard labor for six hours of luxury."

A discussion occurred at Pine Orchard as to the number of children per capita and the spread of their ages. Clare Barnes scored 100 per cent with the following, "I have got a lot of children of various ages; in fact, I buy whisky for the oldest and milk for the youngest."

INFORMAL REUNION, 1937

The Class of 1904 assembled in New Haven for dinner Commencement Monday evening, June 21, twenty-six strong. All but a few stayed over for the Harvard baseball game the following day and for informal gatherings at breakfast, luncheon, and in between. The privileges of the Graduates Club were extended to all, and rooms were assigned in McClellan Hall on the old campus.

The evening party started at the home of Dean Mendell in the master's house of Branford College at 7:30 P.M. and the last of the stragglers, a dozen or so in number, remained until 12:30. Our personal dean took charge of affairs with his wonted efficiency and grace, a lifetime habit which paid a handsome dividend in the form of a totally unexpected case of sherry as a present from the Class.

The renewal of old associations in informal groups was sufficient in itself to make the evening an enjoyable one, with the whole crowd preferring to remain together even had we not had the further inducement of an outpouring of the heavens which, by the same token, did prevent one of the later evening objectives of a

Commencement reunion—the visitation of the tents of contemporaneous classes whose members otherwise become lost to memory.

Those who stayed for the ball game, decorated with Class hatbands, went to the field in several cars after surveying various unfamiliar parts of the modern Yale. These were rewarded with a fifteen inning game between two strong college teams, finally won by Yale after having had a half dozen chances to end it.

The spirit that attaches to each of these gatherings must be experienced to be understood. Those present strongly favored renewal of these offyear Commencement reunions with earlier efforts to secure even a larger attendance, and voted this one as well worth while: Brewster, Burgess, Curtiss, Esty, Goodell, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Havemeyer (and son), N. Jennings, Kennedy, Kirkland, Knox, Mendell, Mims, C. E. Moore, Peltz, H. Reynolds, Sicher, Soper, Spencer, Stebbins, Thacher, Wiggin, J. H. Williams, and B. Winslow.

INFORMAL REUNION, 1938

This was not a regular reunion year, but our informal reunions are becoming very regular. The Class is indebted, I believe, to Harvey Williams, for the suggestion of having an informal dinner every year at Commencement. The custom was started a few years ago and was so successful that it was repeated this year, and I am sure there would be a unanimous verdict in favor of its continuance. An able committee, consisting of Clare Mendell, Fritz Wiggin, and Burnie Winslow, made perfect arrangements for our enjoyment and comfort at the New Haven Lawn Club. There were twenty-nine of us there. There was no head table, no speeches, no speakers—just a nice little family party.

To my mind there were three high spots, the first being the appearance of a quartet from the Glee Club who sang for us for half or three quarters of an hour. It was a corking good quartet, and they certainly could sing. We would have enjoyed any quartet who were kind enough to come out and sing for us that hot evening, but we enjoyed this one particularly for four good reasons; namely, because one of the singers was Eddie Clapp's boy, another was Bill Peltz' boy, another was Jack Cates' boy, and the manager of the party was George Adams' boy. There was not only very close harmony, very close indeed, but the above relationships brought the boys very close to us.

The second high light in order came shortly after the dinner started when generous portions of a delicious salmon were served, and, when Clare announced that the fish had been sent to him by Joe Cullman for the occasion, Joe got several cheers and several toasts as well. It was too bad we couldn't have both the fish and Joe. It would have made a good party better, but I suppose he was still whipping some lively stream in Canada.

Not long after the fish had disappeared champagne of a choice vintage began to appear, and then came the announcement by Harry Hamilton that Bill Peltz had made that special donation. Very, very nice of Bill.

After the dinner almost everybody adjourned to the attractive veranda of the club overlooking the tennis courts, where Fran Cole and Trot Lewis used to beat me at tennis in undergraduate days. (Remember, Trot, the time we went out to play one afternoon and both rode the same bicycle?)

According to the official record the following, in addition to those mentioned, were present: G. W. Adams, J. H. Brewster, Jr., J. S. Broeksmit, H. F. Burgess, R. H. Camp, F. W. Cole, B. A. Copp, Jr., H. L. Griggs, W. D. Hart, A. Havemeyer, N. Jennings, C. S. Joy, J. W. Knox, C. E. Moore, E. C. Northrop, C. C. Ostrom, E. Parks, W. L. L. Peltz, H. W. Reynolds, D. F. Sicher, B. E. Smith, W. B. Soper, H. H. Stebbins, Jr., and T. D. Thacher.

If your name isn't on the list be sure that it is next time.

I bumped into Ledge Mitchell a couple of times during Commencement and was sorry he was tied up so that he couldn't be with us at dinner. We don't see as much of Ledge on these occasions as we should like to.

Some one told me that he had seen Fayette Brown in New Haven, but I wasn't that lucky. You know he has a boy at No. 2 in the Varsity shell and you ought to know, if you don't, that Fritz Byers' son was filling his father's seat in the same shell during the heroic race of June 24.

Best regards to you all, and I am, as ever

THIRTY-FIFTH REUNION, 1939

The first impression of a reunion is always particularly happy, whether it be the chance meeting of a classmate on the way or arriving at headquarters in the midst of the first festive dinner together. This latter experience this year was a real thrill—to hear the hum of talk so unlike any other talk and yet so familiar even though thirty-five years had passed, to shake hands with Dusty Millar for the first time in twenty-five years, and to hear that he had flown all the way from Los Angeles to attend the reunion; and to shake hands and yell “hello,” right, front, and left. We all lingered long at that first meeting; and after dinner many dense clouds of smoke ascended from throats which were glad to have the chance to offer incense with the old crowd of votaries and to intone again the incantations of 1904.

On Sunday, as President Hadley used to say, “Some did one thing—and some did another thing!” Many played golf, but many just stayed around and some went to the Baccalaureate Service. About the same number, and probably about the same fellows, attended this service who had done so in former years, those of the orthodox reunion and program trend of mind. The duration of the service was extremely short. When we came in, the congregation was singing “Holy, Holy, Holy,” and it seemed rather like marching in a processional. President Seymour spoke of power of public opinion, and the deference paid to it by the world in general. He instanced very aptly that “a decent respect for the opinions of mankind” impelled the Continental Congress to publish to the world the reasons for the Declaration of Independence. He urged the graduating class to make an enlightened contribution to public opinion. Two members of our Class, after attending Baccalaureate, went the prescribed reunion program one better and reported at headquarters a most enjoyable hour and a half spent in the old Grove Street Cemetery.

The two great features of Sunday afternoon were the Memorial Service at Dwight Hall in honor of Lanse Reed and Sam Hemingway's tea. Neither could have been better. It was a perfect afternoon, and the ivy on the Old Library, the elms, and the sunny brightness of the sky were in themselves an invitation to the realm of memories. The memorial exercises were simple and spontaneous. Every one there was of one accord in one place, offering his or her tribute to the life of Lansing Parmelee Reed. No ritual was necessary. The feeling of those who were there was beyond formal expression. But Fritz Wiggin spoke for us all. The sincerity and deep conviction of his address was closely followed and echoed in the hearts of those who listened. This fine tribute mingled the warm personal feelings of a friend with the larger appreciations of the scholar.

Sam Hemingway did not have to wait long for his tea to begin and become a lively affair. Mrs. Hemingway and her niece gave everybody a charming and cordial welcome, and Sam came around occasionally himself. There were no awkward moments. Things buzzed. This occasion was one of the most enjoyable of the whole reunion. Everything was grand—the introduction to the terrace of the master's house in Berkeley College through the faultless living room, the welcome by the hostesses, the terrace itself, the tea, the cakes, the sandwiches, the garden. As Billy Phelps might say, "This was perfectly splendid." The afternoon passed all too quickly. It was hard to get away; and there were many of those chance conversations which make up some of the happiest memories of these wonderful four days at New Haven. All are grateful to Sam and Mrs. Hemingway for the Great Tea Party of 1939.

Our headquarters facilities at the Faculty Club were ideal. No want or whim had been unanticipated. The tricky canes with the program rolled up inside were a great hit—and were soon at a premium. All the meals at headquarters were little reunions. There was always a keen anticipation of these—both physically and spiritually. For almost always there was a classmate there who had not been seen before or who was only there for the day or something of great import to tell some one with whom a former interview had been cut short. The crowd was always reluctant to leave at night. There was always some new arrival, some new or old story which kept the time of departure to Branford College for the night further and further away.

The Whiffenpoofs visited us. They sang their songs and our songs; the music seemed all the better because Ed Clapp's son was one of them. Then who will ever forget the rare and masterful burlesque on F.D.R. by John Scheuer, 1940? "My friends of 1904—my friends!" And a new Class song, "Ferdinand," also sprang up and took instant root on the last night at headquarters.

Monday found the Class as a whole off for Pine Orchard. Many played golf with varying success, and some strolled over the course discussing the past, present, and future—chiefly the past. These interviews and discourses which are not part of the formal program often afford the most pleasurable moments and recollections of the reunion—particularly when they are between those who were intimate in college. The college friendship is like none other.

Clare Mendell, Tom Beardsley, Arthur Neergaard, and Charles Moore played tennis at the Lawn Club. The victory went to the dean and Tom and the individual honors to the doctor. This quartet then lunched at headquarters with two faculty members and heard some very interesting and enlivening unpublished and theretofore unuttered memorabilia of the Yale of the past and present.

Tuesday was the ball game, a dull affair—almost "unsufferably dull," as Billy Phelps used to characterize our themes in American literature, at times. But we had a good time together marching on the field, cheering the old President and the new President, and seeing Anson Phelps Stokes still standing guard in the grandstand. Then there is always the pleasure, as in former days, of the exchange in trenchant comments on the progress of the game with the classmate who happens to be sitting next to you. But there might have been real excitement, had that long fly which ended the game gone a little higher.

At the Class dinner on Monday night, we had our largest attendance present. Tom Thacher acted as toastmaster, Harry Stebins reported, and various members of the Class spoke, among whom were Elt Parks, Dusty Millar, and Pete Riley. Every one feeling in the mood, an impromptu Class meeting was held and all the members of the Class Council reëlected. There was also a most enthusiastic decision made to present to Clare Mendell's wife a silver bowl in token of our congratulations upon her receiving her doctor's degree this year and of our unanimous admiration of her excellence in general. Mr. Dooley returned to us. Many of us remember this inimitable commentator on what was going on in the world who flourished in the late nineties and while we were in college. He was a great favorite with Clare Mendell; and the parody which Clare read, containing the old familiar dialogue between Mr. Dooley and Mr. Hennessey concerning the doings of President Roosevelt was perfect both in substance and form. It sounded exactly as if we were listening to it thirty-five years ago.

Those who stayed for Commencement were glad to be on the Old Campus again to see the caps and gowns, the colored hoods, the assembling for the Commencement procession, to hear the Harkness chimes, and again to feel the spirit of the place. On Commencement morning there always appears to be a sort of stillness in the campus, like Sunday, yet not exactly the same.

In the little town in Ireland called Kanturk the Roman Catholic parish priest said he liked to go to his own church the best because he always knew what he was going to hear. This is the reason most of us go to Commencement, and it always has the same effect. At the Alumni Luncheon there was the glowing and fiery proclamation by President Beneš of his faith in democracy and the sparkling humor of President Angell's speech. He was in his old form, as in the Washington's Birthday Alumni Meetings. One of his characteristic sallies was to the effect that he noted with some annoyance and discomfort that things had been going along very smoothly since he left the presidency. What a reunion! And we have another to which to look forward in 1944.

We are all, of course, proud of the educational progress Yale has made and of her huge expansion and development since our day and of the part which our classmates have had in this advancement. And yet, our uppermost sentiment from year to year as we return, is our affection for the college itself. The author of the book, Four Years at Yale—a graduate of '69—has well expressed this idea in these words: "Other institutions may, perhaps, impart a better education, a larger amount of knowledge to their pupils; but none other, I think, inspires in them all quite so warm and genuine affection for itself as does Yale."

CHAIRMAN OF THE ADVISORY BOARD
DWIGHT HALL

DEDICATION OF MEMORIAL TO LANSING P. REED

JUNE 17, 1939

The parsonage at Holyoke was a small, plain house on a shallow corner lot, but the lot was filled with roses. It was a center of sweetness and light in the atmosphere of a mill town. In point of time this household was placed in the transition between the end of Puritan days and the beginning of the Age of Freedom. It remarkably combined their virtues. It best explains the character of Lansing, not only in the ideals there formed in him, but because it insured the kind of training he was encouraged to obtain at the Holyoke public schools, at Andover, Yale, and Harvard. He had a grand tour of Europe in 1905 which greatly expanded his intelligence, but his period of most rapid development was at the Law School. It was between 1905 and 1908, under the influence of a great faculty and association with the picked law students of America, that he came at an astonishing pace to great mental capacity and the full maturity of a man.

The attainment of eminence as a lawyer of the first rank requires a combination of mental and moral qualities with physical strength such that few men in a generation can come to it. Fewer still have time for anything else. Yet the variety of Lansing's activities was amazing until the last days of his life. As the head of a family, he was the preëminent American father. He took this and all his responsibilities earnestly. He once said that if a child turned out badly, it must be the parents' fault. He made no exceptions to this.

His philanthropies were generous and varied. His directorships and trusteeships were performed with diligence. But his great distinction was his interest in humanity. He never rested in giving out his sympathy to young and old of all stations in life. He was always forming new human relationships.

He was no ascetic. With all else, he found time for many sports and recreations, and his intellectual activities were unlimited. How so much could be packed into one life is inexplicable. He was of the temper of Tennyson's Ulysses, who says: "How dull it is to pause, to make an end, to rust unburnished, not to shine in use! As though to breathe were life. Life pil'd on life were all too little."

Indeed for him every hour was saved from "that eternal silence."

Personality is so interesting because it is so undefinable. Yet sometimes we can choose and isolate a few notable qualities which make a man strong. One of Lansing's is intellectual honesty. A lawyer once said to him, "The best advice to give a client is the advice he wants." He replied, "That kind of advice caused many a downfall in 1929." It is said that he was noted as a composer of controversies, but it was not in his nature to compromise when compromise was wrong. No one ever saw rightness more clearly, and no one ever followed it more simply and directly.

Independence—This may be very close to intellectual honesty. Lansing made his own decisions. Often they were difficult and often the result of long pondering and mental debate. Once decided they were his decisions, tenaciously held in any company.

His sympathy and mental activity have been mentioned. It was mainly these, with a sound robust humor, that made him such a delightful companion.

It is fitting that his memorial at Yale should be placed here in Dwight Hall, which represents one of his enduring loyalties. This plaque has been given by some of his friends, and much care and thought have been spent upon its design and preparation.

In a way the other handsome furnishings you see in this South Wing are part of the memorial, for all of it was conceived as one enterprise. Made possible by the generosity of Mr. Harkness and other graduates, the attractive and appropriate equipment of this hall is now assured for many years to come.

It would be desirable if it were possible, to speak of Lansing's last journey, but adequate words are exceedingly difficult to find. From boyhood he understood and loved the English poets, and it may be appropriate to compare this journey with the last voyage of that same Ulysses, who, worn out with age and his long wanderings and adventures, is made to say as he gazes out across the Western sea:

The lights begin to twinkle from the rocks:
The long day wanes: the slow moon climbs: the deep Moans round with many voices. Come, my friends,
'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.
Push off, and sitting well in order smite
The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds
To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths
Of all the western stars, until I die.
It may be that the gulfs will wash us down:
It may be we shall touch the Happy Isles,
And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.
Tho' much is taken, much abides; and tho'
We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are;
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

CLASS DINNERS

THE TWENTY-SIXTH—1930

Old Rabbi Ben Ezra would have been in his glory at the '04 annual party held at the Yale Club March 14. Let those not smart enough in college to make Phew Better Kribbers dope out the subtle reference. The "key" to it is old age and having a good time.

This "party" was formerly known as the Class dinner, but for the benefit of those benighted souls who have ceased to frequent the halls of memory, let it be known that "dinner" has become only an incident, that noisy intoxicates have almost ceased to be, and that the old tradition of proving yourself still young by trying to act at the dinner as you did in college has been forgotten. Every year the evenings together become more interesting in the revelations of new attainments and new successes among our members. Rising to important positions of leadership in law, in banking, in education, in business, one comes to the festive board with the laurel wreath upon his brow. Decidedly, old '04 is entering its harvest season of rewards.

And this was what this year's dinner had in store for us. Clare Mendell, Charlie McCain, and Tom Thacher were the particular stars of the evening. Our dean, once more in his delightful manner, brought us up to date on what was going on at New Haven, and again registered the impression of a man that measured up to the position of leadership that he occupies as "Baldy" Wright's successor. Incidentally, Clare has just announced his engagement, which proves that he is still young.

Charlie McCain, in order to be present, stole away from a secret conclave in Wall Street where they were just completing the merger that made his bank the largest in the world and, incidentally, that vaulted him into the exalted position of chairman of the board (Clear your throat and begin your little speech, "I knew him when . . .").

Tom Thacher came fresh from his triumph at Washington, where he had just been made solicitor general of the United States, and thus had entered the pathway that leads to the seventh heaven of the legal profession. All question of Tom's ability was removed from everybody's mind when Brookhart and Borah began to ask questions about how much money he had saved while working his way through college. That's where the testimony of his classmates came to the rescue and saved the day. So Tom is on his way again!

Read over the list of those present and you will realize that other successful lawyers, bankers, educators, and business men were present. Check them up—it will prove interesting.

Thanks to the kindness of Walter Spencer, George Welsh, and Jim Corbin, movies of the Twenty-fifth Reunion were thrown on the screen, as was also the never-to-be-forgotten collection of snapshots of Senior year made by Count Ely. The junior quartet of the Yale Glee Club sang some delightful selections from this year's repertory.

Harry Hamilton was master of ceremonies and Elt Parks presided. Those present were: G. Adams, Barnes, Brewster, Broeksmit, Burdick, Clapp, Cullman, Dominick, Fessenden, Goodell, Gould, Hamilton, Hart, Havemeyer, Howe, N. Jennings, P. Jennings, Knox, Lord, McCain, McClean, Mendell, Merrill, Metcalf, Mims, Mohlman, Moore, Neergaard, Nilsen, Paine, Parks, Patterson, Recknagel, P. Reynolds, Sicher, Sidenberg, Spencer, Studwell, Thacher, Whipple, Wiggin, and Williams.

THE TWENTY-SEVENTH—1931

What to many of us has grown to be one of the happiest days of the year—when is held the New York dinner of the Class of 1904—brought no disappointment to those fortunate enough to attend our latest gathering on January 23. Thirty-five said "Here" to the muster-roll of Harry Stebbins. After the first greetings our Secretary proposed a toast to the memory of the four of our number who during the year have been enrolled with those of the Great Reunion—Baldwin, Clapp, Leonard, and Edgar Munson.

It was made possible for nearly all to be seated around the outside of a tastefully appointed horseshoe, whereby each could see the others and appreciate the more what a handsome and well-preserved body of men we have grown to be. The order of the evening included no set speeches. The Class approved the action of the Council taken at its meeting of the afternoon, in recommending that annual voluntary dues of not to exceed $10 be accepted, the fund thereby raised to be at the disposal of the Council to meet the urgent needs of members of the Class and their families, and for routine expenses other than publications, but for possible contributions towards reunion expenses. (One of our prominent bankers was heard to interject that the fund might prove useful for protecting our dwindling margins.) Letters of regret and of good cheer were read by the Secretary from absentees Mitchell, Reed, Broeksmit, and Holmes.

Clare Mendell, dean of Yale College, answered an attack on modern Yale architecture as recently launched by a youthful critic. He explained some of the high spots in the recently announced plan of instruction, one of the features of which is the abolition of the present system of mid-year exams. Shades of William Beebe! "He'd abolish the Lit, he'd abolish the News!" etc. Clare concluded his remarks with an entertaining recital of the educational process as applied to and by the progeny of the Yale graduate of the "Dumb Decade." The writer thought he detected sidelong and self-conscious glances here and there, accompanied by a certain nervousness and forced laughter on the part of the attending brethren of 1904.

Harvey Williams urged an informal get-together at New Haven each year at Commencement along the lines of the hastily arranged dinner at the Graduates Club in June, 1930. Elt Parks voiced the feeling of gratitude and congratulations to Harry Stebbins which we all feel for his great work and success in the publication since we last met of the Twenty-fifth Reunion Book. Whipple, Barnes, Neergaard, and McCain obliged with more or less confidential utterances.

An invasion of visiting reunionists, variously reported to be 1906 and Squadron A men, was attended by a mighty shattering of table equipment; but even this commotion failed to dent the serenity of our happy evening. The concluding picture in the writer's mind is of a vigorous discussion, with gestures, of the ever-green subject of football, in which the Know Nothings and the Know It Alls had pretty much equal vocal power. The attendance: Barnes, Beardsley, Callahan, Cullman, Dominick, Esty, Goetchius, Goodell, Hamilton, Hart, Howe, King, Kirkland, Mendell, Merrill, Mims, McCain, McClean, Neergaard, Nilsen, Parks, Patterson, Peltz, Pierce, Platt, Reynolds, Robertson, Schenck, Sicher, Stebbins, Studwell, Walton, Welsh, Whipple, Harvey Williams, and Winslow.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH—1932

When Harvey Williams, master of ceremonies, tapped his half coffee cup with a silver-plated spoon at the Yale Club, Friday evening, January 22, over forty boiled shirt fronts bulged in expectation of a delightful experience. None were disappointed. Though the pre-prandial exhilarant had been diluted with essence of wild rose or something, no one seemed any worse for the experience. The selection of a very tender bit of filet for the piece of resistance was a fine gesture on the part of the dinner committee to the declining dental efficiency of the Class.

The address which H. Emerson Tuttle, 1914 (master of Davenport College), gave was sincerely appreciated. If all the other Masters measure up to him, there will be no doubt about the success of the new plans. His exposition of modern conditions and future plans was clear and was supplemented by answers to questions which were propounded by old-timers, all of whom had studied Greek thirty years ago.

Harry Stebbins, Class Secretary extraordinary, blushing gave a short résumé of his contacts with Class members during the past year and climaxed his short address with the story of a false step by Harvey Williams concerning which your scribe lost the point.

Then Charles (Harve) McCain, guiding spirit of the largest bank in the world, reminisced very entertainingly about early college days and early business days, finally coming up to present day conditions. Every one listened avidly to catch a ray of hope from this authoritative source. A few of the Class owning German Industrial bonds were reported to have slept soundly for the first time in months. However, the whole outline was extremely informative, and it certainly would not be fair to publicize it—the appreciation was again sincere.

Lanse Reed explained the necessity for more funds for the Alumni Fund. He stated, among other things, that contributions to the Fund last year were used primarily to aid students working their way through and the records disclose the astounding feature that 98 per cent of the amount so borrowed has been repaid.

Moving pictures of the Georgia, Army, Dartmouth, Harvard, and Princeton games were shown, and all of them backed up Harvey Williams' contention that Albie Booth is the supreme football player of generations.

Silent respect was offered to our two classmates who had passed on during the past year—Jam Moorehead and Arthur Steele. Messages were received from Gene Soper, George Adams, George Welsh, Newell Jennings, Ray Merrill, Norman Rupp, Clare Mendell, Bill Spencer, and two from Harry Griggs. The following members of the Class were present: Ackley, Armstrong, Barnes, Beardsley, Brewster, Callahan, Cullman, Goodell, Gordon, Gould, Hamilton, Hart, Howe, Jennings, Knox, Lord, McCain, McClean, Mims, Moore, Neergaard, Nilsen, Ostrom, Paine, Parks, Patterson, Peck, Peltz, Reed, Reynolds, H. W., Reynolds, P. B., Shand, Sicher, Sidenberg, Smitley, Stebbins, Studwell, Tucker, and Williams.

THE TWENTY-NINTH—1933

Another agreeable dinner of the Class of 1904 transpired at the Yale Club, New York, January 27, 1933. Following the meeting of the Class Council (which, so far as any later report disclosed, must have been wholly of a before-dinner, ceremonious nature), Elt Parks contrived to get us seated to his liking. "Where MacGregor sits is the head of the table."

The oratory began with tributes to the memory of the three of our number who during the year have graduated into Yale beyond the stars—Harold Barbour, Otis Bigelow, and George Dupee, the last a member of the Class in Freshman year.

Class Agent Reed for the Alumni Fund was unfortunately not on hand, but Elt read a report from him expressing gratification at the showing our Class had made during the difficult year past. We appear to have done rather well, thank you!

Stewart Mims supplemented Lansing's report with an ex tempore tribute to the wisdom with which the avails of the funds are disbursed.

In the unfortunate absence of our industrious Secretary, who was sorely missed, Elt ran over the greetings from the absentees near and far.

Harvey Williams expressed equally sanguine hopes for Yale's football prospects and for the country under the blessings of the incoming administration. If partisan groans were engendered by his sentiments, Harvey ignored them in his best Chesterfieldian manner.

Tom Kirkland brought us all the inside news from Springfield.

Dwight Farnham divulged to our private ears an account of British ceremony in a remote corner of the far-flung empire.

Jim Brewster reported present, having flown down from Hartford with Clarence Chamberlain, who had made a perfect three point landing, barely in time for the meeting of the Council.

Not to be outdone, Joe Cullman, who had thoughtfully provided us with the most delicious cigars, allowed that he was to start for the coast by airplane the following day. Joe's views on the ills of the present-day business world appealed to the gathering as sound, courageous, and enterprising.

A cable was engineered to Clare Mendell in Rome, voicing our affection; greetings also were suggested in the direction of Chauncey Goodrich, whose health unhappily has not been the best.

It was altogether a most enjoyable and intimate evening. There were no frills or trimmings, but just a happy gathering of the old folks at home. It is possible that the party is going yet—at least at 12:30 it was still going strong.

The attendance: Beardsley, Brewster, Callahan, Cullman, Farnham, Goetchius, Goodell, Gould, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Kirkland, Lord, McCain, McClean, Mims, Neergaard, Nilsen, Paine, Parks, Patterson, Peltz, Schenck, Sicher, Studwell, Welsh, and Harvey Williams.

THE THIRTIETH—1934

Numerically overshadowed by the alumni of Middlebury College, who concurrently dined on the twentieth floor and into whose midst the writer was erroneously delivered by the elevator gentleman, vocally the inferior of the youngsters of 1906, who in the next room, with ill-timed Yale cheers rudely interrupted the flights of our several orators, thirty-seven members of 1904 staged the happiest kind of a dinner at the New York Yale Club, January 26, 1934, a curtain raiser, as it were, to the Thirty Year Reunion of June.

Thirty years! Why when we were in college, the old-timers who came back for their Twentieth, Thirtieth, Fiftieth, were to us all alike—dwellers in a different world, to be treated with deference to be sure, but not regular people. And now here we are, some of us with sons returning for reunions, and the strange part is that so many look just the same. Nineteen Four will never grow old.

Yes, the happiest kind of a dinner—the happiest every year and this was no exception.

As usual, Parks arranged everything; the menu was all that could be asked, and delicious cigars were supplied again by our considerate tobacconist, Mr. Cullman.

Toastmaster Parks explained that Clare Mendell was to have been our one best oratorical bet, but unfortunately had been detained at New Haven. Clare, however, had sent word to the Class Council that he was set to do his stuff for the June reunion, so all is well.

Jonathan Bingham, chairman-elect of the Yale News, was borrowed from the 1906 dinner and pleased us with his observations of the satisfactory workings of the College Plan from the under-graduated standpoint. His readiness to answer questions prompted a discussion of the painful subject of football. Art Allen supplemented with a few well chosen observations, but refrained from the repeated suggestion that he oblige with "Casey Jones."

Lanse Reed, for the Alumni Fund, expressed guarded contentment with our aggregate contributions, remarking on the other hand that but 32 per cent of the Class are contributors. At the feet of Bill Bailey in American Social Conditions we were taught that society breeds from the bottom: Lanse utterly discredited the value of the instruction we were accorded as undergraduates by the sensational and statistical disclosure that this 32 per cent had begotten 48 per cent of the total progeny! The writer observed that the bachelors and physicians present were astounded and that some were taking notes. The toastmaster, however, artfully had the next speaker on his feet before there was time for heckling or wise-cracks.

Tom Thacher described the difficulty he once encountered when as a judge he sought entrance to the Post Office Building in the evening, to receive the verdict of an incarcerated jury; also an amusing scene in the United States Supreme Court Chamber when the prevailing advocate, through defective hearing, was unaware of a suggestion from the bench that he discontinue his argument.

Herb Eales, now of Chicago, reported present for his first Class dinner since graduation.

Other speakers were Bob Smitley, Earle Whipple (the life of the party), Harry Hamilton, George Welsh, and Harry Reynolds. Stu Studwell proposed a worth-while plan for the consideration of the Reunion Committee for securing a larger attendance than otherwise at our June reunion.

Bill Soper related a story told by Secretary Hurley, when a guest of President Angell, about an equestrian who landed a job in the West through his extraordinary skill in the saddle—none other than John Markham Riley of the Class of 1904!

Toasts were drunk to the following splendid men who will be with us in memory at every reunion: Frank Callahan, February 5, 1933; John C. Kittle, March 17, 1933; A. Kingsley Porter, July 8, 1933; Edward C. Stone, August 24, 1933; Harold I. Gardner, September 11, 1933; Alexander H. Olmsted, December 12, 1933.

Stewart Mims spoke beautifully and feelingly on the life and exploits of our gifted friend, Kingsley Porter, a man whose talent was probably exceeded by that of no other of our Class and whose charm was understood most perfectly by the relatively small group who knew and loved him. Tom Thacher joined in this tribute to the memory of this distinguished member of 1904.

Messages of regret were read from the following: Adams, Clifford, Foote, Gaines, Gould, Merrill, Millar, Moore, Nead, Recknagel, Rupp, Sands, and Wömelsdorf.

The attendance was as follows: George Adams, Allen, Barnes, Beardsley, Brewster, Cullman, Dodge, Eales, Esty, Goodell, Hamilton, Hart, Havemeyer, Howe, Knox, Latting, Lord, McCain, McClean, Mims, Neergaard, Nilsen, Parks, Patterson, Peltz, Reed, Harry Reynolds, Schenck, Sicher, Smitley, Soper, Studwell, Thacher, Walton, Welsh, Whipple, and Wiggin.

THE THIRTY-FIRST—1935

The Class of 1904 held its annual New York dinner at the Yale Club on Friday, March 8. Each part was enjoyable—the preliminary assemblage in the anteroom, where familiar faces and voices which were good to see and hear greeted the new arrival; the dinner itself, the movie of the Colleges, the reports and brief speeches and the visiting. Every Class dinner has its own distinct feature and memory, and, as the years pass, the fewer we miss the better. For there is almost always a classmate whom we know well and like to see who is there one year and absent another. Although the attendance keeps fairly constant, it varies just enough to make every dinner an occasion on which to be present, if at all possible. Then each almost always has its outstanding story, remark, or occurrence which gives it its own flavor and makes its recollection happy.

It was good to see Elt Parks preside again and to hear Harry Stebbins report and comment. Harry is a perfect Class Secretary and has a fine time maintaining his perfection. He also had two of his laughing seizures which were by no means the least enjoyable features of the evening. These are real Class traditions. His report showed that those of the Class who have money had not withheld; for after contributing over $5,000 to the University and paying the reunion expenses, there was a surplus of about $1,100. It was voted to use this help for the Class members and their families who were in need of help. This need is not easy to ascertain. But it exists, and some real relief has been given.

This dinner was postponed from January 25 so that Clare Mendell could attend. He attended and made some very informative and gratifying remarks on the state of the University. He spoke in high praise of the success of the colleges as taking the place of the classes as social units, emphasizing the fact that the size of the class made it a physical impossibility to continue the social policies of our day. The opportunities for fellowship, exercise, recreation, and study are, he said, much greater and more balanced under the College Plan, with the common room, dining hall, college teams, squash courts, and the reading periods. These he explained and illustrated by concrete instances which had come under his observation as master of Branford College. He also spoke of the number of the sons of 1904 men now in college and how they helped to keep the old Yale they knew from their fathers a living thing in the New Yale. Altogether the dean considers the present Yale a healthy and well-functioning institution.

All were much interested. In fact, a keen interest in Yale as it is now characterized this meeting, rather than mere recalling and ruminating on the past. Stewart Mims testified as to the merit of Alumni Day . . . saying truly that to attend these annual gatherings is the only way really to see the University. The same argument for attending Class dinners holds good for Alumni Day.

After the dinner the usual twos and threes talked and smoked until the 1935 dinner gradually faded into the past and with it into another of the memories which, like those of the days of 1900-04, are counted among the richest possessions of those who have them.

Those present were: C. E. Adams, Allen, Beardsley, Brewster, Childs, Cullman, Dominick, Goetchius, Goodell, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Havemeyer, Jennings, Latting, McClean, Marsh, Mendell, Mims, Mohlman, Moore, Neergaard, Nilsen, Parks, Petry, Ogden Reid, Sicher, Stebbins, Studwell, Thacher, Welsh, Williams, and Whipple.

THE THIRTY-SECOND—1936

Thirty-four members of 1904 met at the Yale Club of New York City on February 14 for the annual Class dinner. Dudley F. Sicher introduced his account of the affair with a quotation from the description of the January, 1934, meeting: "Yes, the happiest kind of dinner—the happiest every year and this was no exception."

Elton Parks again presided, with his customary grace, geniality, and wit. In characteristically modest mood Elt apologized that the Dinner Committee had been unable to persuade anybody else to act as toastmaster, but all of us acclaimed Tom Thacher's rejoinder that one of the inducements for coming to 1904 dinners was the expectation that Elt would continue to fill his traditional rôle.

We missed especially Class Secretary Harry Stebbins, unavoidably detained in Rochester by bank director duties. So, Elt read Harry's letter of greetings and accompanying report of items of Class business, that report showing a very satisfactory operation of the plan, inaugurated in 1931, of voluntary Class dues, and contributions from such fund to less fortunate unnamed classmates and their families.

There were communicated messages of regret also from the following widely scattered absentees: Ackley, "Pow" Adams, Barnes, Case, Goodrich, LaCour, Miller, Nead, Rupp, Soper, Spence, and Wiggin.

A silent toast was drunk to the memory of the four classmates who had died since last year's dinner: Frederick Erastus Pierce, March 26, 1935; Edward G. Chace, April 6, 1935; Gladstone Fessenden, September 28, 1935; and Dr. George M. Gelser, October 21, 1935.

The Dinner Committee had again purposely not arranged any set program. But the evening was made memorable by impromptu informal talks, of rare distinction, by Dean Clare Mendell and Judge Tom Thacher and an eloquent exposition of current undergraduate Yale life by August Heckscher, 2d, 1936, former editor of the Yale News and former president of the Yale Political Union, a debater and winner of this year's DeForest Speaking Prize. And John Broeksmit added a few terse remarks; a timely bankers' convention having brought him and Harve McCain on from Chicago.

The college alumnus has recently been stigmatized as "the bird who likes to keep his past intact"; and there is no denying a certain nostalgic atmosphere in all reunions of middle-aged classmates. So, Mendell's, Thacher's, and Heckscher's earnest and meaty talks satisfied our craving for authentic information concerning the "new Yale" and also for assurances that vast material changes have revived the pristine spirit. Exceedingly pleasant it was to hear those graphic analyses of today's Yale—including a favorable comparison of it with our own undergraduate years of "strenuous idleness"—from the respective viewpoints of the broad-gauged dean of Yale College, of our distinguished classmate trustee of the Yale Corporation, and of an outstanding leader of undergraduate activities.

Whether because the inexorable years have effected compliance with the scriptural injunction, "now that I have become a man I have put away childish things," or whether because many of us are privileged to have sons at college, an absorbing interest in the problems and tendencies of modern Yale has marked all 1904 Class dinners of recent years. But they have never been mere "intellectual feasts." Gone are the noisy banter and most of the ribaldry of the earliest gatherings; but the heart-warming features still remain, in increasing abundance. It is always refreshing to greet again friends of the far-off happy days on the old campus, to exchange jests and to match experiences; and those intimately personal phases grow more precious each succeeding year.

Those present were: Beardsley, Brewster, Broeksmit, Cullman, Goetchius, Gordon, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Kirkland, Lane, McCain, McClean, Mendell, Mims, Mohlman, Moore, Neergaard, Parks, Peltz, Reed, Reynolds, Rice, Schenck, Sicher, Sidenberg, Smith, Studwell, Thacher, Tucker, Welsh, Whipple, Williams, Winslow, and August Heckscher, 2d.

THE THIRTY-THIRD—1937

The Class of 1904 dined at the Yale Club of New York on Friday, January 22, 1937, and in spite of the absence of Elt Parks and Harry Stebbins, our two wheel horses, had the happiest sort of evening. Harvey Williams did himself proud as toastmaster. First we paid silent tribute to the four of our Class who within the year have joined the Great Reunion: Carl S. Flanders, Basil J. Scott, James T. Craffey, and Will T. Barker.

The business of the evening included a report on the status of the Class Fund and a statement that five beneficiaries have during the past year received assistance. The speeches were informal and from our own membership. Ned Paine described the extraordinary improvement in conditions in Haiti and San Domingo—republics with which he has had much to do and where his son, Yale '31, is now located as president of an active enterprise. Arthur Neergaard gave hints of what it means to play Santa Claus, year after year, for the benefit of the rising generation; Joe Cullman gave us interesting figures on the enormous growth in the use of the vile weed; George Nichols admitted that this was the first Yale Club Class dinner he has ever attended, told us of the part the botanist plays in the problem of dust storms and soil erosion. In Charlie Moore we found unsuspected talent in the world of pantomime. Gone but not forgotten is the greatest of Yale Presidents—Arthur Twining Hadley—who once said that ours was the first Class to be his exclusively. Harry Hamilton, who, with Bill Hart, arranged the dinner so adequately and to whom we again accord every appreciation, described the present difficulties of mining precious metals in Mexico and coal in Pennsylvania, gold and coal being linked as the root of all evil. Jim Brewster told us of success and failure on a recent trip in locating our representatives on the Pacific coast and of a breezy message to Dusty Millar which perhaps misfired. George Adams, not being in the mining industry, painted the picture of Latin-American travel. We heard read a report of Malcolm Farmer, '04 S., director of athletics, to Elt Parks stating that our Ledyard Mitchell prizes, this year in the form of silver cigarette cases, had been awarded at the close of the season to heroes Colwell and Humphrey. No kicks on the choice of the best punters.

Our congratulations were sent to Newell Jennings upon the stirring announcement made by Harry Reynolds that upon the recent appointment by the Governor, Jennings is to don the ermine of the Connecticut Supreme Court. We listened with interest to messages from many absentees, ordered sent a telegram to Elt Parks, and gave ear to the following additional orators: Messrs. Mims, Dodge, Thacher, Whipple, and Sicher.

The attendance was: Ackley, George Adams, Allen, Beardsley, Brewster, Cullman, Dodge, Goodell, Gordon, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Havemeyer, Kirkland, Lane, Latting, McClean, Merrill, Mims, Moore, Neergaard, Nichols, Nilsen, Paine, Peltz, Harry Reynolds, Schenck, Sicher, Sidenberg, Studwell, Thacher, Walton, Whipple, and Williams.

THE THIRTY-FOURTH—1938

Register another red-letter day for the Class of 1904. January 7, 1938, marked the latest of the long series of memorable gatherings of the faithful—a well-attended dinner held at the Yale Club, New York. The central figure of the evening was Toastmaster Wiggin, whose happy remarks were climaxed by his reading of the extraordinary exchange of correspondence between the Blue Eagle and the Blue Bulldog in an unbelievable attempt by the former to require the latter to submit to the provisions of the hotel and restaurant codes. Bill Soper described the set-up and operations of the Department of University Health—an organization whose perfection contrasts with the relative absence of supervision of the health of the young men, when flourished as undergraduates the stalwarts of 1904. Justice Newell Jennings of "The Court of Supreme Errors" of Connecticut having, after a few preliminaries, gotten down to the staple of his argument, drew aside the veil which normally screens the method of discussion and decision of the cases before their Honors. He concluded with commendation for the Yale Law School, in spite of the sympathy on the part of certain of its faculty members with the trend of the brain trusters. Announcement was made of the election that afternoon of Bill Peltz to the Council to fill its unfortunate vacancy. Gratification at this distinction was voiced by the newest of the elder statesmen.

Harry Stebbins spoke feelingly of the supreme loss our Class has had in the death of Lansing Reed, reminding us of his ancient intimacy, first as schoolmate, then roommate throughout our college years. No one of our number is better qualified than he to voice the feelings we all share. A graceful silver bowl engraved with an appropriate sentiment was displayed—to be sent by the Class to Ruth Lawrence Gillespie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazard Gillespie (Ruth Reed), born December 20, 1937—Lansing Reed's first grandchild, whom he never knew. We stood with bowed heads as were read the names of our seven classmates who, since our last dinner, have joined the greatest of Yale reunions: Arterburn, Burns, Webster Evans, Hall, George O'Brien, Reed, and Shields. We thrilled again as upon the silver screen we witnessed the Dartmouth game of last fall with its dramatic finish. The "Albany Antelope" indeed saved the day. And lastly—for the benefit of the absentees—Clare Barnes' crowning glory is as vigorous as ever. More convincingly than less fortunate classes of our era can we point with never-ending pride to this tangible and priceless witness of our eternal youth. Attendance: C. E. Adams, G. W. Adams, Armstrong, Barnes, Beardsley, Brewster, Brownback, Cullman, Esty, Goodell, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Howe, Jarvis, Newell Jennings, Joy, Kirkland, Lord, Marsh, McClean, Mendell, Metcalf, Mims, Neergaard, Nilsen, Paine, Parks, Peck, Peltz, Schenck, Shand, Sicher, Soper, Stebbins, Studwell, Tucker, Walton, Welsh, Wiggin, J. H. Williams, and B. Winslow.

THE THIRTY-FIFTH—1939

Bill Sumner lived and died too soon. The chapter, "Consanguinity amongst the Esquimaux," was hit ahead of the runner. "Paternalism Amongst the Grandfathers of 1904" shrieks for an author. The big news run in from the Boston outfield crossed the plate with the oysters.

Harvey Williams as toastmaster, in the newly paneled if not sound-proofed banquet hall, managed fairly well against a competing reunion beyond the sliding doors, but was utterly routed by Fritz Wiggin as rival raconteur.

The big topic, of course, was the approaching June reunion. Elt Parks, our new Class Agent, guardedly complimented our financial exploits and suggested a program with which to make merry the return to New Haven. Details will be found in the financial section of the Herald Tribune, a local sheet esteemed by the Class by reason of its chief executive. . . . Elt had the courage to tell us how he recently became shockingly mixed up with a mess of New Dealers at a glittering dinner at Washington which was undoubtedly paid for by us taxpayers. He told us of gratifying success with the Lansing Reed Memorial at Dwight Hall. . . . Bill Soper graciously invited us to his home Sunday afternoon of Commencement week for the latest in his delightful series of garden parties. . . . Secretary Stebbins warned that our delinquencies are to be forever recorded in a publication which the Class Council in its wisdom has decreed for the reunion.

Now comes the big stuff—Mac Farmer, '04 S., director of athletics, our guest speaker, graduate of the best Class that Sheff, within its limitations, ever turned out, convinced us that Yale athletics are based on sensible fundamentals. Toastmaster Williams slipped a little at this point and acoustics were imperfect. The writer understood the speaker to say that the coaches are now of professional rank and sit around with the faculty drinking beer.

We always suspected it, but never really understood it before. It was all the faculty's fault last fall. The boys did their best but the goldarned professors got the coaches tight. Also probably one of the finest things at Yale is the Ledge Mitchell Cup. No kicks on that.

Messrs. Barnes, Studwell, and Reynolds obliged with well chosen remarks.

We stood in silence as we heard read the names of the newest group of classmates whom we shall not see for a time: Sawin, McShane, Chapin, Murphy, Love, and Moseley.

The attendance: G. W. Adams, Barnes, Beardsley, Brewster, Camp, Cullman, Dodge, Drummond, Goetchius, Goodell, Griggs, Hamilton, Hart, Lane, Latting, McClean, Marsh, Metcalf, Mims, Mohlman, Moore, Neergaard, Nilsen, Ostrom, Paine, Parks, Peltz, Pond, H. W. Reynolds, Schenck, Sicher, Sidenberg, Soper, Stebbins, Studwell, Thacher, Walton, Wardwell, Welsh, Wiggin, J. Harvey Williams, Winslow, and John Woodruff.

Oh yes—one last thing—it was a real 1904 gathering. Og Reid walked in just as the party broke up.

GRADUATES

John Day Ackley

Owner of the Copake Telephone Company, Copake, N. Y.
Residence, Copake.

“First of all I consider myself a telephone man, after that a farmer,” Ackley explains. “I know several hundred of my telephone subscribers personally and dealings with them have been very pleasant.

“I have been instrumental in organizing two centralized school districts, one in Columbia and one in Dutchess County, N. Y. I am on the Board of Education of the ‘Roe-Liff Jansen’ School (board chairman three years), one of the largest of its kind in New York.

“I hope I have been an influence for good in the communities where I operate. Am not ready to retire yet for just this March, 1939, I purchased an additional small telephone company. I love my wife, my children, and my one grandchild and am still an optimist after thirty-five years.”

Ackley is an elder and a member of the pulpit committee of the Methodist and Reformed churches, and he is a member of the Masonic order and of the Grange. His membership on the Board of Fire Commissioners dates from 1925.

Ackley’s older daughter, Harriet Wilkinson, graduated from Skidmore College in 1936 and was married a few years ago to Bradford W. Peck. Mr. Peck attended Stony Brook School and graduated from the McAlister Embalming School; their daughter, Pamela Carol, was born September 30, 1938, at Great Barrington, Mass. John Benedict Ackley, a graduate of Syracuse University (1939), is in the telephone business; his father says of him, “He was president of Sigma Iota Epsilon, an honorary business society at Syracuse University, and vice-president of Delta Upsilon while there." Ackley's younger daughter, Carolyn Margaret, graduated in 1939 from Edgewood Park Junior College (where she was president of her class for a year) and is now studying at Syracuse University.

Charles Edward Adams

Chairman of the board, Air Reduction Company, Inc.,
60 East 42d Street, New York City.
Residence, 4 East 72d Street, New York City.

"The days are still too short," Adams remarks. "I hope we can all say the same, five and ten and fifteen years on." He continues as chairman of the board of directors of the Air Reduction Company, Inc., of which he was formerly president. He has been a director of the Vanadium Corporation of America since 1929 and of the National Distillers Products Corporation since 1934 and is also on the board of directors of the U.S. Industrial Alcohol Company, the U.S. Industrial Chemical Company, and Pure Carbonic, Inc. He became a trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company in 1936 and of the Bank of New York three years ago. He is on the board of managers of the Presbyterian Hospital and of the Babies' Hospital and is a trustee of the Neurological Institute of New York. During the summer of 1934 Adams served as divisional administrator for Division 1 of the N.R.A.

His clubs are the Union, Links, Racquet and Tennis, Yale, Chemists, Downtown Association, Uptown, and Cloud, all of New York City; the Deepdale Golf, Piping Rock, National Golf, and Southside Sportmen's clubs on Long Island; and the Graduates of New Haven.

His older daughter, Phyllis Anne, is at St. Timothy's School in Catonsville, Md., while the younger girl, Janet Shearson, is studying at the Chapin School in New York.

George Webster Adams

Partner in Foster & Adams, brokers,
120 Broadway, New York City.

Adams has continued as a partner in the firm of Foster & Adams, members of the New York Stock Exchange, with which he has been associated since 1912.

His daughter, Hester Livingston, graduated from Smith in 1934. She was married the following November 16, in New York City, to Henry Palmer Bakewell, Groton '25, Yale '29. They have two sons, the older of whom, Henry Palmer, Jr., was born in Hartford, Conn., on May 25, 1937; the younger boy was born April 12, 1940. Adams' son, Alexander Buell, prepared for college at Andover and received a B.A. at Yale in 1939.

Frederick Charles Aldinger

Director of the department of tests and measurements of the Lansing Board of Education, 222 Townsend Street, Lansing, Mich.

Residence, 9 Savoy Court, Lansing.

Aldinger writes as follows: "I remained a year at Yale, getting my M.A. in June, 1905; obtained my B.D. from the Divinity School of the University of Chicago in June, 1907; accepted the pastorate of the Church of Our Father (Universal) in Lansing, Mich., in 1909; resigned my pastorate and quit the ministry in 1918. During the years 1921 and 1922 I took special work in education and psychometric study at the University of Michigan. Began work as director of the Department of Tests and Measurements, Lansing Public Schools, in September, 1922, a position in which I am happily situated. Have traveled some, but spend most of my vacations at my summer home on Higgins Lake, Roscommon, Mich."

Aldinger's son, John Hough, took the liberal arts and business administration course at Michigan State College, graduating in 1934, and is now with the overseas department of the Reo Motor Car Company. He holds a commission as First Lieutenant in the R.O.T.C.

Arthur Williams Allen

Member of the firm of Allen, Russell & Allen (insurance), 31 Lewis Street, Hartford, Conn.
Residence, Apponaug, R. I.

Allen has been a member of the firm of Allen, Russell & Allen since 1906. He has continued to take an active part in the Community Chest drives in Hartford and was captain of a team in the Y.M.C.A. drive to secure funds for a new building. He has been a member of the Asylum Hill Congregational Church since 1896.

Allen and his first wife were divorced in September, 1929. His second marriage, to Mrs. Evelyn Buckingham Waite Baldwin, took place August 12, 1931, in Hartford; her death occurred September 10, 1937.

Allen gives additional details of what he has done in recent years as follows: "In February, 1936, when Mrs. Allen and I went to Hollywood, Fla., we played golf together, had fine bathing, did a lot of sight-seeing, and went on an all day fishing trip near the Florida Keys. We made a short stop at the Hillsboro Club at Pompano, Fla., which is owned and operated by Herbert Malcolm, Yale '07.

"In 1937 Mrs. Allen and I motored to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Harry Hamilton of our Class was there, so we saw something of him and Mrs. Hamilton.

"The following year I motored to New York City and there [with a Newport, R. I., man who has been living with him as a companion since Mrs. Allen's death] put the car on the ship for Norfolk, Va., motoring thence to Miami Beach. I returned by the same route and shortly afterward moved to Walpole, Mass. In 1939, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Davis, our neighbors, I drove to New York and went by boat to Norfolk and thence to Hollywood Beach. I would strongly recommend this delightful place to our classmates."

George William Anderson

Instructor in Latin, The Pawling School, Pawling, N. Y.

“There is not much headline stuff in a teacher’s life,” says Anderson, “not much money either, but nevertheless it has its compensations in a depression. It is a lot of satisfaction to meet again the many hundreds of men who have struggled with Latin, and learned what little I could teach them about football.” He has been teaching Latin at Pawling since 1907 and has also been line coach in football since then. His son, George W. Anderson, Jr., went to the University of Illinois instead of to Yale as he had planned to do. He was with the Columbia Broadcasting Station in Hollywood for three years and is now connected with KOMA in Oklahoma City as assistant to the manager.

John Phelps Taylor Armstrong

President, Belding Heminway Company, silk manufacturers, 119 West 40th Street, New York City.

277 Park Avenue, New York City.

“In 1929 I was president of the Corticelli Silk Company,” Armstrong writes. “The depression hit hard—sold business to Belding Heminway—became vice-president in 1932 and president in 1937. Sounds simple—was hard. Thought I inherited some money, 1929. Depression cured me of idea. Still have lots of burdensome real estate. Health is good—enjoy my wife and business. Am hopeful our country can pull through in spite of the conclusions I reach when I analyze conditions. Still like golf, bridge, Bacardi rum. Have very little hair and too much stomach.”

Armstrong has for many years been a director of the National Bank of Commerce in New London, and since 1931 he has also been a director of the National Notion Association and vice-president and a director of the United States Testing Company. He formerly served as president and a director of the Associated Charities of New London, and he is a member of the finance committee of the Second Congregational Church in that city. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and belongs to the Shinecossett Country Club in New London, the Deepdale Club of Long Island, and the Union League, Yale, and Republican clubs of New York.

Louis Horace Arnold

In the general insurance business, 806 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.
Residence, 87 North Street, Willimantic.

Arnold, who has his own insurance business, is also a regional agent for The Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford. He is a director of the Willimantic Welfare Bureau, a charter member of the Society of the Descendants of the Founders of Hartford, and belongs to the University Club of that city. He was formerly president of the Willimantic Rotary Club and of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce, and is at present secretary of the Willimantic Golf Club and a director of the Y.M.C.A. His son, Mason Green, is registered to enter Andover in the fall of 1940.

Arthur Shinkle Baker

Residence, 48 Hill Street, Morristown, N. J.

No report has come from Baker since the spring of 1929, but at that time he was still living at the above address and was engaged in work along commercial lines.

Joseph Austen Bancroft

Consulting geologist with the Anglo American Corporation of South Africa, Ltd., Box 4587, Johannesburg, South Africa.

Bancroft, who was formerly located in Northern Rhodesia with the British South Africa Company, now makes his headquarters at Johannesburg.

Clarence Alfred Barnes

Partner in the law firm of Barnes, Smerdon & Makrauer, 75 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.

Residence, 79 Rumford Avenue, Mansfield, Mass.

At the time our Twenty-fifth Reunion Record was published, Barnes was a partner in the firm of White & Barnes. His association with the firm of Barnes, Smerdon & Makrauer dates from 1935. "Ten years ago I thought of retiring from business," he says, "now I am up to my neck and will be as long as the machines can operate. Wear is better than rust anyway. Think the country will go Republican and if it doesn't will try to get a low number." In 1939 he was a candidate for attorney-general of Massachusetts, but was not elected. He belongs to the Yale Club of Boston and is a member of the Congregational Church, the Masonic order, and of several golf clubs.

Barnes now has eight children, three having been born since 1929, Samuel Elder, aged ten, Roselee, aged six, and Peter, who is a year and a half. His oldest son, Clarence Alfred Barnes, Jr., who is a member of the Yale Class of 1929, is art director for Arthur Kudner, Inc., of New York City; his marriage to Elizabeth Clark Betts, of Brooklyn, took place on March 30, 1935, and they have a daughter, Susan, who was born October 10, 1936. David, the second boy, is a graduate of the New Hampton Literary Institute and is at present doing statistical work. Barnes' daughter, Jane Moore, attended Wykeham Rise and subsequently was in the movies for a while; she married Carlyle Moore, of Hollywood. Barnes' third son, John, attended Williston. The fourth son, Thomas, was born on June 25, 1928.

Samuel Colcord Bartlett

President, S. C. Bartlett Realty Company, 36 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Residence address, R.R. 1, Crown Point, Ind.

"With me there is nothing much new," writes Bartlett. "The last ten years have passed so swiftly that recently I have often wondered where they have gone. I am still subdividing at Cedar Lake, Ind. Roosevelt has whitened my hair, but he has made me chase so hard to keep ahead of the W.P.A. that (knocking wood) my health is pretty good." Bartlett is a member of the Yale Club of Chicago.

His daughter, Harriet Colcord, prepared for college at St. Katharine's School in Davenport, Iowa, and received a B.A. at Northwestern University in 1935.

Thomas Hopper Beardsley

Head of the law department, Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., 4 Irving Place, New York City.

Residence, 31 East 79th Street, New York City.

Beardsley gave up his connection with the law firm of Beardsley & Taylor in December, 1937, to become counsel to the Consolidated Edison Company and head of its law department. For a number of years he has been a trustee of the South Brooklyn Savings Bank, and from 1931 to May, 1939, he was president and a director of the Casino Holding Corporation. He is serving as a member of the committee on the unlawful practice of the law of the New York State Bar Association and is also a member of the constitution committee of the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the American Bar Association, as well as of the State Bar Association, and he belongs to the University and Yale clubs of New York, the Downtown Association, the Heights Casino of Brooklyn, the Maidstone Club of East Hampton, and the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills.

Beardsley and his first wife were divorced in November, 1931, and on the 24th of that month his second marriage, to Edith Armstrong, of Yonkers, N. Y., took place at Fallon, Nev. His daughter, Elizabeth, who is a graduate of the Packer Institute, has been married twice, first to Philip Sayres and later to Allan Leverich. She has two children, Nancy Sayres, born May 3, 1930, and Judith Leverich, born November 30, 1937.

Gerald Edwin Beebe

Residence, 2467 S.W. Sherwood Drive, Portland, Ore.

In a letter dated August 31, 1939, Beebe said that, if the record must state something, to put opposite his name "unchanged (he thinks) except for quite a few white hairs." No other information was given. In 1931 Beebe was vice-president of the Oregon Alumni Association.

His second son, Gordon Beebe, who was married on September 7, 1938, to Lucy Shepard, is teaching sociology at the University of Washington and is also studying for his master's degree there. The other boys are Robert Livingstone and Charles Francis.

Ralph Chapman Benedict

Head of the commercial and preparatory departments, Charlestown High School, Charlestown, Mass.
Residence, 30 Middlesex Road, Stoneham, Mass.

Since 1920 Benedict has been head of the commercial and preparatory departments of the Charlestown High School. For two years (1936-38) he served on the board of management of the City Square Branch of the Boston Y.M.C.A., and at present he is a deacon in the First Congregational Church in Stoneham.

His two oldest daughters both took up teaching upon graduating from college. Elaine, who received a B.A. at Wheaton in 1928, taught at the Medfield (Mass.) High School from 1929 until 1934 and since her marriage to Gildo Pederzini has continued to make her home there. The second girl, Katherine, who received a B.S. at Teachers' College at Framingham, Mass., in 1929, taught at the Henniker (N. H.) High School during the next two years and has since been at the high school in Wethersfield, Conn. Marjorie, the youngest girl, graduated from Smith in 1935 and during 1937-38 was a technician at the Lahey Clinic in Boston. She married Edward L. Wood, who is a graduate of Northeastern University, and has a daughter, Charlotte Ann, who was born April 12, 1939, in Cambridge.

Stephen Alexander Bennett

Lawyer, 11 Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y.
Residence, 15 Willow Place, Yonkers.

Bennett continues to practice law in Yonkers. He is a member of St. Augustine's Protestant Episcopal Church in that place and is now serving as senior warden. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and the Masons. "I find myself unable to avoid giving some serious thought to the continuing war-threats now seeking again to engulf the world in another murderous conflict," he remarks. "Are men and nations relapsing into a state of complete savagery? Is the civilization of our day, and of which we have been proud to boast, like those of bygone ages, doomed to fall?"

"I am almost allured into a laugh when I recall that, suggesting some sort of impending catastrophe, I concluded my report for our Twenty-fifth Anniversary Record by saying: 'My point of view, in one particular, is that the world is gradually drifting into moral decadence, although many of us persuade ourselves that this cannot possibly be true. And when the crash comes, what about the market value of Henry Ford's bag of gold?'"

"Now, I disavow any claim to being either prophet or soothsayer."

Charles Edward Beyer

Residence, 342 East Park Avenue, South, St. Petersburg, Fla.

"We have been so busy trying to make a living and trying to forget the past few years that there has been no time for anything else," Beyer reports. "We go here and there, wherever there is something to be done. There is really nothing to be said." He retired from active business in New Haven several years ago.

Seth Bingham

Organist and choirmaster at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, 921 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Residence, 88 Morningside Drive, New York City.

Since 1913 Bingham has held the position of organist and choirmaster at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and he has been a member of the Columbia faculty for a number of years, now having the rank of associate professor of music. He is a member of the World's Fair Advisory Committee on Music and of the council of the American Guild of Organists and belongs to the American Composers Alliance and the St. Wilfred's Club. His article on "Five Centuries of French Organ Building" was published in The Diapason (Chicago) during 1935-36, and another, entitled "Summer Wanderings," appeared in The American Organist (New York City) the following year. Bingham's recent musical compositions are the following: "The Strife Is O'er," mixed chorus a cappella (J. Fischer & Brothers, New York, 1934); "Come Thou Almighty King," mixed chorus a cappella (Carl Fischer, New York, 1934); "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go," mixed chorus a cappella (H. W. Gray, New York, 1936); "Wilderness Stone," American folk-cantata for narrator, solo, chorus, and orchestra, with libretto by Stephen Vincent Benét, '19, which was broadcast by the Schola Cantorum conducted by Hugh Ross (N.B.C. Orchestra), Lincoln's Birthday, 1937, and published by H. W. Gray, New York, that year; "Pastoral Psalms," suite for the organ (Carl Fischer, 1938); "Benedictus Est Domine," mixed chorus and organ (H. W. Gray, 1939); "Five Pieces for Organ" (J. Fischer & Brothers, 1939); "Passacaglia for Organ" (J. Fischer & Brothers, 1939).

Bingham's son, Alfred Jepson, graduated from Yale in 1933 and later received the degree of Ph.D. at Columbia, and his daughter, Frances Louise, attended the Lincoln School and Barnard College. Alfred's marriage to Eleanor Korman took place in New York on July 21, 1935.

William Bowen Boulton

Residence, Aiken, S. C.

Except for a brief period in 1931, during which he was engaged in the real estate and insurance business in Aiken, Boulton has not been in active business since 1925. At the moment, "Uncle Bill" says, he is "principally engrossed with the younger generation, including my stepson, and which with its marriages already totals thirty nephews and nieces." He is a member of the vestry of St. Thaddeus' Church in Aiken and is serving as commodore of the North Channel Yacht Club at Desbarats, Ontario. He belongs to the Palmetto Golf Club and the Squadron A Association.

On July 1, 1931, he was married at Woodmere, Long Island, to Mrs. Adèle R. Hager Harrison, whose death occurred on August 26, 1936. Boulton's stepson, William H. Harrison, 3d, spent some time at Yale with the College Class of 1940 and is now in his second year at the Yale Architectural School.

William Walter Brainard

With Hay, Fales & Company, 71 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, 238 West 74th Street, New York City.

Brainard, who was formerly with Brainard Brothers, wholesale pork merchants, in Jersey City, was for a time associated with the brokerage firm of Blythe and Bonner in New York City and is now with Hay, Fales & Company.

His older son, William Walter, Jr., who graduated from the Collegiate School and later attended Rutgers University and the Business School of Columbia University, was married on May 26, 1933, to Katrin Ruth Vietor, who attended the Brearley and Foxcroft schools. Their son, Vietor, was born January 7, 1937. Brainard's other children are Calvin H. and Marjorie Mabel. The latter, who is a graduate of the Spence School, was married on May 3, 1940, to Eugene Charles Worden, Jr.

William Arthur Brenner

Division traffic superintendent of the western division of the long lines department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, 208 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Residence, 1834 Sheridan Road, Evanston, Ill.

Brenner who has been with the above company since 1906, assumed his present position in 1923. His daughter, Hope Robinson, was married on August 30, 1930, to Louis Harkins Cochrane, Jr., a graduate of Penn State in the Class of 1924. Brenner's son, William Arthur, Jr., attended Yale with the Class of 1939 for a time, but is now at Wabash College.

James Henry Brewster, Jr.

Vice-president and treasurer, Ætna Life Insurance Company,
151 Farmington Avenue, Hartford, Conn.
Residence, 175 Scarborough Street, Hartford.

Brewster continues as vice-president and treasurer of the Ætna Life Insurance Company in Hartford. He is also a director of the company and is, in addition, vice-president, treasurer, and a director of the Ætna Casualty & Surety Company, the Automobile Insurance Company, and the Standard Fire Insurance Company and a director of the Hartford National Bank & Trust Company and the Society for Savings. He is a commissioner of the Hartford Metropolitan District and at present is serving as a member of the executive committee of the Hartford Community Chest and as a director of the Hartford Dispensary and the American School for the Deaf. He belongs to the Asylum Hill Congregational Church. During 1938-39 Brewster served as president of the Yale Alumni Association of Hartford. He is also a member of the Hartford Golf Club, the Hartford Club, and the Twentieth Century Club of Hartford, the Dauntless Club of Essex, the Graduates Club of New Haven, and the University and Yale clubs of New York and also of the Downtown Association.

Brewster's daughter, Mary Drew, who studied at Miss Hall's

School and at Miss Schoff's in Paris, was married on June 24, 1931, to William Littell White, Jr., Princeton ex-'33. They have two children, Littell, born July 21, 1933, and Sheila, born March 3, 1936, both in New York City. Brewster's son, James Henry, 3d, graduated from Hotchkiss in 1932 and from Yale in 1936 and is now studying aeronautical engineering at M.I.T. His marriage to Nancy Dickenson Buell, Vassar ex-'38, took place on August 21, 1937, and their son, James Henry, 4th, was born in Boston on March 12, 1939.

John Shaw Broeksmit

Vice-president, Harris Trust & Savings Bank, 115 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

Residence, 855 East Westminster Avenue, Lake Forest, Ill.

"The family and business seem to be all-absorbing," Broeksmit writes in answer to our questions. "The youngsters as they develop of course are increasingly interesting, and now that Jack is at Yale I am delighted to get up to New Haven occasionally. Last spring I sat with Jack in one of his classes, gathering a little up-to-date information on classical civilization which I hope to put to good use in the banking business. Fortunately, standing the test was not involved, for with you all, I have become thoroughly convinced that we would stagger through the Yale of today with most uncertain steps—I am referring solely to our intellectual achievements.

"The three younger daughters are in school at home, so that with Mrs. Broeksmit on their side and Jack away I am out-voted four to one at every turn of the road. Naturally, I have a lot of fun with the offspring."

Broeksmit continues as vice-president of the Harris Trust & Savings Bank and is still a trustee of Coe College and of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club. He was formerly president of the Chicago Y.M.C.A. and is now a trustee of that organization and a member of the First Presbyterian Church at Lake Forest. He has served as a director of the Yale Club of Chicago.

His son, John Shaw, Jr., is a member of the Class of 1942 at Yale, and his oldest daughter, Anne Stillman, is attending Ferry Hall in Lake Forest. The others are Mary Birch and Laura Fiske.

Fayette Brown

Engaged in the investment and real estate business, 1821 Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio.
Residence addresses, 2617 Berkshire Road, Cleveland, and R.D. 2, Mentor, Ohio.

Brown reports that he is an officer and director of several small corporations holding investments in securities and Cleveland real estate, as well as mineral and timber lands in Michigan and Minnesota. In addition, he is a director of The Cleveland Trust Company, the Interlake Iron Corporation, the Interlake Steamship Company, the Great Lakes Towing Company, and the Cleveland Storage Company, and he is treasurer and a trustee of the Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland and a trustee of the Lakeview Cemetery Association. Since 1908 he has served on the scholarship committee of the Yale Club of Cleveland.

Fayette Brown, Jr., who graduated from Hotchkiss in 1932 and from Yale in 1936, studied law at the University of California during 1936-37 and is at present employed by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company at Ishpeming, Mich., in its iron ore mining department. He was married on March 30, 1938, to Louisiana Scott Draper, of San Francisco, who is a graduate of the University of California. The second boy, Willard, also prepared for college at Hotchkiss; he graduated from Yale in 1938 (he held the Francis Gordon Brown Scholarship, one of the highest honors of Junior year, and is secretary of his Class) and is now in the Law School. Brown's older daughter, Barbara, attended the Hathaway-Brown School in Cleveland and Milton Academy and is now at the French School in New York. His third son, Ralph, who is at present at the Harvey School in Hawthorne, N. Y., hopes to enter Yale with the Class of 1947. Elizabeth, the youngest child, goes to the Hathaway-Brown School.

Garrett Arthur Brownback

Partner in the law firm of Travis, Brownback & Paxson,
61 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, 150 Albro Lane, Cedarhurst, Long Island.

Brownback retained his partnership in Field, Glore & Company, investment bankers, until September, 1932, and since 1933 has been a partner in Travis, Brownback & Paxson. He is a member of the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, the Lawrence Beach Club, the Cedarhurst Yacht Club at Lawrence, the New York Yale Club, and belongs to Trinity Episcopal Church at Hewlett, Long Island.

Brownback's daughter, Sarah Mitchell, a graduate of the Ethel Walker School and Sarah Lawrence College, was married on March 17, 1939, to Lewis G. Salomon, who attended Columbia University. He also has two sons, Garrett Arthur and Hunter Evans.

Charles Howe Buck

Proprietor of a poultry farm, Naples, Maine.

Residence, Naples.

Buck writes as follows: "I moved to Naples in May, 1931, and continued the practice of osteopathy in nearby Bridgton until the office was destroyed by fire. Since then I have made poultry and apple raising a full-time job. It has grown to the stage of more than a full-time job for two men, with over 6,000 head of poultry on the place this summer.

"Our older daughter, Theresa, sailed in August, 1938, for Africa, where she is serving as a missionary nurse." Theresa attended Rollins College for a time, graduated from Bates College in 1934, and then studied at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston and at the Hartford School of Missions. Charles Barstow, the older of Buck's two sons, graduated from the University of Maine in 1937 and is now engaged in poultry farming. In 1937 he married Margaret Grover, who also attended the University of Maine, and they have a son, Charles Grover, born April 23, 1939. Gurdon and Mary, the two youngest children, are in the Class of 1940 at the Gould Academy in Bethel, Maine.

Buck served on the Naples School Board from 1935 to 1938 and on the Town Budget Committee from 1934 to 1939. He is treasurer of the Church of Good Fellowship and is a member of the Naples Grange.

Harry Frost Burgess

Secretary, Union Hardware Company, manufacturers of sporting goods and tools, Torrington, Conn.
Residence, New Preston, Conn.

Burgess has held the position of secretary of the Union Hardware Company in Torrington since 1928. He is also clerk and a director of the Joseph T. Wood Company of Ware, Mass., secretary, treasurer, and a director of the Chapin-Stephens Company of Torrington, secretary and a director of the T. H. Wood Company of South Coventry, Conn., a corporator of the Torrington Savings Bank, and a director of the Torrington National Bank & Trust Company. Burgess has served as chairman of the society's committee of the New Preston Village Congregational Church. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and belongs to the Litchfield County University Club and to the Sons of the American Revolution.

His son, Franklin Lyman, graduated in 1939 from Deerfield Academy, where he was a member of the Cum Laude Society, and entered Yale last fall with the Class of 1943.

John Frederic Byers

Chairman of the board of the A. M. Byers Company (wrought iron pipe, etc.), Pittsburgh, Pa.
Residence, Sewickley, Pa.

Byers, who has been with the A. M. Byers Company ever since 1904, served as vice-president until 1932 and has since been chairman of the board. He is also a director of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, the Union Switch & Signal Company, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, the Union National Bank, the Union Savings Bank, the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Dock Company, the Western Allegheny Railway, and the Allegheny General Hospital. Byers is a trustee of the Carnegie Institute, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the Carnegie Library, and he is president of the Pittsburgh Club and a member of the Duquesne Club, Allegheny Club, the Racquet and Tennis, Links, and Brook clubs of New York, and the National, Deepdale, and Links Golf clubs. Some years ago he served as president of the United States Golf Association. His book, Byers on Backgammon, was published in December, 1937.

Byers' first wife died on November 13, 1934. His second marriage, to Mrs. Jeanne Marie deCroix Schley, of Grasse, France, took place on December 1, 1937, and they have a daughter, Marie Maude, who was born in Sewickley on January 11, 1939. Byers also has three children by his first marriage. The oldest boy, Alexander MacBurney, graduated from Yale in 1935 and later studied at Cambridge University, England. He is connected with the A. M. Byers Company, as is his brother, John Frederic, Jr. The latter, who received a B.A. at Yale in 1936, was married on January 7, 1937, at Old Westbury, Long Island, to Alison Grace; they have two children: Caroline Morris, born October 18, 1937, and John Frederic, 3d, born April 23, 1939. Byers' daughter, Nancy Lee Byers, attended the Fermata School; her marriage to John William Young Martin took place in Sewickley on December 7, 1937. The youngest boy, Buckley, who is a member of the Yale Class of 1940, is captain of the Varsity crew this year; he served in the same capacity for the 1939 season also.

Roland Heaton Camp

President, Platt Brothers & Company (zinc rolling mill), 43 East Main Street, Waterbury, Conn.
Residence, 98 Woodlawn Terrace, Waterbury.

Camp continues as president of Platt Brothers & Company, and he is a director of that company, as well as of the Hawkins Company and the Patent Button Company. He is a member of the Second Congregational Church of Waterbury and belongs to the Waterbury Club, the Harvard Club of Connecticut, and the Yale and University clubs of New York. He has not yet forsaken the ranks of the bachelors.

Nelson Stuart Campbell

President, Putnam Spinners, Inc., 60 K Street, South Boston, Mass.

Residence, 333 Lee Street, Brookline, Mass.

Campbell, who was formerly secretary and treasurer of the National Rhea Company of Providence, writes as follows: "For eleven years I have been doing more or less pioneer work on spun rayon—a new branch of the rayon industry, now becoming very important. I have been developing a new process for preparing 'sliver' for spun rayon which eliminates the usual expensive and wasteful preparatory processes developed through the years to handle natural fibers. We have successfully worked out the principles and the necessary motions. I am now working on refinements for greater speed and better quality. I have applied for patents on four or five mechanisms as well as on the process. Some of these have been allowed—the rest are apparently about to be allowed. In the last three years, I have liquidated all our spinning machinery and am concentrating on the new process."

He adds that he does quite a bit of sculpture—mostly portrait heads or busts. He is a member of the Yale Clubs of New York and Boston, the Country Club of Brookline, the Tennis and Racquet Club of Boston, and the Hope Club of Providence. He is an Episcopalian and while living in Providence served for several years as president of the board of the Rhode Island Boy Scouts. Campbell has three stepchildren, Stephen M. Edgell, Helena Edgell, and Stephanie Edgell. The boy has attended the Indian Mountain School at Lakeville, Conn., and the Beacon School at Wellesley Hills, Mass. Helena went to Milton Academy and Radcliffe College, and Stephanie, who has been at Milton Academy and St. Timothy's entered Vassar last fall.

William Moll Case

Pastor, Reno Federated Church, Reno, Nev.

Residence, 16 West 5th Street, Reno.

Case has been pastor of the Reno Federated Church since 1935. Since April 1939, he has also been treasurer and a director of the B.C.B. Company, Inc., manufacturers of combination salt and pepper shakers and other plastic novelties. He is chairman of the religious education committee of the Nevada Presbytery and a member of the Synod of California's General Council, representing Nevada, as well as being president of the Council of Social Agencies for Washoe County, Nev. He was formerly chairman of the judicial commission of the N.R.A. for the state of Nevada. In 1938 the College of Idaho conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Case.

He is a member of the Kiwanis Club. In concluding his report, he said, "Enjoyed being one of the two classmates at the marriage of Tom Gaines' daughter, Martha, in Pasadena in June, 1936. In '34 was happy to meet again with Henry Shelton, along with Tom Gaines, at LaJolla, Calif. I play tennis out here in Reno with Bill Dewitt of '07 and '08. Have three summer homes on Lake Tahoe and glad to welcome classmates there. Sorry I could not be at reunion, but did get on campus for a few hours, though I missed Clare Mendell. Was glad to have almost the whole of an evening's visit with Harry Stebbins at Rochester and rejoice that a classmate of mine should now be president of the board of directors of Auburn Theological Seminary and that he is successfully steering it through difficult waters at this time. I refer again to Harry Stebbins—every success to him in a fine bit of service."

George Irvin Chadwick

Secretary, Carlisle Chamber of Commerce,

18 South Hanover Street, Carlisle, Pa.

Residence, 155 West High Street, Carlisle.

Chadwick, who was formerly secretary and treasurer of the R. N. Beetem Company, is now devoting his time to his work as secretary of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce. "Same wife, same children, same place, same job—but no 'moss,' " he tells us.

His two older daughters, Charlotte Beetem and Marian Francis, have graduated from Dickinson College, in 1936 and 1938, respectively, and when Chadwick wrote in May, 1939, he said that the youngest girl, Meta Constance, was to enter Dickinson this last fall. Charlotte is now teaching in the Carlisle High School. His third daughter, Anne Louise, was born in 1920.

Robert Elmer Chandler

Missionary, American Board Mission,
Hopei, Tientsin, China.

Since 1911 Chandler and his wife have been working as missionaries in China under the American Board. They were stationed in Tientsin until June, 1937, and then returned to the United States. From April, 1938, until June, 1939, Chandler was in Boston as acting secretary of the American Board. "We emerged a trifle frayed from the last term of service in China," he said in his report for our book, "but we are in good shape now, and have a deeper faith in the Chinese people than ever before, and shall return in the fall (September, 1939) to work with them." He has written several articles which have been published in church magazines. In the spring of 1932 he was engaged in flood relief work in Anhwei, China. Chandler's only child, a boy named John Harlan, died on July 20, 1927.

Russell Cheney

Artist; address, Kittery, Maine.

Cheney, who has a national reputation as a painter, has had exhibitions during the past few years at the Montross Gallery in New York City, the Grace Horne Gallery in Boston, and the Ferargil Gallery in New York City. His painting, Kittery Point, has recently been acquired by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. His work is also represented in the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts, the Morgan Memorial at Hartford, and the Newark Art Museum.

Cheney belongs to the Century Club of New York City. He spent the summer of 1938 on a walking trip up the west coast of Ireland and Aran, followed by two weeks in Munich and Berlin and three weeks in Moscow; the latter, he said, was a very heartening experience.

Richard Spencer Childs

Residence, 8 West 9th Street, New York City.

At the time our last book was published Childs was connected with the American Cyanamid Company, and he is still a director of that company, as well as of the Bon Ami Company. From 1928 to 1935 he was general manager of the Beetleware Corporation, and since then he has been with the Lederle Laboratories, Inc., as executive vice-president and general manager. "I am still dancing around my pet brain-child, the city-manager form of government, which has now been adopted by 496 cities and towns," says Childs, who is, we understand, generally considered America's foremost authority on this form of municipal government. He is chairman of the council of the National Municipal League and for the past two years has been a member of the State Board of Housing. Since 1929 he has served as president of the City Club of New York.

Virginia, the oldest of his three daughters, graduated from Wellesley in 1936. Her marriage to Gordon MacDonald Street, '35, took place on September 7, 1936. Mary, who completed her course at Bennington College in June, 1939, was married the following July 8 to Stuart A. Mackay-Smith. Childs' youngest daughter, Nancy Jane, is at the Thomas School at Rowayton, Conn.

Gerald Chittenden

Instructor in English at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.
Residence, St. Paul's School.

"Twenty-nine years in a school indicates either that I like the life or can't get a job anywhere else," Chittenden remarks. "As a matter of fact, I like it, always have liked it, and like it more and more every year. Sons of men I used to teach have now begun to arrive, and all of them are recognizable both in face and character, sometimes even in handwriting. But I don't see why the fact that some one else has had a child should make me feel old, and I remain pleasantly uncertain of what generation I belong to."

Chittenden adds that his other activities include "writing things which few people buy and nobody reads." Longmans, Green & Company published his book, Reflections of a Resident Expatriate, "a series of essays about this, that and those," in 1932. A number of his articles have appeared in Scribner's and in the Atlantic Monthly. Chittenden is a member of the Tavern Club of Boston. He has two daughters, Bertha and Julia.

George Palmer Christian

Episcopal minister; residence, 1045 Park Avenue, New York City.

Christian says that he takes occasional services and adds, "After thirteen years of church work in Orange, N. J., I was married and went to Europe for a while. Later I was associated with the Little Church Around the Corner in New York City for a time. We spend one third of the year in Nantucket, enjoying a small eighteenth century house and its garden."

Christian, whose marriage to Ruth Emlen Langford took place in 1929, has a son, George Palmer, Jr., who was born in New York City in February, 1933. He attends the Buckley School in that city.

Howard Wadsworth Church

Professor of German and head of the Modern Language Department at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.

Residence, 329 March Street, Easton.

For the past twelve years Church has been professor of German and head of the Modern Language Department at Lafayette College. "Since 1929," he says, "I have enjoyed various interesting trips to Egypt and Greece; Iceland, Spitzbergen, Scandinavia, Danzig, and Russia; Portugal and Jugo Slavia; and Germany—made possible by a sabbatical half year and leaves of absence from college work."

Church is a member of the Goethe Research Committee of the Modern Language Association of America; his article on "Otto Babendich and David Copperfield" appeared in the January, 1936, issue of the Germanic Review. He belongs to the Country Club of Northampton County, Pa.

Grant Vincent Clark

Pastor, First Congregational Church, Evansville, Wis.

Residence, 112 West Church Street, Evansville.

Clark writes, "Life is going on about as it usually does with the average pastor, always plenty to do; as a rule, my reading is rather general. However, I have made a more or less intensive study of local history in preparation for writing a pageant for the centennial celebration of the founding of Evansville. I am invited, now and then, to broadcast over radio stations, either at nearby Janesville or Madison."

Clark is a member of the Lions Club and the Masonic order. He calls our attention to the fact that the name of his oldest son, Alban Bither, was misspelled in the Twenty-five Year Record. Alban attended Northland College and the University of Wisconsin and is now connected with the engineering department of the Baker Manufacturing Company of Evansville. He was married to Margaret Ann Ciprion in May, 1933. Clark's second son, Dwight Vincent, received his B.A. at Milton College and has done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. The youngest boy, Frank Coggeshall, attends the Evansville High School.

Irving Marshall Clark

Residence, Bellevue, Wash.

Clark has been retired from business for some years, although he is still a director of the Clark Iron Company. He returned to this country from Europe in 1933 and was subsequently connected for a time with the Emergency Relief Administration of the State of Washington. "I have taken an active interest in various conservation projects," he writes, "and especially the establishment of the Olympic National Park. For several years recently I have been chairman of the Seattle American Civil Liberties Union." Clark has also helped particularly in the fight which the labor unions have been making to establish their right to collective bargaining. He is a member of the Church of the People in Seattle.

Both of his sons graduated from the Lakeside School in Seattle as valedictorian. Irving, Jr., the older boy, is a member of the Class of 1941 at Harvard, where he has a National Scholarship. Arthur, the younger boy, was to enter the University of North Carolina this last fall.

Arthur Morton Clifford

Partner in A. M. Clifford & Associates, investment counselors and financial analysts, 639 South Spring Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Residence, 612 South San Rafael Avenue, Pasadena, Calif.

Clifford and his son, Henry, formed the above partnership early this year. "I entered the investment field in 1904," Clifford explains. "Came to the conclusion that there was a field of usefulness for the 'investment counselor.' While engaged in the bond business, I undertook such a piece of work in 1915 as an experiment; it operated very satisfactorily. Several years of transition followed, interrupted by activities in France in 1918-19. Since August 22, 1921, I have been engaged exclusively in this new field of 'investment counselor.' Have had the pleasure of watching it grow. It is now quite definitely established, with many engaged in it throughout the country—good, bad, and indifferent. I am now intensely interested in endeavoring to effect its development along fundamentally sound and proper lines. Twenty years or so is but a short time for development in any new field of endeavor; this one is still in its infancy and has much to learn. If properly prosecuted, its opportunities to serve society are enormous."

Clifford's book, The Evaluation of Corporate Securities, Including the Determination of Fair Market Value, was privately published in 1938. He has been a member of the Yale Alumni Board for several years, and he belongs to the California Club, the Midwick Country Club, and the Bolsa Chica Gun Club.

His son, Alfred, after taking his Ph.D. in mathematics at the California Institute of Technology in 1933 (he graduated from Yale in 1929, as previously reported), attended the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton from 1934 to 1937 and is now an instructor in mathematics at Massachusetts Tech. On October 6, 1933, he married Lucetta Rathbone Andrews; she graduated from Mount Holyoke in 1930 and received a certificate at the Yale School of Music in 1932. They have a daughter, Sara Dwight, born on August 22, 1935. Clifford's younger son, Henry, graduated from Yale in 1932 and has been associated in business with his father since 1933.

Edward Welch Clucas

Senior partner in E. W. Clucas & Company, brokers, 70 Pine Street, New York City.
Residence, Bedminster, N. J.

In addition to being senior partner in E. W. Clucas & Company, Clucas is vice-president and a director of the Brady Securities & Realty Company and a director of the Electrographic Corporation and the Federal Machine & Welder Company. He belongs to the Essex Fox Hounds and the Association of Harriers and Beagles (England) and also to the New York, Eastern, and Larchmont Yacht clubs and the Somerset Hills Golf Club.

Clucas has three children, the youngest of whom, Frederic Bull, was born on June 10, 1930, in New York City. He goes to the Somerset Hills School. Edward Welch Clucas, Jr., has attended Cheshire Academy, and Sara the Kent Place School.

James Hanson Coburn

Vice-president, The Travelers Indemnity Company,
700 Main Street, Hartford, Conn.
Residence, 169 North Beacon Street, Hartford.

Coburn has been with The Travelers Indemnity Company ever since graduation, serving as secretary from 1913 to 1930, when he was elected vice-president. He is a member of the Insurance Committee of the City of Hartford and belongs to St. John's Church (Episcopal) in West Hartford. His clubs are the Hartford and Hartford Golf and the Yale and Drug and Chemical clubs of New York.

Coburn's first wife died on October 19, 1932. On October 30, 1937, his second marriage, to Mrs. Mary Covington Evans Gwatkin, took place in Richmond, Va. James Sage Coburn, his oldest boy, received a B.A. at Yale in 1931 and an LL.B. in 1934 and is now an attorney in Hartford. Mary went to Wellesley, and Lillian is a member of the Class of 1940 at Mount Vernon Seminary. Coburn also has two stepchildren, Mary Gwatkin, who was born in Richmond on December 11, 1917, and James beG. Gwatkin, born December 28, 1922, also in Richmond; the boy is at Williston, and Mary teaches at the Junior School in Hartford, where Mary Coburn is secretary.

Francis Watkinson Cole

Member of the law firm of Robinson, Robinson & Cole, 750 Main Street, Hartford, Conn.
Residence, 125 Scarborough Street, Hartford.

Cole, who has been a partner in the above firm since 1913, has for the past three years also served as general counsel for The Travelers Insurance Company. He is a director of the Hartford Bank & Trust Company, as well as of several other companies. In 1933 he was elected to the Park Board of the City of Hartford and in 1936 was on the Flood Commission.

His two older sons, Francis, Jr., and William, have already graduated from Yale—in 1935 and 1936, respectively, and Charles, the youngest boy, is a member of the Class of 1940. Francis and Charles prepared for college at St. Paul's, while Bill went to the Thacher School. The latter completed his course in the Yale Law School in 1939. Francis, who is now with the Hartford-Empire Company, was married on February 12, 1938, at Ivoryton, Conn., to Evelyn Comstock, who attended the Wheeler School and Connecticut College.

Jean Valjean Cooke

Associate physician, St. Louis Children's Hospital, 500 South Kingshighway, St. Louis, Mo.; also professor of pediatrics at Washington University.

Residence, 157 Cornelia Avenue (Glendale), Kirkwood, Mo.

In 1937 Cooke was promoted to a full professorship at Washington University; he has been a member of its faculty since 1918 and since 1920 has also been on the staff of the St. Louis Children's Hospital. At the present time he is, in addition, chief of the children's clinic at the Washington University Dispensary, visiting pediatrician at the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, consulting pediatrician at the St. Louis County Hospital, and consulting epidemiologist for the St. Louis Board of Health. Cooke is vice-chairman of the pediatric section of the American Medical Association and a member of the American Pediatric Society, and he holds a commission as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Medical Reserve. In 1931 he served as a member of the committee on growth and development at the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection. In the past ten years some eighteen articles in scientific journals and chapters in textbooks dealing with research on infectious diseases and diseases of children have been added to his already imposing list of publications. He is also the co-author, with P. C. Jeans, of a volume entitled Prepubescent Syphilis, one of a series of monographs in Appleton's Clinical Pediatrics.

Belton Allyn Copp, Jr.

President, Hartwell Brothers, manufacturers of striking tool handles, Memphis, Tenn.

Residence, 1759 Overton Park Avenue, Memphis.

Copp, who has been with the above firm since 1904, became president in 1939 after serving as vice-president and general manager for a number of years. He is a member of the University clubs of Chicago and Memphis and holds office as president of the Memphis Yale Club. Copp says that he spends three or four months each summer in Groton, Conn.—his family home.

His older son, Belton Allyn, 4th, is a member of the Yale Class of 1942, while the younger boy, Daniel, graduated from Exeter last June and entered Yale with the Class of 1943. The other children are Barbara and Betsy.

Henry Carlton Courten

Physician, 9427-118th Street, Richmond Hill, N. Y.

Residence, 60 Greenway South, Forest Hills, N. Y.

Courten continues in the practice of medicine at Richmond Hill. He is attending orthopedic surgeon at the Queens General, Jamaica, Mary Immaculate, and Lutheran hospitals and consulting orthopedist to the Flushing, Rockaway Beach, and Evangelical Deaconess hospitals, all on Long Island.

Winthrop Murray Crane, Jr.

President, Crane & Company, Inc., paper manufacturers, Dalton, Mass.

Residence, 101 Main Street, Dalton.

Crane continues as president of the above company and is also a director of the Air Reduction Company, the American Bank

Note Company, the American Brake Shoe Company, the Otis Elevator Company, and the Agricultural National Bank of Pittsfield, Mass. He has held the position of treasurer of the Dalton Congregational Church for the past fifteen years and remarks that he participates in the "regular run of activities that develop in a small community." He is a member-at-large of the Yale Alumni Board and has served on its committee on honorary degrees.

His daughter, Barbara, attended Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield, Mass., and graduated from Oberlin College in 1930. She was married on March 21, 1931, to George Monaghan, a graduate of the University of Glasgow; their children, Patricia and William H., were born in Montreal. Both of Crane's sons, Winthrop, 3d, and Arthur, are in business with him. They prepared for college at Hotchkiss and each spent two years at Yale. Arthur was married on August 8, 1936, to Cooley Graves, Vassar '36, and they have a son, Christopher Murray, who was born in Dalton.

Walter Snell Cross

Christian Science practitioner, 470 Main Street, Fitchburg, Mass.

Residence, Cross Road, Lunenburg, Mass.

Cross has been engaged as a Christian Science practitioner since 1906. He now makes his home in Lunenburg, although he still has his office in Fitchburg.

Joseph Frederick Cullman, Jr.

Chairman of the board, Webster Eisenlohr, Inc., cigar manufacturers,
187 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Mailing address, 161 Front Street, New York City.

Residence, Stamford, Conn.

Cullman served as president of Webster Eisenlohr, Inc., from 1929 until this last March, when he became chairman of the board. He is also president of Cullman Brothers, Inc., and of Tobacco & Allied Stocks, Inc., and is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and of the board of trustees of the Mount Sinai Hospital. "I have been able to keep two steps ahead of the sheriff," he says. "Have done a little shooting, salmon fishing, and traveling; still able to play tennis, enjoy riding as well as lifting my right arm whenever an occasion arises—if none arises, can always invent one!"

His daughter, Frances Nathan, who attended the Sargent School, was married June 3, 1934, to Robert Allan Jacobs, an architect, who attended Choate and Amherst. They have a daughter, Frances Nathan, born February 14, 1937. Cullman's four sons, who prepared for college at Fessenden and Hotchkiss, have all attended Yale. Joseph Frederick, 3d, graduated in 1935 and is now with Webster Eisenlohr, Inc. His marriage to Susan Lehman, who attended Vassar, took place on August 2, 1935, and they have a daughter, born December 24, 1939. William Arthur graduated from Yale in 1937 and from the Harvard Business School in 1939. On July 1, 1937, he married Cecelia Borg Stein, a graduate of Wellesley, and they have a son, William Arthur, Jr., born June 26, 1939. Edgar Meyer Cullman, who is a member of the Class of 1940, was married on August 28, 1938, to Louise Bloomingdale, who studied at Sarah Lawrence College. The youngest boy, Lewis Benjamin, is in the Class of 1941.

Colman Curtiss

226 Pearl Street, Buffalo, N. Y.
Residence, 135 Hodge Avenue, Buffalo.

Curtiss has continued in the insurance business, now being connected with the firm of Deuel, Lapey & Company, Inc. He attends St. John's Church in Buffalo.

He has had six children, but three of them, Jane, Trumbull, and Alexander, are not living. Colman, Jr., who completed his course at Yale in 1932, works in the sales department of the Buffalo Bolt Company at Tonawanda, N. Y. He married Frances Rochester Wheeler on October 19, 1935, in Buffalo, and they have a daughter, Ann Ramsdell Curtiss, born July 22, 1937. Thomas prepared for college at Exeter and graduated from Yale in 1937; he is a salesman in New Jersey and Philadelphia for the Carborundum Company of Niagara Falls. Margaret went to Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn.

John Thomson Dallas

Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New Hampshire; business and residence address, Concord, N. H.

Dallas, who has been Bishop of New Hampshire since 1926, continues to preach quite regularly at Yale, as well as in various other places in New England. He is serving at present on the Advisory Committee of Dwight Hall. Since 1930 he has been a director of Union Theological Seminary, and in 1933 he was made a trustee of the University of New Hampshire, also receiving the honorary degree of LL.D. there that year. He belongs to the Yale Club of New York.

Thomas Latham Davis

President, First National Bank of Omaha, Omaha, Nebr.
Residence, 3628 Jackson Street, Omaha.

Davis was vice-president of the First National Bank of Omaha from 1927 to 1934 and since then has served as its president. He is also president of the Omaha Clearing House, a director of the Omaha Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, and a trustee of the Clarkson Hospital in Omaha. He belongs to a few local clubs and is a vestryman of Trinity Episcopal Cathedral.

His son, John Frederick, who graduated from The Hill School in 1930 and attended Yale as a member of the Class of 1934, is an assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Omaha. He was married on December 16, 1933, to Elaine Lathrop, who attended Bennett Junior College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hiram Lathrop ['05] and a granddaughter of Gardiner Lathrop, '69. Davis' daughter, Elizabeth Ann, graduated from Bennett Junior College in 1936.

Edward LeRoy Dennis

Partner in Dennis & Dennis, lawyers, Scotland, Conn.

"I still own and live on my farm," Dennis writes, "but the unpleasantness of 1929, becoming progressively more unpleasant ever since, has made it impossible for me to continue to support any livestock. Hence I live on a bare farm, plug along at the law, and still hope for the return of the good old days when a farmer could sink deeper and deeper into insolvency without anybody making a fuss about it."

From 1929 to 1935 Dennis was a representative from Scotland in the Connecticut Legislature, serving as a member of the judiciary committee, and since then he has been judge of the Juvenile Court for Windham County. His daughter, Elizabeth Brayton, received a B.A. at the University of Connecticut in 1936 and an LL.B. at the Hartford College of Law in 1939. She is now practicing law with her father under the firm name of Dennis & Dennis.

Francis Talmage Dodge

President, Dodge & Olcott Company, manufacturers of essential oils and aromatic chemicals, 180 Varick Street, New York City.

Residence, Old Bedford Road, Greenwich, Conn.

Dodge has been with the above company since graduation, becoming president in 1926. He is a member of the Downtown Association, the Yale Club of New York City, and the Manursing Island Club of Rye, N. Y. He has served as chairman of the board of directors of the Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, in New York City.

His first wife's death occurred on October 11, 1930. Dodge was married again on August 5, 1932, in New York City, to Mrs. Ellen Putnam Andrews Blodget, of Boston. His daughter, Virginia

Mary, studied at Miss Chapin's School in New York and later at Miss Hall's in Pittsfield and La Petite École Florentine in Florence.

Everett Dominick

Statistician with the Stock Exchange firm of Evans, Stillman & Company, 14 Wall Street, New York City.
Residence, Khakum Wood, Greenwich, Conn.

Dominick reports that he is still engaged in statistical work with Evans, Stillman & Company. He is a member of the University Club of New York City and lives in Greenwich with his wife and two sons, Robert and Alexander.

Michael Joseph Donahue

Golf instructor, Louisiana State University, University, La.
Residence, 2930 Florida Street, Baton Rouge, La.

"I am now engaged in teaching young people a form of recreation that will be of use to them the rest of their lives," Donahue reports. He has been back at L.S.U. since 1937, after having spent the preceding eight years as athletic director at Spring Hill College. Donahue is an honorary life member of the National Association of Football Coaches.

His older daughter, Mary Eileen, and her husband, Alton Herbert, attended L.S.U.; they have two children, Eileen, born April 25, 1936, and Alton, Jr., born September 12, 1938. Donahue's twin sons, John Donald and Julian Boudreau, both went to Spring Hill College; Donald, who later studied at L.S.U., is with the Gulf Refinery Company, while Julian works for Standard Oil. Donald married Gena Coletta, and they have a son, John Donald, Jr., born June 3, 1937, and a daughter, Mary Gena, born February 2, 1939. Rosalie Mary Donahue, Donahue's younger daughter, attended St. Joseph's Academy and L.S.U.; she married R. G. Robinson, Jr., and has a son, Bobby, 2d, who was born March 24, 1936. The youngest boy, Michael Joseph, Jr., attended Spring Hill College and L.S.U. and is now at L.S.U. Medical Center.

Howard Drummond

Senior partner in Drummond & Sierck, brokers,
50 Broadway, New York City.
Residence, Bay Shore, Long Island.

Drummond temporarily retired from active business in the winter of 1936, but in November, 1938, became senior partner in the firm of Drummond & Sierck, members of the New York Stock Exchange. He has not sent any further information about himself.

Willard Higley Durham

Professor of English, University of California, 406 Wheeler Hall, University of California, Berkeley, Calif.
Residence, 620 Woodmont Avenue, Berkeley.

Durham continues as chairman of the Department of English at the University of California. He is unmarried.

Herbert William Eales

Chief electrical engineer, Public Utility Engineering & Service Corporation, 231 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.
Residence, 3202 Sheridan Road, Chicago.

Eales continues as chief electrical engineer with the Public Utility Engineering & Service Corporation in Chicago, a service organization for public utility properties of the Standard Gas & Electric Corporation. He has written several articles on technical subjects and in 1936 presented a brief, representing the entire electric power industry and outlining the needs of the industry for radio wave allocations to the Federal Communications Commission. He is a member of the Yale Club of Chicago.

“I made my first airplane flight in a transport plane several years ago in a family emergency,” he writes, “and have since become a regular customer of air lines. Thought golf was a ‘sissy’ game when at college, but have learned that improvements in mind and body are possible from the sport and have been an ardent devotee for the past twenty years."

Eales' daughter, Laura Louise, graduated from the Chicago Latin School for Girls in 1930 and from Wellesley College in 1934. She was married on September 3, 1938, to Norman K. Parsells (B.A. Yale 1929, LL.B. 1932), who is now practicing law in Bridgeport, Conn., as a partner in Marsh, Stoddard & Day.

Edward Chappell Ely

Address, 1 West 54th Street, New York City.

Ely, who was a real estate broker, has retired from business, and says that his occupation is now "travel and soliloquy." He adds, "My present hobby is slow travel," and quotes from Liu Yutang as follows: "The essence of travel is to have no duties, no mail, no inquisitive neighbors, no receiving delegations, and no destination! A good traveler is one who does not know where he is going to and a perfect traveler does not know where he came from." Ely is a member of the Thames Yacht Club of New London and of the Charleston (S. C.) Club. He and his wife have been divorced.

Charles Alexander Esty

President, Carter-Rice & Company Corporation, paper merchants, 273 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

Residence, 20 Vernon Street, Framingham Center, Mass.

In 1933 Esty became president of the above company, having previously served as managing director. "The ten years of business since 1929 have been punctuated with several trips to the Pacific Coast," he explains. "Have made it a point to keep up contacts with many of those of 1904 residing there, which has been decidedly pleasant. Have kept in touch with New Haven recently through my sons, Frederick, ex-'38, and Charles, 1942. Although still living in the same red house on the Common in Framingham Center, my wife and I find it larger than it used to be before the children had grown to maturity and pretty largely shifted for themselves. We have the itch to build something after our own ideas, where unpretentiously but comfortably we can tuck in for the rest of the journey. It will have ample provision for any member of 1904."

Esty has served as a director of the Boston Paper Trade Association and also as president, and he has been a director of the New England Paper Merchants Association and the National Paper Trade Association. In 1934 he was appointed a member of the National Code Authority of the Paper Trade of the United States and chairman of the New England, Central, and Northern New York Regional Committee. He is a member of the Boston and Framingham Chambers of Commerce and is serving at present as chairman of the standing committee of Plymouth Congregational Church in Framingham and as a director of the American Congregational Association. He was formerly a governor of the Yale Publishing Association, and he belongs to the Graduates Club in New Haven and the Boston Yale Club, as well as to the other clubs mentioned in the last Class Record.

Esty's oldest daughter, Margaret, who attended the Beacon Country Day School and Abbot Academy, married Robert W. Seamans, Harvard ex-'25, and they have a son, John Howe, born July 10, 1937. Julia, the second daughter, is a graduate of Mount Holyoke. After leaving Yale, Frederick went to the New England School of Aviation, where he graduated in 1938. He prepared for college at Taft, and Charles prepared at Andover. Priscilla graduated from the Stoneleigh Prospect Hill School in 1937 and is now at the Training School for Nurses at the Children's Hospital in Boston.

Stevenson Hume Evans

Business address, 149 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Evans' brief reply to our questionnaire reads as follows: "No change since last report—same residence, same office address, no happenings of any interest."

Joseph Alexander Falvey

In the advertising surveys and research business, 50 Claremont Avenue, Holyoke, Mass.
Residence, 50 Claremont Avenue, Holyoke.

Falvey continues in the advertising surveys and research business in Holyoke. He is a member of the Yale Club of Western Massachusetts.

His oldest son, Walter Alexander, the Class Boy, is a radio engineer. The second boy, Donald Joseph, who graduated from Middlebury College in 1933 and attended the Yale Forestry School with the Class of 1935, is a forester. His marriage to Helen R. Sypher took place on March 27, 1937. Falvey's third son, Malcolm Pomeroy, is a building foreman, and Joseph Alexander, Jr., the youngest child, is in high school. Falvey's older daughter, Marjorie Elizabeth, attended the Westfield (Mass.) State Teachers' College. She was married to Edward T. Haviland on July 5, 1935. His younger daughter, Muriel Amy, is a dietitian.

Dwight Thompson Farnham

On the staff of the executive vice-president, General Foods Corporation, 250 Park Avenue, New York City.
Residence, "Green Orchard," Compo Road, Westport, Conn.

Farnham continued as manager of the industrial department of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company until 1933 and was later for a time associated as financial counsel with the Industrial Relations Counselors. Since 1936 he has been with General Foods. The American Management Association published his The Effect of Currency Inflation in 1933, and A Place in the Country (Funk & Wagnalls) appeared in 1936. Farnham also contributed an article, "Administrative Control," to the Yale Scientific Magazine in 1932. Three new books by Mrs. Farnham have been published in recent years—Wild Beauty in 1930, Lost Laughter in 1933, and Great Riches in 1934.

Farnham belongs to the New York Yale Club. He lists his recreations as follows: "Badminton, swimming, dancing, wintering at Casa Marina, Key West, gardening, writing fiction, lunching with Bob Smithley, dog raising (springers), and eating and drinking (moderately)."

Austin Woodbridge Follett

General manager, Canadian Sturdy Chain Company, jewelry manufacturers, Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada.

Residence, New Sherbrooke House, Sherbrooke.

Follett, who has been general manager of the Canadian Sturdy Chain Company since 1938, says, "Although still a U.S.A. citizen, I am a so-called settler in Canada. It is a wonderful country. In coming here, however, I have cut myself off from all former associations so that it has been a case of new friends and new country. My experience here, although happy and remunerative, has been too brief for me to say much more."

Follett and his first wife were divorced some time ago, and he subsequently married Mrs. Katherine L. Loring Chisholm. He has a daughter by his first marriage, Sylvia Barclay Follett, and also two stepchildren.

Henry Lyman Foote

Address, Gates Mills, Ohio.

Foote writes as follows: "I operated a manufacturers' sales agency from 1917 to 1932, specializing in suburban water supply systems, swimming pool equipment, and general water rectification work. Since 1932 I have literally been 'sawing wood' (not W.P.A.), gardening, raising enough vegetables for our own use, and, in addition, shoveling snow on our little wooded place at Gates Mills, just outside of Cleveland. It would appear that I have no outside hobby, but I find outdoor life a very interesting one. Twenty acres of woods and a garden about the size of a city lot give a fellow enough to do to keep his interest in life very much alive, with good healthful exercise thrown in for good measure. I would rather hack at a tree than play golf; anyway, would have difficulty with golf as bifocals are not so good for keeping the eye on the ball. Usually spend a short summer holiday in Canada in the Muskoka Lake region."

Foote is a member of the Church of the Covenant (Presbyterian) in Cleveland—"for many years a deacon; served for a number of years as chairman of the music committee; retired in favor of the younger generation."

Horatio Ford

Assistant vice-president, The Cleveland Trust Company, 916 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Residence, Mayfield and Richmond Roads, South Euclid, Ohio.

Until 1934 Ford continued to practice law as a partner in the firm of Snyder, Henry, Thomsen, Ford & Seagrave, but since then he has been connected with The Cleveland Trust Company. His work is in connection with the special loans department, of which he is manager. At present he is also vice-president and secretary of the Mayfair Realty Company and vice-president of the Federal Improvement Company. Until a few years ago he was also president of the Williamson Securities Company.

For many years Ford has been a trustee of the Euclid Avenue Congregational Church, serving several terms as president, and in 1939 he issued a monograph on its endowment. He is a trustee of the Corporation for the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches of America, and at one time he served as a trustee of the Congregational Board of Ministerial Relief. In 1932 he was chairman of the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration in Cleveland, and at present he is president of the New England Society of Cleveland. He was formerly president of the trustees of Schaufler College of Religious and Social Work, and he is still taking an active part in the Boy Scouts, of whose local council he was president from 1910 to 1920. He is at present a member of the National Council, and until a year ago he served on the executive committee of the Fourth Region. Ford belongs to the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and the Union Club of that city and also to the Sons of the American Revolution. A few years ago he was secretary of the local Yale Club.

“I have uniformly good health, full use of my faculties, good teeth, and always weigh 150 pounds,” he declares. “Whitford Woods, forty miles east of Cleveland, is my eleven-year-old forestry project and shooting preserve—maple syrup crop, 1939, 536 gallons. I am Master and huntsman of the only formal beagle pack in Ohio, the Whitford Beagles, twelve couple of hounds, hunting weekly from October to April. We are registered in the National Beagle Club and hunt cotton-tails and jack-rabbits.”

Horatio Clark Ford, 2d, the oldest of his six children, is vice-president of the Reliable Spring & Wire Form Company of Cleveland. Andrew, the second boy, who graduated from Yale in 1934, is doing publicity work with General Motors in New York; he was married on June 29, 1935, in Scarsdale, N. Y., to Virginia Chisholm, who had attended the National Cathedral School in Washington, and they have a son, Andrew Chisholm, who was born in Hartsdale, N. Y., September 28, 1936. The third boy, Thomas Windsor, graduated from Western Reserve in 1938, and Jonathan took his B.A. at Washington and Lee that same year and is now working in the fountain sales department of the Coca Cola Company in Chicago. Jonathan's marriage to Barbara Mary Hotaling took place December 22, 1939. Ford's daughter, Almira, is a member of the Class of 1940 at Vassar, and the youngest child, Baldwin, is at the University School in Cleveland.

Denman Fleming Fox

Parish priest, Church of Our Lady of Victories, Hightown, Liverpool, England.

In September, 1939, it was reported that Fox had been appointed chaplain to a casualty clearing station in France and expected to be sent to the front shortly with an English regiment. A note (postmarked December 14, 1939) was subsequently received from Fox indicating that he was then serving with the British Expeditionary Forces in France. Since 1929 he had been at Our Lady of Victories in Hightown as parish priest. He had also been chief archdiocesan inspector of schools for Liverpool, chaplain of the Boy Scouts and of Bishop's Court, director of the Catholic Social Guild, a public lecturer for the Workers' Educational Association, and manager of St. George's Industrial School.

"Several of my lectures on international relations and social questions have been published in daily and weekly papers," he wrote on his questionnaire. "Listened to the broadcasts of all Yale football games from the Bowl, long after dark, and for the most part they were sad affairs, but it was good to hear the cheers and singing. There is a Princeton man who visits me every year and keeps me more or less informed as to what is doing."

Howard Atwood Franklin

Residence, 446 Huntington Road, Stratford, Conn.

No recent information has come from Franklin, but it is our understanding that he is still living in Stratford.

Thomas Robert Gaines

Educational director, Southern California Telephone Company, 740 South Olive Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Residence, 786 South Madison Avenue, Pasadena, Calif.

Gaines, who has held the above position since 1927, says that his chief outside interest is the study of the plant life of the Southwest and acting as one of the scoutmasters of the troop of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church. He is an elder in that church and has served also as a member of the Board of Church Extension of the Los Angeles Presbytery and as chairman of the Spanish-speaking Ward Committee in charge of twelve Mexican churches of the Presbytery. He formerly held office as president of the Yale Club of Southern California and at present is serving as president of its Scholarship Foundation.

His older daughter, Martha, graduated from Pomona in 1936 and on July 25 of that year was married to Wallace Theodore Stoebe, Pomona '33; their son, Thomas Gaines, was born at Alta Lama, Calif., on April 26, 1939. Florence, the younger girl, will graduate from the University of California at Berkeley in 1940.

Joseph William Gallagher

Engineer with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company,
311 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Residence, 2216 Forestview Road, Evanston, Ill.

Gallagher reports that he is an engineer for the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in Chicago, but does not add anything more to his questionnaire.

Henry Wood Gardner

Residence, Little Compton, R. I.

Gardner, who retired back in 1917, writes as follows: "For the past five years I have lived from April to November alone, except for occasional guests, in a small cabin near the ocean. I do my own cooking and housework and put in the rest of the time on gardening, road-making and grading, building stone walls, terraces, etc., carpentry, house-painting, much reading, and some writing. From June to September add swimming, sailing, bridge, and parties. I get about on a bicycle and am probably the only man in the Class who has never owned a car.

"Alternate winters I stay around New England and New York or go South. I keep some track of the theatres and do some amateur acting. Though broke and jobless, I am never at loose ends."

Harry Glicksman

Junior dean of the College of Letters and Science, lecturer in English, and professor in the Department of Letters and Science Administration, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

Residence, 190 North Prospect Avenue, Madison.

In a letter dated August 18, 1939, Glicksman said that with his marriage in 1934 to Margaret Pryor, who was assistant professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, "eleven years of widowerhood ended for him in a marvelous union enlivened and embellished in many ways: in the building of a new home, in two summer trips to radiant California and the glorious Canadian Rockies, in the clarifying of my vintage-of-1903 economic philosophy under my wife's tutelage, and in my almost sudden awakening, under her spell, to the knowledge that Democrats were not born with smallpox. (She was brought up in Texas.)"

He adds: "From the personal and domestic scene I pass to the impersonal: the great world which we cannot, any of us, ignore. Please don't ask me to discourse on that theme. Indeed, my silent disregard of your recent letters arose in the main from my deep-lying reluctance to review the past and compare it with the present. At this moment I am thinking how shallow and stupid were the social hopes on which we boys were fed at Yale thirty-five years ago; how smug the pride in the new achievements; how poorly our teachers prepared us for the tragedy of 1914 and the mockery of 1929 and the ensuing years. Even the wise and noble administrations of religion were mutilated with ritualism and dialectics. It is little wonder, I often reflect, that humanity has taken its strong hypo shot of totalitarian delusion! But if we shall not carry on, then who shall?"

Glicksman's daughter, Marjorie Lena, who received a Ph.D. at Radcliffe in 1935, has been an instructor in philosophy at the University of Chicago since 1937. She was married in December, 1938, to Davis Grene; he is a graduate of the University of Dublin and is now an instructor in Greek and the humanities at the University of Chicago.

Morgan Goetchius

Partner in Fahnestock & Company, brokers,
1775 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, "Gladacres," Smithtown Branch, Long Island.

Goetchius has been a branch manager of his firm for a number of years. He says that at the present time he holds various trustee-ships and club governorships. "General and personal events during the past ten years," he adds, "have been sufficiently sobering for me to place a proper value on the first four lines of Bright College Years. My head may be bald, bloody, and bowed, but my unpleasant sense of humor is undented."

Goetchius belongs to the Society of Colonial Wars, the Smithtown Fife and Drum Corps, and the Marching and Chowder clubs. His older daughter, Mary Theresa, graduated from the Oldfields School in 1935; on February 3, 1939, she was married at Smithtown Branch to Charles D. Plumb, who attended Cornell. Goetchius' younger daughter, Sarah Kellogg, attends a private school at St. James, Long Island.

Philip Goodell

Lawyer, 484 Bloomfield Avenue, Montclair, N. J.
Residence, 267 Midland Avenue, Montclair.

Goodell has continued in the practice of law in Montclair, where he has a general practice but mainly in connection with estates and real estate. He is a manager of the Montclair Savings Bank and a director of the Bank of Montclair and the Watchung Title & Mortgage Guaranty Company, and since 1932 he has been a member of the Montclair Board of Education. He is on the advisory boards of several charitable institutions and at present is serving as chairman of the scholarship committee of the Yale Alumni Association of Montclair and Vicinity and as the delegate from that organization to the Alumni Board. Goodell belongs to the Montclair Golf Club and to the Masonic order.

His older daughter, Marjorie, graduated from the Emma Willard School in 1930 and from Vassar in 1934 and received an M.A. at Columbia in 1939; her marriage to John Abendroth Bogart, Yale '34, took place on April 17, 1937. The younger girl, Dorothy, went to Pine Manor. Philip, Jr., was killed in an automobile accident on October 14, 1934; he graduated from Andover in 1931 and at the time of his death was a member of the Yale Class of 1935.

Alexander Gordon

Lawyer, 90 Broad Street, New York City.
Residence, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Gordon reports that he is still practicing law in New York City and that he has never married.

Henry Black Gould

Salesman, Elliott Addressing Machine Company, 117 Leonard Street, New York City.
Residence, 154 Radford Street, Yonkers, N. Y.

From 1930 to 1936 Gould was New York agent for the Schwab Safe Company and then became a salesman for the Elliott Addressing Machine Company. He says, "I have led a very quiet life for the past ten years weathering the depression, the recession, and the post-recession and trying to keep young enough to be a pal to my youngest boy. My principal hobbies have been work in Veteran activities and Boy Scouts, with an occasional game of contract, as well as doing what little I can to see that the New Deal and its adherents get a kick in the pants in 1940."

Gould belongs to St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Yonkers. Since 1932 he has been on the executive committee of the National Save-a-Life League. He continues as deputy commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America in Yonkers and is a member of the Psi Upsilon Club of New York, the New York Commandery, Military Order of Foreign Wars, and the Veterans' Association.

His oldest son, Henry Black, Jr., is in the merchant marine, on the S.S. Manhattan of the U. S. Lines. Walter graduated in 1936 from New York University, where he held a scholarship in research chemistry and was a member of the Glee Club and of Psi Upsilon. He is now in charge of the micro-photography department of the Boyce Thompson Institute for plant research in Yonkers. The youngest boy, Robert Chester Gould, attends Public School 25 in Yonkers.

Albert Woodruff Gray

Residence, 500 Fort Washington Avenue, New York City.

Word has recently been received that Gray is now living at the above address. He was formerly engaged in the practice of law in New York City, but it is our understanding that he has not had an office there for several years.

Henry Little Griggs

Vice-president and sales director, The Bristol Company, manufacturers of recording instruments, etc., Waterbury, Conn.

Residence, 70 Fiske Street, Waterbury.

Griggs' connection with The Bristol Company began in 1906. At the time of our Twenty-fifth Reunion he held the position of general sales manager, and in 1930 he was made vice-president and a director of the company, becoming sales director five years later. Since 1934 he has also been vice-president of The Bristol Company of Canada, Ltd. He is at present serving a second term as a deacon of the First Congregational Church in Waterbury, and he belongs to the Waterbury Club and to the Yale Club of New York.

A third son, Thomas Stearns, was born in Waterbury on April 19, 1936. As to the two older boys, Griggs says: "Harry, Jr., now fourteen, is attending Taft for the second year as a day pupil, and hopes to graduate from Yale in 1946. Teddy, now eleven, is at the McTernan School at Waterbury and his Class at Yale should be 1950. Tommy, three and a half, has not yet entered school or kindergarten, but is doing a very great deal of teaching every day and educating his father on the fact that the first and most important thing in life is getting acquainted with your own children. Lou Gehrig was mistaken when he said he was 'the luckiest man in the world.' Instead, I am because of having our three boys."

Herman Charles Groman

Physician and surgeon; address, 7 Wildwood Road, Hammond, Ind.

Groman has been engaged in practice as a physician and surgeon in Hammond since his graduation from the Rush Medical School in 1907. He has three children: William, Dorothy, and Ruth. The older girl attended Radcliffe as a member of the Class of 1931.

Harry Thomas Hamilton

Assistant to the president of The New York Trust Company,
100 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, 24 Ridge Road, Summit, N. J.

Hamilton has held the above position since 1928. Since 1936 he has been a director of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and last year he held office as president of the Mining and Metallurgical Society of America. From 1930 to 1935 he was vice-president of the Republican Club of Summit, and from 1928 to 1933 he served on the Summit Common Council and as chairman of its finance committee. He belongs to the Mining, Yale, and City Midday clubs in New York and the Canoe Brook Country Club of Summit, and for the past two years he has been president of the Summit Playhouse Association.

His oldest son, Harry Thomas, Jr., prepared for college at Exeter and graduated from Yale in 1938; he is with the advertising firm of Young & Rubicam in New York. His daughter, Ruth, attended the Holmquist School and Holmby College. Lindsay, the second boy, entered Yale from Exeter last fall. The other children are Crawford Buckland and Richard.

Residence, 204 Fairview Avenue, Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn.

The name of Hart's firm has now been changed to Bleakley, Platt & Walker. "There is little that I can add to my history since 1929," he says. "It is probably debatable whether I can even report progress. We still live in Stamford, Conn., where I was born. In 1930, fearful lest real estate prices might drop, we hurriedly bought a home near the shore at Shippan Point, Stamford, at what might aptly be termed the top of the market. There we all still live, adjacent to the water and mostly cool in summertime. I still commute to New York daily, Sundays and holidays excepted, where I am still a partner in the same law firm, with plenty of good Yale partners. Since giving up golf several years ago, my extra-curricular activities consist of train bridge and week-end swimming in the Yacht Club Pool, where I am learning the crawl. I can now make the fifteen yards across, and look forward before our Quadragesimal to have accomplished the thirty-five yards of length."

Hart is a member of the vestry of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church in Stamford, is a trustee of the Heckscher Foundation for Children, and belongs to the Yale Club of New York City, the Downtown Association, and the Stamford Yacht Club. His older daughter, Carol Haws, graduated from the Low-Heywood School in Stamford in 1933 and from Smith College in 1937. The younger girl, Lois Haws, is now at Low-Heywood, and his son, William Dickinson, Jr., who prepared for college at Andover, is a member of the Class of 1940 at Yale.

Everett Smith Hartwell

Vice-president, Industrial Trust Company, Providence, R. I.
Residence, 77 Keene Street, Providence.

Hartwell has been with the Industrial Trust Company since 1921, becoming vice-president in 1927, and he is a director of the Mechanics National Bank, the Providence Gas Company, and the Lorraine Manufacturing Company, all of Providence, the Providence Worcester Railroad, the American Bleached Goods Company of New York City, and the Ponemah Mills of Taftville, Conn. He has been treasurer of the Butler Hospital since 1936 and during 1931-32 served as president of the Providence Community Fund. He has continued to take an active part in the affairs of the Yale Association in Rhode Island, a few years ago holding office as president. He belongs to the Agawam Hunt, Hope, and Providence Art clubs, the Yale Club of New York, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and the Yankee Division of the Veterans' Association and is a member of the Central Baptist Church of Providence.

Arthur Havemeyer

Residence, Ayer Road, Groton, Mass.

"I have not been working for a year and a half after a serious illness, but hope to resume active work this summer," said Havemeyer when he sent in his report for our book last May. Prior to his present illness, he was president of the Package Paper Company of Holyoke, Mass. His older daughter, Martha, has attended several schools in New York and Munich, and Margaret has studied at Smith College and the University of Arizona. Havemeyer's son, William, is a member of the Yale Class of 1942; his preparatory education was received at the Arizona Desert School, the Evans School, and Andover.

Samuel Burdett Hemingway

Professor of English and Master of Berkeley College, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

Residence, Berkeley College.

Hemingway has been a member of the Yale faculty since 1908. In 1932 he was promoted from assistant professor of English to a full professorship, and for some years he served as chairman of the Department of English. In May, 1937, he was appointed Master of Berkeley College, succeeding Professor Charles Seymour, who had been elected President of the University in February. Hemingway had been serving as Acting Master during the preceding three months. In 1936 his Variorum Edition of Shakespere's Henry IV, Part I, in the Furness Variorum series, was published by Lippincott & Company. Within the past few years Hemingway has been elected an honorary member of Berzelius and the Aurelian Honor Society. He belongs to Trinity Episcopal Church in New Haven.

Raymond Thompson Hill

Associate professor of French, Yale University,
New Haven, Conn.

Residence, 439 Calhoun College, Yale University.

Hill, who has been an associate professor of French at Yale since 1927, says, "There is little to add. I spent last summer in Portugal and the Azores. The summer of 1937 I passed in the Province of Quebec. In 1936 I had my vacation in England and Wales and in 1938 in Spain, the year before the war broke out."

He is a fellow of Calhoun College. His recent publications include Advanced French Composition (with Horatio Smith), published by Henry Holt & Company of New York in 1934, and Two Old French Poems on Saint Thibaut, published in 1936 by the Yale University Press. Hill is a member of the Anglo-Norman Text Society, the Société des Anciens Textes of Paris, and the Graduates Club of New Haven, and he is a vestryman of Christ Church.

John Ralph Howe

Secretary and assistant treasurer, Uncasville Manufacturing Company, Norwich, Conn.

Residence, 11 Joseph Perkins Road, Norwich
(mailing address, Box 43).

When our last Class record was published, Howe was with Estabrook & Company, but this connection was subsequently given up, and he is now devoting himself mainly to the affairs of the Uncasville Manufacturing Company, of which he has been secretary, assistant treasurer, and a director since 1919. The latter company, which was formerly in the cotton manufacturing business, has for some years been a personal holding corporation. Howe is a trustee and auditor of the Norwich Savings Society and has recently resigned from the finance committee of the Park Congregational Church after serving for many years. He is a member of the University Club of New York. The only thing in the way of publications he mentions is a letter which Og Reid published in the Tribune and which was included in the 1939 issue of We, the People (The Year Book of Public Opinion).

"All of my children were in school for one year in Lausanne, Switzerland, and for one year in Paris," he explained when he filled out his questionnaire last August. "My two older girls [Patricia and Margaret] graduated from Miss Porter's School in Farmington, and my youngest daughter, Edith, goes to Farmington this fall. Patricia graduated from Parsons in New York (now the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts) and is now a free-lance advertising artist in New York." Mr. and Mrs. Howe were divorced in 1933.

Henry Strong Huntington

Director of The Burgoyne Trail, sun-bathing camp, Otis, Mass.
Residence, Otis.

Huntington has been the head of The Burgoyne Trail, a sun-bathing camp, since 1933 and is also editor of Sunshine and Health, in which several of his articles have been published. He says he is "planning to spend the next few winters in Montpellier, France, where my wife is studying at the university, in the graduate department."

Huntington and his first wife were divorced in November, 1934, and on December 8, 1935, he married Catherine Franzen Fox. His oldest son, Henry Strong, 3d, prepared for college at the Scarborough School, graduated from Haverford College in 1936, and received an M.A. at the University of Michigan in 1938. He is now with the actuarial department of the Lincoln Life Insurance Company in Fort Wayne, Ind. His second son, Thomas Foster, graduated from the Asheville School in 1938 and is a member of the Class of 1942 at Princeton, while David is at Taft. Huntington also has two daughters, Alice Loring, who is at Miss Fine's School in Princeton, N. J., and Mary Morrell, who was born in 1927; another daughter, Jane MacClelland, was born in 1917 and died two years later.

Ernest Hamilton Hurd

Residence, 90 Hillside Road, Elizabeth, N. J.

Our plaintive appeals to Hurd for information for our book finally brought a note (dated October 23, 1939) reading, "I can truthfully say that there hasn't been any change I would have inserted in the new questionnaire."

Rodney Sheldon Jarvis

Residence, Wheelbarrow Hill Farm, Great Barrington, Mass.

Jarvis, who retired from business in February, 1930, had previously been with White, Weld & Company. He belongs to the Yale Club of New York. His twin daughters, Margery and Katharine, went to Miss Porter's School in Farmington and Les Fau-gères in Lausanne. Margery's marriage to William H. Ferris took place on October 24, 1930; they were divorced in 1937. She has two children, both of whom were born in Darien, Conn., Rodney Jarvis on February 18, 1933, and Cynthia Ann on July 11, 1934.

Newell Jennings

Associate justice of the Connecticut Supreme Court.

Residence, 4 Oakland Street, Bristol, Conn.

"After fifteen years of trial work, I am enjoying the change involved in the Appellate Court," writes Jennings. "Most of my spare time is taken up with No. 17 supra [chairman, Bristol Board of Education; member of the Bristol Board of Library Directors; vice-president of the Bristol Boy Scout Council] and trips with my wife and family. My association with Joy and Meriman, 1904, and Reid, Barnes, Treadway, and Ingraham, 1910, and their families, is close and pleasant. I took hold of a golf club once, but it gave me a dirty look and I returned forthwith to my favorite implement of sport—the pick and shovel.”

In 1938 Jennings was made chairman of the Commission for Reform of Minor Courts in Connecticut and of the Commission on Probation of the Connecticut Prison Association. He is a director of the Bristol Savings Bank and is president of the Yale Law School Class of 1907.

His older daughter, Elizabeth Newell, who graduated from Vassar in 1932, was married on August 13, 1932, to Sherwood L. Anderson, Jr., Lafayette '26, who is manager of the Allentown (Pa.) office of Smith, Barney & Company. They have three children: Hilda Peck, born March 27, 1933, Sherwood L., 3d, born July 17, 1934, and Rachel Jennings, born January 20, 1936. Jennings' son, Miles Peck, graduated from Deerfield in 1931 and from Yale in 1935 and is with the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Company. His youngest daughter, Dorothy Seymour, graduated from Vassar in 1937, took a course at the Katharine Gibbs Secretarial School the following year, and is now engaged in secretarial work in New York City.

Percy Hall Jennings

President, Vitaglass Corporation, 220 5th Avenue,
New York City.

Residence, Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island.

Since September, 1926, Jennings has been president of the Vitaglass Corporation, and at present he is also a director of the International Paper Company, the General Reinsurance Corporation, and the North Star Reinsurance Corporation. He is a trustee of the Provident Loan Society and the Community Service Society of New York City and treasurer and a trustee of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. He belongs to the New York Yale Club.

His older son, Percy Hall, Jr., graduated from Yale in 1930 and later from the Harvard Medical School. He and his wife, who was Dr. Jean Lovett, are both children's doctors; their marriage took place on September 15, 1938. Jennings' two oldest daughters, Joanna and Elizabeth, went to Vassar, and Laura, the youngest girl attended Bennington. Frederic went to Princeton. Joanna was married on September 7, 1932, to Dr. D. Rodney Hadden, who is practicing as a gynecologist in Berkeley, Calif.; they have two children, Joanna R. and D. Rodney, Jr. Betsy was married to Francis A. Truslow, Yale '28, on November 17, 1930, and they have two sons, Francis A., Jr., and Frederic Jennings.

Charles Sumner Joy

Assistant treasurer, New Departure Division, General Motors Corporation, 269 North Main Street, Bristol, Conn.
Residence, 196 Woodland Street, Bristol.

Joy, whose connection with the above company dates from 1909, writes as follows: "The quinquennial summation of the activities and proclivities of C. Joy calls for considerable extenuation. By this time it is clearly demonstrable that an initial error was committed in the selection of the architect of his own fortune. To him life is still an infinite source of innocent merriment and if you don't stop him, he will show you a photograph and say, 'Look, that is my lovely red-headed granddaughter.' "

His daughters, Margaret and Emily, both graduated from Smith in 1933. Benjamin prepared for college at the Governor Dummer Academy and is now a member of the Dartmouth Class of 1942. On June 19, 1937, Margaret married Oliver M. Willard, of San Francisco, who has a B.A. from Stanford and a Ph.D. from Harvard. Emily's marriage to Harold Warren Cobb took place on August 28, 1937, and their daughter, Anne Joy, was born on March 1, 1939, in Boston. Emily's husband received his preparatory education at Deerfield Academy and took his B.A. at Amherst in 1937 and his M.A. at Harvard in 1938.

Chauncey Clark Kennedy

Rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, New Haven, Conn.
Residence, 86 Broadway, New Haven.

In 1934, after serving for some years as secretary of the Catholic Congress of the Episcopal Church, Kennedy became rector of Christ Church in New Haven. His son, David Andrew Kennedy, who received his preparatory education at the Kent School, graduated from Yale in 1937 and is now a master at the Westminster School. Kennedy's adopted son, Alexander Kennedy, graduated from the Raymond Riordon School in 1929. He enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps about a year ago and is now attached to the 50th Observation Squadron in Hawaii.

Allen Humphreys Kerr

Lawyer, 907 Commonwealth Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Residence, 405 Morewood Avenue, Pittsburgh.

Kerr has been practicing law in Pittsburgh since 1907. He has two daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Katharine McCague.

Walter Irving King

Associate, Ganse-King Tax Service, specialists in exemptions for gifts, trusts, insurance, and estates, 80 Federal Street, Boston, Mass.
Residence, Fountain Street, Ashland, Mass. (mailing address, Box 265, Framingham, Mass.).

King resigned as vice-president of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company in 1932 to become associated with Franklin W. Ganse in the Ganse-King Estate Service, specialists in exemptions for gifts, trusts, insurance, and estates. "Since the 'New Dealers' have taken over the economic and political control of the country," he remarks, "I've spent my time trying to conserve my own economic situation, keeping my political ambitions to myself." He is a member of the Actuarial Society of America, the American Institute of Actuaries, the Casualty Actuarial Society, the Boston Chapter of the College of Life Underwriters, the Boston Life Insurance and Trust Council, the Boston Life Underwriters, and the Yale Club of Boston. He is a Congregationalist.

King and his first wife were divorced in 1936, and he was married a second time, on April 14, 1936, to Katharine Vaughn Ganse.

William Barri Kirkham

Vice-president, City Library Association, 220 State Street, Springfield, Mass.

Residence, 169 Maple Street, Springfield.

Kirkham gave up his position as professor of biology and dean of Freshmen at Springfield College about nine years ago. Since 1934, as vice-president of the City Library Association of Springfield, he has been busily engaged in helping to run the central library, with five branches and four museums. He was formerly consulting director of the Museum of Natural History and in 1939 was elected chairman of the Museum of Fine Arts Committee. Kirkham is a director of the Springfield Safe Deposit & Trust Company. His daughter, Marguerite, who attended the Howe-Marot School, married Louis C. Hyde, a graduate of the Parson School in New York City.

Thomas Henry Kirkland

Lawyer, 31 Elm Street, Springfield, Mass.

Residence, 212 Oak Street, Indian Orchard, Mass.

Kirkland has been engaged in the practice of law in Springfield since 1910 and for the past fifteen years has served as master in chancery. He mentions that he has had the usual connections incident to the practice of law, but does not give any details in regard to them. Kirkland has served on the board of deacons of the Congregational Church of which he is a member and also as chairman of the finance committee and president of the board of directors. He is a member of all Masonic bodies, including the Shrine.

His oldest daughter, Joyce, graduated from Mount Holyoke in 1934 and is now serving as field and alumnæ secretary for the Highland Hall School for Girls at Holidaysburg, Pa. Elizabeth is teaching at Simmons College, where she received a B.S. degree in 1935. The death of Kirkland's oldest son, Thomas Henry, Jr., occurred in Springfield on June 17, 1933, at the age of seventeen. The second boy, Robert, graduated this last June from the American International College. The other children are Ann, born July 20, 1924, and Martha, born May 11, 1929.

James Whitney Knox

President, First National Bank, Hartford, Conn.

Residence, 561 Wethersfield Avenue, Hartford.

Knox, who has been president of the First National Bank of Hartford since 1929, is considered one of the city's leading financial men. He is a trustee of the Mechanics Savings Bank and a director of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company and the Hartford Gas Company and a few years ago was president of the Connecticut Bankers Association. In 1937 he was elected to the Hartford Board of Finance and is still serving in that capacity. For some years Knox has been a member of the prudential committee of the South Congregational Church, and he is treasurer of the Church Home of Hartford, a member of the finance committee of the Missionary Society of Connecticut, and a director of the Masonic Hall Association. He belongs to the University and Canoe clubs of Hartford and serves as auditor of the local Yale Alumni Association.

His oldest daughter, Barbara, graduated from Wellesley in 1936, and the youngest, Josephine, is a member of the Class of 1941 there. Laura received her degree at Smith in 1937. The latter was married in 1937 to Rial Strickland Peck, Dartmouth '36, and they have a daughter, Judith Knox, who was born on January 24, 1939. Barbara was married in 1936 to Frederic W. Irwin.

Arthur Burton LaCour

Broker in real estate, securities, oil leases, and royalties, 824 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.
Residence, 4830 St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans.

LaCour has sent us the following summary of his activities: "1929—Broker in New Orleans, corporation organization, and management; 1930–32—field representative, Federal Farm Board, Washington, D. C., with headquarters in New Orleans; work on cotton, rice, and sugar cane in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Texas; organization of coöperatives and credit corporations; addresses to groups of farmers, agricultural workers, and teachers in Southern states on agricultural economics and coöperative organization; 1933—examiner, Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation, Jackson, Miss., for rice, sugar cane, cotton, and other crop production loans in Louisiana and Mississippi; 1934–38—examiner, New Orleans Agency, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Loan Liquidation Division; February, 1938–May, 1939—representative in Mansfield, La., of oil interests, land department, and office management; May, 1939—broker in real estate, securities, oil leases, and royalties in New Orleans."

"After attending all reunions through the wonderful Twenty-fifth, it was a great disappointment not to have been back for the Thirtieth and Thirty-fifth," he added. "It seems that 1929 and the following years were more than depressing to many of us and the work of previous years and dreams for the future went crashing down the valley.

"As field representative of the Federal Farm Board it was a pleasure to work among those interested in agriculture and to visit the agricultural colleges in the Southern states during the years from 1930 to 1932. The year 1933 was spent in Jackson, Miss., where loans were handled for sugar cane planters and rice farmers in Louisiana and for cotton farmers in Louisiana and Mississippi. It was good to be at home again in 1934, but like working in a graveyard to liquidate closed bank loans for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Leaving Government service in the spring of 1938, there was more freedom and independence in working for oil production interests in northern Louisiana, and now as a broker in real estate, securities, oil leases, and royalties in New Orleans.

“After attending high school in New Orleans, Lorraine entered Newcomb College in 1930 and Suzanne in 1931. Lorraine left and made her début in 1931. Suzanne remained until 1934, when she also made her début. Both became members of the Junior League.

“Arthur, Jr., and Charles entered Tulane in 1934. In 1934 Arthur attended Soulé College in New Orleans and, in 1936, entered Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, where he spent a year. Charles continued at Tulane until 1937, when both boys began work for an oil production company.

“Suzanne was married to James Eyre Ashburner, Brown '26, of New York, on February 6, 1937, in New Orleans. They have one son, John LaCour, born in New York, March 29, 1938.

“Lorraine visits a cousin at Glen Head, Long Island, frequently, and went to Ireland, Wales, and England with her in 1937.

“It must have been a big let-down to ride out to the baseball game in busses, but in 1944 all of us will probably be glad to crawl into a leather seat and watch the youngsters walk along as we did in sailor-suit days. Here's hoping to be back with the 1904 boys for our Fortieth.”

LaCour's youngest child, Katherine Gresham, was born on December 12, 1921, and died on October 14, 1922. At the present time he is a vestryman and junior warden of the Church of the Annunciation in New Orleans. He has been president of the Church Club of Louisiana since 1938, belongs to the Boston, Louisiana and University clubs of New Orleans, and is a 32d degree Mason. He served for a time as secretary and later as president of the Yale Alumni Association of Louisiana.

George Thompson Lane

Assistant branch manager, National Distillers Products Company,
120 Broadway, New York City.

Residence, Yale Club, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Lane gave up the brokerage business in 1938 and since then has been assistant branch manager of the National Distillers Products Company. He is a vestryman of the Church of the Incarnation in New York City. His daughter, Grace, who went to the Emma Willard School, was married on August 5, 1933, to Sumner Riddick Pugh and has a son, Sumner Riddick, Jr. The death of Lane's son, George Lansing, occurred on September 13, 1931; he attended St. Paul's.

Emerson Latting

Residence, 12 East 97th Street, New York City.

Latting writes that since his retirement from business some years ago he has spent much time attending to his kennel of Scottish terriers. He is a member of the Scottish Terrier Club of America and the University Club of New York.

Charles William Lawrance

Administrative officer with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Arlington Hotel Building, Washington, D. C.

Residence, 3046 Newark Avenue, N.W., Washington.

Lawrance left Chicago about 1934 and has since been located in Washington. He was with the Lumber Code Authority for a time, but since 1936 has been an administrative officer with the Department of Agriculture, his work being in connection with the Soil Conservation Service. He is a member of the Christian Science Church and, in addition to serving as chairman of the board and first reader, is superintendent of the Sunday school.

His daughter, Elizabeth, attended the University of Wisconsin and Northwestern University. She married John Lacey Reynolds, who is a graduate of Vanderbilt University.

Bayard Urquhart Livingston, Jr.

With the New York Title & Mortgage Company, 274 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Residence, 10 Normandie Boulevard, Morristown, N. J.

Livingston, who was formerly with the Stock Exchange firm of Foster & Adams, is now engaged in real estate work with the New York Title & Mortgage Company. Bayard Urquhart Livingston, 3d, the older of his two children, attended the Morristown Preparatory School and the Hun School and is now with Southeastern Cottons, Inc., in Boston. He married Elizabeth V. McGee, daughter of Donald A. McGee, Yale '06; her home was in Plainfield, N. J., and she attended Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield, Mass. Livingston's daughter, Margaret, studied at the Kent Place School in Summit, N. J.

Robson Nathan Longwell

Owner of the Longwell Lumber Company, Mar Vista, Calif.

Residence, 240½ South Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Longwell continues as owner of his own retail lumber yard. His son, Bryant Robson, now attends the Beverly Hills High School. "He expects (if there are not too many lumber strikes) to enter Cornell in September, 1940," Longwell says.

Howell Gurney Lord

Residence, 416 East Avenue, Bay Head, N. J.

Lord is a trustee of the Protestant Foster Home Society. He reports that he served as deputy municipal director of emergency relief in Newark for about five years, but is "out now."

His oldest daughter, Jean, attended Wykeham Rise, St. Mary's, and the Cours Maintenon; in 1929 she married Ambrose J. Geary, of Lexington, Ky., and they have a daughter, Jean, born January 29, 1934. Elizabeth, the second girl, who studied at the Kent Place School, the Cours Maintenon, and Vassar, was married on April 20, 1934, to Robert William Cumming, Jr., a graduate of St. Paul's; their children are Mary C. B., born January 28, 1935, and Elizabeth Gurney, born August 24, 1937. Lord's son, Joseph, who prepared for college at the Berkshire School and graduated from Yale in 1936, is with the Guaranty Trust Company; his marriage to Sara Heller (who went to Farmington) took place November 11, 1937, and they have a son, Joseph Fewsmith, Jr., born March 1, 1939. Margaret attended Prospect Hill and Oldfields; on December 29, 1938, she married J. Griswold Merrow, a graduate of the University of Virginia.

Charles Simonton McCain

Executive officer and director, Dillon, Read & Company, investment bankers, 28 Nassau Street, New York City.

Residence, 10 Gracie Square, New York City.

McCain continued as president and chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank until 1934, then becoming president of the United Light & Power Company in Chicago. In May, 1939, he gave up this position to become associated with Dillon, Read & Company as executive officer and director. His clubs are the Yale, River, and Links of New York.

McCain's older boy, William Simonton, graduated from St. Paul's in 1937 and then entered Yale as a member of the Class of 1941. Charles, Jr., has attended the Chicago Latin School and is now enrolled at St. Paul's. Grace, the youngest child, attended the Girls' Latin School while living in Chicago and then entered Miss Chapin's School in New York.

We quote in part from an article published in Forbes Magazine in July, 1939, soon after McCain resigned the presidency of the United Light & Power Company to become associated with Dillon, Read & Company: ". . . A Southerner, he is, of course, a Democrat—but not of the radical type. He is a church man (Presbyrian), a home body (he has two boys and a girl), has thrown himself whole-heartedly into American Red Cross and Salvation Army drives. Suggesting that Wall Street doesn't corrupt every country lad who invades it."

Alexander Mahon McClean

Manager of the bond department of Callaway, Fish & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 15 Broad Street, New York City.

Residence, 230 East 48th Street, New York City.

McClean, who has held the above position since 1924, writes: "Still alive and that's about all—slowly but surely F.D.R. and gang are getting me both as to earnings and income. Hell, if this is the reward for working and trying to be thrifty, what's the use!" He belongs to the University Club of New York.

Theodore McCurdy Marsh

Partner in the law firm of Child, Riker, Marsh & Shipman, 744 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.

Residence, 20 East Highland Avenue, East Orange, N. J.

Prior to becoming a member of the above firm in 1935, Marsh was a partner in Riker & Riker. From 1929 to 1935 he was professor of law at the Mercer Beasley School and upon the merger of that school with Dana College into the University of Newark in 1936, he continued as an instructor in law at the new school and is still a member of its faculty. He has also been a member of the executive committee and board of trustees of the university since its organization. Marsh served as president of the New Jersey Orthopedic Hospital and Dispensary from 1930 to 1938 and has since been chairman of its executive committee. He is also a trustee of the Hospital Council of Essex County, on the advisory council of the Visiting Nurse Association of the Oranges and Maplewood, and a warden of Grace Episcopal Church in Orange, of which he had previously been a vestryman since 1929. He is secretary and a member of the board of governors of the Rock Spring Club and a director of the Rotary Club of Newark. Marsh has published a case book on New Jersey practice, entitled Marsh & Lasser Pleading, Practice, and Procedure in New Jersey, and he is now engaged in the preparation of a textbook on the same subject which is to be published shortly. He has contributed a number of articles on similar subjects to the Mercer Beasley Law School Law Journal.

Lillian Hillyer Marsh, the oldest of his four daughters, received a B.A. at Vassar in 1936 and has since been teaching, first at the Hartridge School in Plainfield, N. J., and for the past year at the Greenwich Country Day School. Gertrude, the second girl, graduated from the National Cathedral School in 1935 and completed the Froebel League Teachers Training School course in 1938, teaching there during the following year; her marriage to Richard Ackerman Lydecker, Princeton '38, took place on June 15, 1939. Lucille graduated from the Bennett School in 1936 and from Bennett Junior College in 1938 and has since been studying sculpture at Columbia and the Art Students League; she had one statue accepted in the New Jersey State Art Exhibit, which, Marsh said when he sent his report for our book last spring, it was expected would be on exhibition at the New Jersey State Building at the World's Fair. Dorothea graduated from the Cambridge School in 1938 and has since been at Bradford Junior College.

Harold Marwick Meech

President of the Red Wing Milling Company, Red Wing, Minn.
Residence, 11054th Street, Red Wing.

Meech describes himself as "living in a Farmer-labor hotbed. Still just a poor old flour peddler." He is a member of the Minneapolis Club and the Congregational Church.

His daughter, Elizabeth Harbison, spent her first two years of college at Smith, her Junior year at Leland Stanford, and then returned to Smith to graduate in 1939. Meech's son, Harbison, graduated from Andover in 1938 and is now a member of the Class of 1942 at Yale.

Clarence Whittlesey Mendell

Master of Branford College and Dunham professor of Latin, Yale University; mailing address, 72 Yale Station,
New Haven, Conn.

Residence, 80 High Street, New Haven.

In his report for our book, written in May, 1939, Mendell said, "Resigned the deanship of Yale College in 1937 in order to have time to teach decently and look after Branford College. Have done nothing distinguished, but have had a grand time. Have acquired a farm and some woodland deep in the country with a barn and a trout stream, but no house as yet. We raise some vegetables and are prepared to retire and be real farmers when age or the revolution make it seem advisable."

Since Malcolm Farmer's resignation as director of athletics at Yale last fall, Mendell has been serving as temporary director. He is a member of the advisory board of the Yale Budget Drive and of the scholarship committee of the Yale Alumni Association of New Haven and is a trustee of the Taft and Salisbury schools, the Cheshire Academy, the American Academy in Rome, and also of Farnam House in New Haven. He has been a vestryman of Trinity Church, New Haven, for some years, and he belongs to the Graduates and Lawn clubs of New Haven, the Century and Yale clubs of New York, the Swiss Alpine Club, the Appalachian Club, the American Philological Association, and the American Institute of Archeology. His book, Jeanne d'Arc at Rouen, was published by the Yale University Press in 1931, and during the past few years he has also had a number of articles published in professional journals.

Mendell's first wife died in 1919. His second marriage, to Elizabeth Bailey Lawrence, of Philadelphia, took place in Paris on July 10, 1930. They have a daughter, Elizabeth, who was born in New Haven on April 29, 1934. Mrs. Mendell graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1925, later studied at The Sorbonne, and received a Ph.D. at Yale in 1939.

George Macy Merriman

Engaged in farming; address, Black Walnut Acres, R.F.D. 1, Bristol, Conn.

When Merriman sent in his questionnaire for our book last summer he said, "The 'depression' brought to a close my activities in the manufacturing field. This at first seemed a tragedy and it was just that. Then followed a period of waiting and searching for a place suitable for both myself and my wife. On July 29 we purchased a farm in Burlington, Conn., comprising about eighty-five acres. We are very enthusiastic about it and impatient to develop its natural beauty and to put it into a productive condition."

Merriman is a member of the Congregational Church. George Macy Merriman, Jr., the oldest of his four sons, went to the Bristol High School and is now working for the Bristol Brass Corporation; he married Ailsa G. Campbell, who attended the University of Connecticut. The second boy, Carlton, who attended the Storm King School and Wilbraham Academy, is with the E. Ingraham Company in Bristol; his wife, whose maiden name was Marion Barnhart Ehlers, is a graduate of Mount Ida Junior College. Alexander is at present taking a training course with the Kresge Department stores; he went to Wilbraham Academy and Union College. Robert, the youngest boy, is a member of the Class of 1940 at Hamilton College.

Harold Grant Metcalf

President, Columbian Rope Company, Auburn, N. Y.

Residence, 39 William Street, Auburn.

Metcalf is still going strong as president of the Columbian Rope Company and the Auburn City Hospital and as a director of the National Bank of Auburn and the Nye-Wirt Company, Inc. He belongs to the Owasco Country Club of Auburn and to the University and Yale clubs of New York.

His oldest daughter, Nancy, attended Miss Baldwin's School at Bryn Mawr. Her marriage to Wharton Green, Jr., Princeton '34, took place on April 4, 1936; Wharton Green, 3d, was born on August 28, 1938. Metcalf's second daughter, Jean, went to Briarcliff Junior College, and Carol attends Connecticut College.

A friend of Harold's living in a neighboring town says that Harold is an outstanding citizen of Auburn, where he plays a leading and important part in every enterprise for the community's benefit—it is a rare privilege to be in his home, one room of which is devoted to mementoes of his four years at Yale, which bring back many happy memories of college days.

William Robert Millar

Lawyer, 610 Rowan Building, 458 South Spring Street,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Residence, 10101 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles.

Millar continues in the independent practice of law in Los Angeles. His philanthropies, he remarks, consist of the legal work he does for clients who can't pay. He mentions as an outstanding event of 1930 a thirty-day cruise in British Columbian waters on the 110-foot twin Diesel yacht of the late John B. Miller, then chairman of the board of the Southern California Edison Company. "Otherwise I work and play as usual," he says. "The best news is to have some 1904 man drop in—last week John Broeksmit came." Since 1932 Millar has been secretary and director of the California Club of Los Angeles, and he also belongs to the Los Angeles Country Club. A few years ago he served as president of the Yale Alumni Association of Southern California and as a member of its Scholarship Fund Board.

Herbert Chauncey Miller

Residence, Outpost Road, Northford, Conn.

From 1924 until a few months ago Miller was financial secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, with his headquarters in Columbus. He is now making his home in Northford. "Charles' long illness and sending three boys to prep school and Yale has kept me long and hard on the job," he remarks. Charles was completely paralyzed by an attack of infantile paralysis in 1932, but it is fine to know that he has now recovered to the extent that he is able to work part of the time. He prepared for college at Taft and was enrolled with the Yale Class of 1929 for two years. He was married on April 23, 1927, to Uretta Catherine Cox, and they have a daughter, Virginia, who was born on February 15, 1928. Herbert, the second son, also entered Yale from Taft. He received his B.A. in 1930 and his M.D. in 1934 and is now an instructor in pediatrics at the University. His marriage to Polly Thomas, daughter of Norman Thomas, took place at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, on June 16, 1934. She spent three years at Vassar. Herbert and his wife have two children, Norman Thomas, born September 18, 1935, and Patricia Alling, born October 19, 1938, both in New Haven. John, whose preparatory education was received at Mount Hermon, took his Freshman year at Ohio State University and then transferred to Yale, where he graduated this last June. Gordon, the youngest boy, graduated from Taft that same month and entered Yale in the fall as a member of the Class of 1943. While at Taft he held a Central Ohio Scholarship for two years. The three oldest boys all played on the Freshman and Varsity football teams while at Yale.

John Milton Miller

With the Radiotron Division, R.C.A. Manufacturing Company, Harrison, N. J.

Residence, 1010 West Upsal Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Miller continued as a radio engineer with the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company in Philadelphia until about four years ago and has since been with the R.C.A. Manufacturing Company at Harrison. His oldest boy, John Milton, Jr., spent some time at Yale with the Class of 1931 S. and then attended the Moore School of Electrical Engineering at the University of Pennsylvania. At present he is a design engineer with R.C.A. Miller's older daughter, Catherine, went to Wellesley. The other children are Austin, Edward, Jane, and David.

Stewart Lea Mims

Vice-president, Ferry-Hanly Company (advertising agency), 500 5th Avenue, New York City.

Residence, Brookside Drive, Greenwich, Conn.

In 1934 Mims severed his connection as vice-president of the J. Walter Thompson Company to become vice-president and director of the Ferry-Hanly Company. He has taken an active part in local affairs in Greenwich, serving as secretary and a director of the C.W.A. Board during 1933-34, as chairman of the Town Plan Commission from 1935 to 1937, and as a member of the Town Representatives since 1935. Mims belongs to the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich, the Yale Club of New York, and the Graduates Club of New Haven and is secretary of the New York Southern Society.

Stewart, Jr., who received his preparatory education at Taft, spent some time at Yale as a member of the Class of 1940. Elizabeth and Cornelia both went to Greenwich Academy. Elizabeth received a B.A. at Swarthmore in 1938 and studied at Yale the following year. (At Swarthmore she had high honors and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.) Cornelia is a Freshman at Brenau College.

William Ledyard Mitchell

Vice-president, Chrysler Corporation; business address, Box 1919, Detroit, Mich.

Residence, 70 Ridge Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich.

Mitchell, who has been vice-president and a director of the Chrysler Corporation since 1925, has also been chairman of the board of the export division for the past ten years and has, in addition, been vice-president and a director of the Robert Mitchell Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati. In 1938 Mitchell took a business trip to India, Australia, and New Zealand. For some time he has been a director of the Detroit Community Fund, and he is chairman of the Detroit Committee of the Seeing Eye of Morristown, N. J. He is a Roman Catholic, being a communicant of St. Paul's Church at Grosse Pointe Farms. He belongs to the Grosse Pointe Club, the Detroit Club, the Yondotega Club, the Detroit Athletic Club, and the Country Club of Detroit, the New Windsor Club of Windsor, Ontario, and the Cloud and Yale clubs of New York.

His older son, Ledyard, Jr., prepared for college at the Newman School and Andover and graduated from Yale in 1935. His marriage to Josephine Schlotman, who attended Miss Porter's in Farmington and Sarah Lawrence College, took place on August 27, 1935, and they have a daughter, Sara Sherman, who was born on July 30, 1936. Sherman also attended the Newman School and then went to Taft before entering Yale, where he graduated in 1938. Both boys work for the Chrysler Corporation. Mitchell's oldest daughter, Mary, was married on June 11, 1938, to Paul H. Deming, Jr., Cornell '32. Sara's marriage to John E. O'Keefe, Jr., Yale '36, took place on September 11, 1937, and their son, John E. O'Keefe, 3d, was born November 13, 1938. Ann, the youngest child, attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Grosse Pointe and is now at the Ethel Walker School. Her sisters both attended these schools also.

George Albert Mohlman

Vice-president, Package Machinery Company, Springfield, Mass.

Residence, 35 South Main Street, Suffield, Conn.

Mohlman, who has been vice-president of the Package Machinery Company for a number of years, was transferred from New York to the home office in Springfield in 1937. In addition to being a director of his own company, he is a director of the Springfield National Bank and also of the Community Chest. He belongs to the Colony Club and the Longmeadow Country Club of Springfield and to the Association of Ex-members of Squadron A of New York.

Mohlman and his first wife were divorced in 1937. On April 23, 1939, he was married at Brielle, N. J., to Grace Dalrymple (Mrs. Frank Ward O'Malley). His three oldest children attended the Montclair High School. George, Jr., later went to the University of Virginia, and he is now assistant marine superintendent with the Shepard Steamship Line in New York. Theodore is working as a salesman for the Package Machinery Company in Chicago. The third son, Joseph, was born July 21, 1915, and the youngest child, Betty, was born on June 12, 1917. She went to Miss Baird's School in East Orange.

Charles Everett Moore

Lawyer, 11 Court Street, White Plains, N. Y.
Residence, 10 Bogart Avenue, White Plains.

Moore has been engaged in the practice of law in White Plains since 1909. He is a trustee of the Memorial Methodist Church in that city and says that he usually renders assistance in the Community Chest and Y.M.C.A. campaigns. He adds, "I have a fine wife who appraises me at more than my actual value. We have a very comfortable small house. Most of our vacations are spent in Nantucket. Almost every year we attend Alumni Day.

"Business still exists here, and I am thankful for what drifts or flows or shoots into this office. I believe that the average run of people is good. A vast majority of those with whom I come in contact are kind and considerate. I recommend the World's Fair and the Coldstream Guards Band. They are great."

A few years ago Moore served as secretary and treasurer of the Yale Alumni Association of Westchester County, and at present he is recording secretary of the Westchester County Historical Society. He also belongs to the New York State Historical Association, the Masonic order, and the University and Kiwanis clubs of White Plains.

George Herbert Mulford

Deputy collector, Bureau of Internal Revenue, 202 Post Office Building, Evanston, Ill.
Residence, 1415 Wesley Avenue, Evanston.

“This report won’t be quite so cocky as the one sent in ten years ago,” says Mulford. “I’ve had quite a few teeth pulled since then. However, I know I am much better mentally and physically. Nothing would have pleased me more than to have been in New Haven with you all this past June, but as in the case of all the other reunions and Class meetings it just couldn’t be done. Why not have the next 1904 meeting in Chicago—I’d stand a pretty good chance of attending that one. In the meantime if any of you should come to Chicago and will call my home in Evanston I would be most delighted to see you.”

Mulford continued in the real estate business in Evanston until November, 1930, after which he was with the Noveltoy Corporation of Chicago, at first as a salesman and later as vice-president. In March, 1933, he entered the insurance field as a salesman for the New York Life Insurance Company in Chicago and remained in that connection until receiving his present appointment in March, 1937. He is a member of the Yale Club of Chicago.

George Sharp Munson

Member of the law firm of Townsend, Elliott & Munson, 1100 Provident Trust Building, 17th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Residence, 510 North Latches Lane, Merion, Pa.

Munson’s partnership in the above firm dates from 1914. He is at present a member of the boards of six Philadelphia companies: the Provident Trust Company, the Insurance Company of North America, the Alliance Insurance Company, the Philadelphia Fire & Marine Insurance Company, the Indemnity Insurance Company of North America, and the Western Saving Fund Society. For many years he has been a director of St. Christopher’s Hospital, Philadelphia, and he is serving as chairman of the Philadelphia committee which is coöperating with an organization of mountain farmers of the Appalachian region, called "Educations and Development Fund of the Farmers Federation, Inc.," of which James G. K. McClure, '06, is president. Munson has made several speeches on financial subjects before the Bond Club and other organizations. He is vice-president of the Gulph Mills Golf Club and a member of the Merion Cricket Club and the Rittenhouse Club.

His older son, Townsend, entered his office upon graduating from the Yale Law School in 1937; he had taken his B.A. at Yale in 1933. His marriage to Katharine Neuhaus, of Houston, Texas, who had attended Westover and Smith, took place on June 29, 1935, and they have two sons, George Rice, born on December 21, 1936, and Townsend, Jr., born October 21, 1938, both in Philadelphia. Josephine, who went to the Foxcroft School, was married on November 30, 1938, to Morris Clothier Maxwell, of Philadelphia; he is a graduate of St. George's School and the University of Pennsylvania. Katharine, who attended Dobbs Ferry, was married on October 2, 1937, to John F. Ducey, of Boston, a graduate of St. George's School and Harvard. Natalie, the youngest girl, is at Chatham Hall, and LaRue, who attended St. Paul's (where Townsend also received his preparatory education) and the Episcopal Academy in Philadelphia, is a member of the Yale Class of 1943.

Robert Hayes Nead

Chief accountant, North American Trading & Import Company, importers of Blackstrap Molasses, 1800 West Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

Residence, 135 West Durham Street, Mount Airy, Philadelphia.

At the time the Twenty-five Year Record was published, Nead was connected with Publicker, Inc., as accountant. For the past ten years or so he has had a similar connection with the North American Trading & Import Company. He reports that he is treasurer of the Lutheran Church of the Ascension in Mount Airy, past master and treasurer of Colonial Lodge No. 631, Free and Accepted Masons, Jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, and a member of the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution and the Pennsylvania German Society. "Least said; the soonest mended," was his comment on our question asking him to give further details about himself.

Nead's older son, Robert, Jr., graduated from the Germantown Academy in 1938 and is now attending the Wharton Evening School of Accounts and Finance at the University of Pennsylvania. Benjamin, the younger boy, is still in grade school.

Arthur Edwin Neergaard

Physician, 109 East 67th Street, New York City.

Residence, 114 East 84th Street, New York City.

Neergaard was good enough to fill out his questionnaire the day that he received it. He is still associate attending physician at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York and associate professor of clinical medicine at Columbia, in addition to carrying on his general practice. Since 1929 he has been a trustee of the New York Dispensary, and he is a vestryman of St. Luke's Church at East Hampton. He continues to take an active interest in the affairs of his old preparatory school, St. Paul's. Since 1938 he has been a trustee of the school and president of its Alumni Association, and last year he also served as president of the Alumni Fund. Yale affairs are, of course, another special interest. He serves on our Class Council and is also a member of the Yale Library Associates. His clubs are the Yale, University, Grolier, and West Side Tennis of New York and the Maidstone Club of East Hampton.

Arthur Nilsen

Physician, 30 West 59th Street, New York City.

Residence, 16 West 90th Street, New York City.

"I find very little of interest to report on for the past ten years," Nilsen remarks. "Am still plugging along at the medical game, with some rewards for service in my appointment last year as professor of clinical otolaryngology, attending otolaryngologist, and director of service at the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital at Columbia University." He adds that he wrote the chapters on acute and chronic sinusitis which appeared in Appleton's Practitioners Library of Medicine and Surgery, Volume XI, published in 1937.

Edwin Canfield Northrop

Vice-president and secretary, Waterbury Savings Bank, 60 North Main Street, Waterbury, Conn.
Residence, 51 Church Street, Waterbury.

"I seem to be doing the same things I have done since 1904, perhaps more of them," Northrop said, writing under date of May 23, 1939. "The great change was my marriage for the first time in 1928. Our first child was born during our Twenty-fifth Reunion and will be ten years old June 18, 1939. We have come from one, two, and three to seven, eight, and nine with great joy."

In addition to his connection with the Waterbury Savings Bank, which began in 1933 (he was formerly president of the Dime Savings Bank of Waterbury), Northrop is vice-president and a director of the Colonial Trust Company of Waterbury, the Waterbury Second Mortgage Company, the Randolph-Clowes Company, and the Watertown Country Day School; secretary and treasurer of the Waterbury Foundation; and a director of the Waterbury Savings Bank, the Clark Brothers Bolt Company, the Westover Water Company, and the Westover School Corporation. He is also vice-president of the Connecticut Savings Bank Association, treasurer of the Bronson Library Fund, Lincoln House, and the First Congregational Church. He belongs to the Society of Colonial Wars of the State of Connecticut. During 1930-31 he served as a member of the Waterbury Charter Commission.

Northrop's children are: Anne deConselyea, born June 18, 1929, in New York City; Hester, born October 17, 1930, also in New York; and Edwin Canfield, Jr., born February 16, 1932, in Waterbury. They go to the Watertown Country Day School.

Martin Henry O'Brien

Secretary, Employees' Benefit Committee of the Southern California Telephone Company, 740 South Olive Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Residence, 2515 Maiden Lane, Altadena, Calif.

(mailing address, Box 224).

O'Brien has held the above position since January, 1926, and since May, 1931, has also been manager of the medical department of the company. He is a communicant of St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic Church in Altadena.

His son, Donald, attended the Pasadena Junior College and is now working for the Southern California Telephone Company. On July 18, 1932, he married Elizabeth Tallmadge Johnson, who attended the Bishop School for Girls at La Jolla, Calif., and the John Muir Technical High School at Pasadena. They have two sons, Donald Edmund, Jr., and Martin Henry, 3d.

John Olmsted

Business address, 223 Chamber of Commerce Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

Residence, 122 Windsor Avenue, Buffalo.

Olmsted, who has now retired from active business, was formerly an officer of the Niagara Falls Milling Company. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Buffalo and of the Saturn and Niagara Falls Country clubs. His older daughter, Elizabeth Warren, received a B.A. at Smith in 1931 and an M.A. in 1933 and is now an instructor in geology there; she is a member of both Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma XI. Mary Louise, who graduated from Smith in 1933, is with the Universal Atlas Cement Company in New York City. John, Jr., spent some time at Yale with the Class of 1937. He is a flying instructor at the Boeing School of Aeronautics, where he graduated in 1936. James (B.A. Harvard 1938) is an accountant; he married Harriet Tole Atwood, Vassar '30, daughter of Dr. Wallace W. Atwood, president of Clark University, and they have a daughter, Judy Atwood, who was born September 17, 1938.

Claude Conant Ostrom

President and treasurer, Bradley & Hubbard Manufacturing Company,
Meriden, Conn.

Residence, 49 Parker Avenue, Meriden.

Prior to becoming president, treasurer, and a director of the Bradley & Hubbard Manufacturing Company in 1935, Ostrom was president and treasurer of the Foster Merriam Company in that city. In October, 1929, he was elected a director of the Phoenix Brass Fittings Company of Irvington, N. Y. He belongs to the Yale Club of New York.

David and John, the older twins, attended Andover, the Moses Brown School, and then Yale, where they were members of the Class of 1934. John, who is passenger traffic manager with the Holland American Line in New York, married Edith Waje on June 25, 1935, and their son, David MacKellar, 2d, was born on June 6, 1937. David is engaged in sales promotion work with the Socony Vacuum Company in New York. His marriage to Barbara Kingsbury took place on April 1, 1933; they have two children, John Conant, 2d, born July 7, 1935, and Susan Kingsbury, born May 17, 1938. Robert went to Williston and the Moses Brown School and graduated in 1938 from Springfield College. He is working in the sales department of the Walker Turner Company in Plainfield, N. J. Sara, who attended the Lincoln School in Providence and the Hartford Art School, married Minot C. Mulligan, of Washington, D. C.

Edward Stetson Paine

Business address, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

Residence, Hewlett, Long Island.

In answer to our questions as to his business connections, Paine supplied the following imposing list: Russell & Company—sugar properties in Puerto Rico—managing partner; Central Romana and Yngenio Santa Fé—sugar properties in the Dominican Republic—director and secretary; Pan American Industries, Inc.—management, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City—director and treasurer; Corona Brewing Corporation—brewery in Puerto Rico—director and treasurer; Crown Beverages, Inc.—Coca-Cola, Canada Dry Ginger-Ale, and other soft drinks, San Juan, Puerto Rico—director and treasurer; Cerveceria Nacional Dominicana, Inc.—brewery—Coca-Cola, Canada Dry Ginger-Ale, and other soft drinks—Dominican Republic—director and treasurer; Usine a Glace de Port-au-Prince—ice and refrigeration, Port-au-Prince, Haiti—director and treasurer; Brasserie de la Couronne, S. C.—director and treasurer.

He says that his hobbies are hunting, fishing, painting (he has studied under Gifford Beal, N.A., and has exhibited at the Independent Artists Exhibit, the Yale Club, and elsewhere), stamp collecting, gardening, golf, and others. "Devoting a certain amount of time to the foregoing has kept me pretty busy and reasonably happy and healthy," he says.

Paine belongs to the New York Yale Club. His three sons all prepared for college at Andover and have attended Yale, Edward being a member of the Class of 1931, Wingate of 1936, and Leonard of 1940. The two older boys are both in business. Edward, who married Louise Mitchell, has a daughter, Louise Mitchell, born August 22, 1938, in New York City. Wingate married Mona Hewitt, and their daughter, Florence Bragg, was born January 7, 1938, in New York.

Elton Parks

General partner in Dominick & Dominick, brokers,
115 Broadway, New York City.
Residence, "Alderbrook," Katonah, N. Y.

In addition to his connection with Dominick & Dominick, in which he has been a general partner since 1925, Parks is vice-president, a director, and member of the executive committee of the National Bond & Share Corporation and chairman of the board of directors of Motor Improvements, Inc. He is also president and a director of the Travelers Aid Society of New York and a member of the board of managers and chairman of the finance committee of Inwood House. He continues to take an active part in various Yale affairs. He is serving at present as Alumni Fund agent for our Class, having succeeded Lansing Reed in that capacity, and is a member of the board of governors of the University Press. In recent years Parks has also served as president of the Yale Law School Association, as a member of the Alumni Board, and as a member of the University committee for the selection of candidates to receive honorary degrees. Julius Hall Parmelee

Residence, 311 Little Falls Street, Falls Church, Va.

"My time is largely taken up with rate cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission, Congressional hearings on transport legislation, court and reorganization cases, and arbitration of railway wage scales," Parmelee explains. He has been a director of the Bureau of Railway Economics since 1920 and has been a director of the Arlington & Fairfax Railway Company since 1927, between 1931 and 1937 serving as president of the company. He has also been president and a director of the Arlington & Fairfax Motor Transportation Company since 1932 and a director of the Arlington & Fairfax Building and Loan Association since 1931. His book, The Modern Railway, was published by Longmans Green & Company in 1939, and he has also written many magazine articles on transportation. From 1930 to 1936 Parmelee served as a member of the Falls Church Town Council. He belongs to the American Railway Guild, the Cosmos Club of Washington, and the Yale Club of New York.

Maurice Parmelee

Agricultural economist, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 1024 Transportation Building,
Washington, D. C.

Parmelee reports as follows: "In 1933 I spent six months traveling over a large part of Europe, including Russia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Turkey, Greece, etc. From May, 1936, to February, 1938, I lived in Europe, engaged in research work for my principal scientific and literary undertaking, namely, a series of treatises on the evolution of culture. Apart from the matters specifically mentioned, my life has contained the usual activities in connection with learned societies, lecturing, etc., which arise in the course of a scientific and literary career."

During 1935-36 Parmelee was connected with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as an agricultural economist, and his present position began in 1938. In recent years he has published the following books: Nudism in Modern Life (1931), Bolshevism, Fascism, and the Liberal-Democratic State (1934), and Farewell to Poverty (1935). The first book was published by A. A. Knopf and the other two by John Wiley & Sons. In addition to these books, Parmelee is the author of various articles, speeches, book reviews, etc.

In 1935 he was married in Arlington County, Va., to Anne Saba, and they have a daughter, Judith Anne, born on April 16, 1938, in Washington.

George Nichols' family.

Bill Peltz with Philip and Bill, Jr.
Selkirk, N. Y.

to Chester Brooks Kerr, Yale '36. The latter is with the publishing firm of Harcourt, Brace & Company of New York City. Their son, John Seymour, 2d, was born in New York on August 14, 1938. William, the older boy, prepared for college at the Albany Academy and Exeter. He graduated from Yale in 1931 (serving until a year or so ago as secretary of his Class) and from the Harvard Medical School in 1936. Bill recently completed his service as assistant resident physician at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York and is now connected with the Department of Health at Williams College. His marriage to Margaret Ruth Adams took place on January 29, 1938; she is the daughter of the late Mason T. Adams, Yale '99, and attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington. Mary also attended the Albany Academy for Girls; she later went to Farmington and in 1937 graduated from the Presbyterian Hospital Training School for Nurses. Her marriage to Dr. Theodore Burg Russell, a graduate of the Trinity School (1922), Princeton University (1926), and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University (1930), took place on June 24, 1939. He is practicing medicine in New York and is on the staff of the Presbyterian Hospital. Philip, the younger boy, received his preparatory education at the Albany Academy, the Hun School, and Hotchkiss. He graduated from Yale in 1938 and has since been studying in the Graduate School.

"Having dutifully completed Harry's course in statistics," Peltz says, "I now proceed as he requests to let down my hair for a real folksy visit. He asks that the record be brought up to date since 1929. You may recall that shortly after our Twenty-fifth Reunion a distinguishable tremor was felt in the political-economical structure of our cosmos. The survivors of this decade, if there is value in the observations of the late Mr. Darwin, should be abundantly able to face the setting sun with head erect.

"Shocking thought—my children have grown up! My older boy experienced Yale in the last stages of the arrangement as we knew it. The younger graduated a year ago under the house plan—each moved around through his Yale on a wider orbit than I. Each tasted the delights of contacts with undergraduate activities which were an unknown world to those in my group which trod the more sequestered pathways of the scholarly grove. Their Yale is a finer Yale—I am happy to have had sometimes intimate if far-sighted glimpses of it through their sparkling eyes. My second and third four years at Yale have been happy in the extreme.

“With the scattering of the progeny, we parents have found ourselves free to make a year-round home of our former summer domicile in the country. No more going to town in the winter. The seasons come, the seasons go without that sense of desolation at the annual appearance of the sear and yellow leaf. The oil burner and all the rest of the modern mechanical marvels enable an existence unthinkably different from that of the era of 1904.

“I have taken keen interest in the affairs of our excellent Albany Academy. As president of the board of trustees I have sensed the gulf which divides the responsibility of a mere board member from that of its leader. Our historic school which goes back to 1813 has been a great feeder for Yale. Our 125th anniversary celebration in 1938 was a memorable affair which brought pride to its sponsors. [His book, Top Flight at Number One Lafayette Street, relating to the history of the Albany Academy, has been privately printed by the Yale University Press.]

“A year ago the Class Council paid me the high honor of electing me to its membership to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lansing Reed. I regard his loss as probably the greatest blow we have sustained since graduation. His extraordinarily useful life, his delightful personality will be ever green in memory. The linking of my name in this gracious way with his is a compliment of first magnitude.”

Herbert Spencer Petry

In the advertising business, 95 Christopher Street, New York City.
Residence, 837 East 22d Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Petry, who has been engaged in space selling in various advertising media for a number of years, is now in business for himself in New York. His daughter, Lois, who was born on March 3, 1921, in Pittsburgh, is a Sophomore at Brooklyn College, while his son, Kenneth (born November 5, 1925, in Detroit), is at Erasmus Hall.

William Pickens

Director of branches, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 69 5th Avenue, New York City.

Residence, 260 West 139th Street, New York City.

Pickens has continued his work in behalf of his race. In answering our question about himself, he said, "Just working hard and continuously. Have been many times to Europe, and all over the U.S.A. again and again, in every state and corner, trying to help America towards real civilization and democracy. Have visited Cuba, Haiti, Jamaica, Hawaii, Panama, northern South America, and nearly all the countries of Europe. Had many friends in Germany, in pre-Hitler days; most of my friends, being people of culture and refinement and of cosmopolitan spirit, have been driven out of Germany to Denmark, Paris, and New York City.

"In August, 1938, visited Spain, and experienced the shot and shell of the Fascists—representing the Medical Bureau and North American Committee, New York City. Was in Barcelona, where air raids came every few days, from the Italians of the Balearic Islands stations."

For three months in 1937 and again in 1938 Pickens was a forum leader for the United States Government. He has continued to write many articles for magazines and newspapers and is at present contributing editor of the Associated Negro Press. He has served on various committees of the Community Church in New York.

William, Jr., studied at Lincoln University and then took the law course at Fordham University; he was on the Dean's List at both schools. He is now engaged in the practice of law in New York. He married Emily Brown, and they have two sons, Richard William, born July 16, 1932, and William, 3d, born September 27, 1936, both in New York. The older girl, Harriet, attended Smith, graduating cum laude. In 1930 she received the Smith "S," being the first American Negro to receive this award. Ruby, the younger girl, has an M.A. in physical education from New York University. She married James Holbrook, of Brooklyn, who has been for twenty years or so in the drafting offices of the Electrical Department of New York City.

Edgar LeRoy Pond

Town treasurer, Newington, Conn.
Residence, 1403 Main Street, Newington.

In October, 1932, Pond gave up the newspaper profession, and since October of the following year he has been town treasurer of the Town of Newington. He points out that Mrs. Pond's name was incorrectly given in the Twenty-five Year Record, for which we are very sorry. It should be Mary Wheeler Karlmann.

William George Powning

President and treasurer, George G. Powning, Inc. (advertising), 831 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn.
Residence, 597 Whalley Avenue, New Haven.

Since 1929 Powning has been president, as well as treasurer, of George G. Powning, Inc., with which he has been associated since his graduation from college. William Percival Powning, the older of his two sons, is a member of the Class of 1942 at Yale; he received his preparatory education at the New Haven High School. Garrett, the younger boy, hopes to enter Yale in 1944.

David Lindsey Randall

Professor of chemistry, Albion College, Albion, Mich.
Residence, 1100 Maple Street, Albion.

"I have led the busy and uneventful life of a college professor," says Randall, who has been teaching at Albion since 1919. "I have been impressed by the fact that things that we thought essential for the education of 1904 are often not taught now and those which are considered valuable now were not taught then."

He is a member of the Methodist Church. His daughter, Alice

(B.A. Albion 1934, M.A. Boston University 1936), was married on June 27, 1938, to Alfred E. Kilgour. The latter graduated from Albion in 1936 and from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology two years later. Randall's older son, David, graduated from Albion last June and is now studying medicine at the University of Michigan, while Helen is a member of the Albion Class of 1941. John, the youngest child, was born on December 15, 1923.

Willard Franklin Fitts Randolph

Pastor, Home Heights Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo.

Residence, 8726 Caroline Street, St. Louis.

Randolph, who gave up the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church in Humbredt, Nebr., in 1930, to accept a call to the Home Heights Presbyterian Church in St. Louis, writes as follows: "I am just one of 130,000,000 folks—I have my ups, I have my downs, like the rest of whom it may be said, “ ‘Along the cool, sequester'd vale of life,

They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.’

“We have all plans complete, and expect to begin building a new church in about a month.”

Randolph is a member of the Masonic order. He has had five children, the oldest of whom, Willard Gilbreth, was born in 1907 and died in 1908. David, the second boy, received a B.A. at Millikin University in 1931 and an M.A. at Michigan State in 1933. He is now teaching at the Johns Hill School in Decatur, Ill. The third boy, Willard Strong, who graduated from Central College in 1934, and Sam, the youngest boy, who graduated from the Rit-enour High School in St. Louis in 1936 and later attended the Hugo School of Music, are both connected with manufacturing concerns in St. Louis. George received a B.A. at Central College in 1935, graduated from the U.S. Naval Air Station in 1936, and is now stationed at Lambert Field, St. Louis. David's marriage to Harriett Jane Campbell took place in September, 1933, and they have two children, David Francis, Jr., and Sally Jane. George was married on June 6, 1938, to Helen Hirschfield, and Willard's marriage to Martha Germer took place on January 28, 1939.

Arthur Bernard Recknagel

Professor of forest management and utilization,
Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.
Residence, 523 Highland Road, Ithaca.

Recknagel has been a member of the Cornell faculty since 1913. In 1938, while on sabbatical leave, he had a taste of teaching in the West, for six months being a visiting professor at the University of British Columbia at Vancouver. Since 1929 he has been secretary of the Empire State Forest Products Association, and for a few months in 1932 he was acting secretary of the Northeastern Lumber Manufacturers Association, while from January, 1933, until May, 1937, he was a member of the conference committee of the N.R.A. Conservation Code. Recknagel has made many contributions to the Journal of Forestry and other technical journals, and he translated Dr. Franz Heske's book, German Forestry, which was published by the Yale University Press in 1938. He is a member of the Cornell Foresters, the Seal and Serpent Society of Ithaca, and also of Ho-nun-de-kah and the Ithaca Country Club. For some time he has been a vestryman of St. John's Episcopal Church, Ithaca, and he is chairman of the board of directors of the Cornell United Religious Work. For a number of years he has been secretary of the Yale Forest Class of 1906.

His older boy, Bernard, took a B.S. at the University of Virginia in 1934 and now has the position of superintendent of the St. Regis Paper Company at Watertown, N. Y. Thomas, the younger boy, graduated last June from Cornell. In concluding his report, Recknagel said, "There were but two foresters in the Class of 1904. Now one is gone—the other carries on in this bewildering age when to produce more than can be consumed is an economic crime and when to save more than one spends is to be an economic radical! To paraphrase Greeley's famous remark: 'The more I see of people, the better I like—trees.' But, no hermit, I look back to Yale and the Class of 1904 with nostalgic longings. Emphatically, those were 'good old times' in the sense of stability and a belief in our American institution of representative government as the best on earth—quite literally 'God-given.' ”

Ogden Reid

Editor, New York Herald Tribune, 230 West 41st Street,
New York City.

Residence, 15 East 84th Street, New York City.

In 1931 Reid gave the Commencement address at Miami University, at which time that university conferred the honorary degree of LL.D. upon him. He was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Yale News in 1934. His son, Whitelaw, who prepared for college at St. Paul's and graduated from Yale in 1936, is now with the Herald Tribune. Reid's younger son, Ogden, was born in 1925. He also had a daughter, Elisabeth, who was born in 1915 and died in 1924.

Harry Wilson Reynolds

Associate counsel, Ætna Life Insurance Company,
151 Farmington Avenue, Hartford, Conn.

Residence, 36 Bainbridge Road, West Hartford.

Reynolds, who was formerly a member of the law firm of Day, Berry & Reynolds, gave up this connection in July, 1932, to become associate counsel for the Ætna Life Insurance Company. He continues as secretary of the Connecticut Society of the Sons of the Revolution and as a member of the Trustees of Donations and Bequests for Church Purposes. He is now a communicant of St. John's Church (Episcopal) in West Hartford; the clubs to which he belongs are the Hartford Golf, Grove Beach Tennis, and Duck Island Yacht clubs.

His two oldest daughters, Ann and Jean, after attending the Oxford School in Hartford, went to Emma Willard, and Jean is still a student there, while Harriet, the youngest girl, is now at the Oxford School. Ann's marriage to Rockwell Braddock Ward took place on October 2, 1937; he is the son of George B. Ward, '02, and attended Deerfield Academy. Reynolds' sons, Harry, Jr., and David, are at the Kingswood School in West Hartford at the present time.

Pierce Butler Reynolds

Distributor for the International Nut Company of Chicago; business and residence address, 1127 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, Md.

In addition to his connection with the above company, Reynolds is president and a director of the Monroe County Water Supply Company and also a director of the Stroud Realty Company. "The others have all gone with the depression," he says. "The Roosevelt depression hit me very hard, and I have spent most of the time since 1935 looking for a good job, so I guess I'll have to get back into politics and let the taxpayers worry."

Reynolds belongs to the New York Yale Club. His first marriage ended in divorce in 1933, and he was married a second time in New York City on April 17, 1937, to J. Hope Alling, of New Haven. His daughter, Monica, who is a graduate of the Bouvé School for Physical Education in Boston, is now teaching athletics at Westover. John attends The Choate School.

Harry Izard Bacon Rice

Vice-president and actuary, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, 140 Garden Street, Hartford, Conn.
Residence, High Street, Farmington, Conn.

In 1931 Rice was made a vice-president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, with which he has been connected since 1905. His position as actuary dates from 1922. For a number of years he served as secretary and a director of the Connecticut Institute for the Blind, and a while ago he was on the executive committee of the Hartford Yale Alumni Association. He is a member of the Congregational Church in Farmington and belongs to the Golf and University clubs of Hartford. He mentioned that he plays with water colors a little to amuse his friends and himself and when he came to our final query, said, "This part of the questionnaire I have always found the hardest!—the part that causes me to procrastinate on the whole. For an 'old bachelor' is peculiarly situated—of course he is saturated with expert knowledge of how to bring up children. Where others have their own families, he must get his outlets from other people's children and his work.

“So, all I can say is that I have found my work very congenial and am glad I did not drift into a type of research which tends to exclude human relationships; that I have some nieces and nephews, godchildren, etc., in whom I am interested. Perhaps I get most satisfaction from a feeling that my own particular task is indirectly very useful to society.”

John Markham Riley

Residence, 714½ West 4th Street, Tulsa.

In reporting for the Thirty-fifth Reunion Record Riley said, “Pat Hurley told a Yale man that I once got a political job because I could ride a horse. As I recall it, the proceeds enabled me, via a cattle train, to reach Connecticut. My first political job, however, was when I was fifteen years old. At that time, the Five Civilized Tribes had governments similar to the states of the Union, with elective and appointive officials, such as principal chief, second chief, attorney general, supreme court and lesser court justices, etc. Being one eighth Cherokee Indian and seven eighths Irish, Scotch, and English, I was a member of the Cherokee Nation, which was divided into nine districts or counties, with the customary elective and appointive officials. There were two political parties, and all male members of the tribe over eighteen years of age were eligible to vote. A friend of mine, who was a candidate for clerk of Illinois District, arranged for me to vote and when he was elected he appointed me his deputy. One of my duties was to attend court and in felony cases to make a transcript of the testimony, which I was able to do, since there were full-blooded Indians on the jury and as witnesses and an interpreter was used. At this time I was also appointed clerk of Vian, Indian Territory, the town in which I lived. I had held these jobs about one year, when Professor Almon C. Bacone, a graduate of Rochester University and founder of Bacone University at Bacone, Indian Territory, persuaded me to attend his school, from which I was graduated in 1898. Curiosity to learn how people lived where he came from probably led me to land in New Haven in September, 1900, complete four years' study in three years in residence, and get one vote as meekest man in the Class, which record as vote getter possibly influenced me against ever seeking an elective office.

"I have had little success financially. Moved along on an even keel for a time, zoomed for a few years, came down and was just tolerable for a period, and during the last seven years have not connected with any of the life lines thrown out. Just muddling through. Otherwise, I have done well enough. Haven't done anything that would influence me to emigrate after living most of my three score years within fifty miles of where I was born. Have helped to raise an average family and its members can walk down the street, look any one in the eye, and pass by without anything uncomplimentary being spoken. Friendships and acquaintanceships are not based on membership in club, lodge, or organization of any kind. Am enjoying a not exciting, but a rather satisfactory life."

All four of Riley's children (William, Louise, Richard, and Elizabeth) attended the Holy Family High School in Tulsa; Richard also went to the Central High School, and Louise is now a member of the Class of 1940 at the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College. William enlisted in the Navy in January, 1938, and is at present attached to the U.S.S. Nevada.

Nelson Studebaker Riley

Associated with the law firm of Roberts & Tracenell, 1001 Fidelity Building, Kansas City, Mo.
Residence, 2321 Fieldston Road, Rosedale Station,
Kansas City, Kansas.

Riley continued as president of the Studebaker-Riley Motor Company until about 1931 and then took up the practice of law again. He was also for a time in the air-conditioning business. He gives additional details as follows: "The depression blew up the Studebaker Corporation and blew me with it. I am grateful though for what was saved from the wreck. Have a lovely garden, in which I spend most of my time. My law practice is very limited and desultory. The fall and early winter is filled with bird and duck hunting. Winter means more bridge and reading. Tried to reform the city government several years ago, but the Pendergast machine knocked my ears down. Looks now as if we had a chance. I am 100 per cent anti-New Deal. F.D.R. was in my class at Columbia Law School."

Several years ago Riley held office as president of the local Yale Club. At present he belongs to the Kansas City Country Club, the Kansas City Club, the Kansas City Skeet Club, and a few duck clubs. In 1937 he published a volume of poems under the title, The Silver Flame and Other Poems. He is a Christian Scientist.

Riley and his wife were divorced in 1933. His son, Nelson Studebaker, Jr., attended the Pomfret and Hackley schools and then went to the Principia. Subsequently he took a course at the Curtis-Wright School, and he is now an engineer with the Bell Aircraft Company in Buffalo.

Heaton Ridgway Robertson

Engineer of shell-fisheries for the State of Connecticut; business address, 185 Church Street, New Haven, Conn.

Residence, 245 Whitney Avenue, New Haven.

"Even after you tell it the most interesting things will still be left unsaid," Robertson remarked when he came to the final question on the Class record questionnaire. "If I am keeping as young as I try to be (and as we all think we are), it is by many days of labor, from carpenter work to mowing weeds, or fixing things: that, and playing with young people, whenever they will let me. Figure skating, though, is still my chief delight, on account, I suppose, of the many friends of this rapidly growing sport all over the country. Cannot skate much myself now, and if riper years (and judgment?) are sneaking up on me unawares, that fact and the late bus to the Field and seat on the grandstand is a manifest indication of it. In the good old happy center-field days I never dreamed I would come to this."

Robertson's job as engineer of shell-fisheries in Connecticut dates from 1916. He has been treasurer of the U.S. Figure Skating Association since 1928 and from 1934 to 1937 served as commodore of the New Haven Yacht Club. He belongs to the Larchmont Yacht Club, the Graduates Club of New Haven, and the University Club of Providence, and is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church. His daughter, Kathleen, who went to Dobbs Ferry, was married on August 7, 1935, to Frank Hamilton Whittemore (B.A. Yale 1932, LL.B. 1935), who is now with the law firm of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts, New York City. Robertson's son, A. Heaton Robertson, 2d, graduated from Yale last June and is now at the University of Virginia Law School.

Julius Rockwell

Salesman for the Merrimack Card Clothing Company, Andover, Mass.
Residence, Andover.

Rockwell is still with the Merrimack Card Clothing Company. His three boys have all attended Andover, and the two oldest, Julius, Jr., and William, are now at the University of Michigan. Francis has not yet finished his preparation for college.

Barnette Freeman Roe

Residence, Grey Eagle, Minn.

Roe reports that he is now retired from any active public work. His oldest boy, Stanley, and his daughter, Helen, have both attended the Teachers' College at DeKalb, Ill. The other children are Howard and Rolland. Helen married Clarence Hillegendo and is now living in Glenwood, Ill.

Norman Nienstedt Rupp

With the Rupp Investment Company, 904 Bedell Building, Portland, Ore.

Residence, 2056 S.W. Montgomery Drive, Portland.

Rupp, who has been handling timber properties ever since graduation, says that he has held all the offices up and down the ladder in the Oregon Yale Alumni Association. At present he is on the scholarship committee. "The most recent high spot," he adds, "was a motor trip East with my family last summer—visits with Stebbins, Billy Peltz, the Howard Tuttlés, and the Clare Mendels 'neath the elms of dear old Yale.'"

Rupp has had four children, but two of them, Laura and John, are no longer living. His second daughter, Virginia, is now a Senior at Scripps College in Claremont, Calif., and Norman, Jr., goes to the Lincoln High School in Portland.

Arthur Sandiford

Instructor in mathematics and science at the Fairfield Country Day School, Fairfield, Conn.

Residence, Morningside, R.F.D., Milford, Conn.

"The Fairfield Country Day School, founded in 1936 by Laurence Gregory, Yale '09, is the pride of my heart," Sandiford tells us. "We have few 'isms' or 'alogies.' Instead, the 3 R's feature the headlines of our program. The response of students and parents has been beautiful beyond belief."

Sandiford belongs to the New Haven and Bridgeport Mineral clubs. His son, Arthur Sandiford, Jr., graduated from the Yale School of Engineering with the Class of 1939.

Roger Sands

President and treasurer, Ehrlich-Harrison Company (hardwood lumber), 35 Hanford Street, Seattle, Wash.
Residence, 3346 Lakewood Avenue, Seattle.

Sands, who continues as president and treasurer of the Ehrlich-Harrison Company, wholesale and retail dealers in hardwood lumber, belongs to the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, the Seattle Rotary Club, and the Rainier Club.

His oldest daughter, Mary, graduated from Washington State College in 1934 and was married on September 12 of that year to H. O. Juckeland. He graduated from Washington State College in 1933 and is now block manager for International Harvester in Lewiston, Idaho. The Juckelands have two daughters, Joan Caroline, born July 3, 1935, and Elizabeth Helene, born May 4, 1937, both in Spokane. Sands' second daughter, Elizabeth, graduated in 1935 from Smith, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa; she is assistant to the editor of the Company Publications in Seattle. Wilma, the third daughter, who was born in 1916, died in 1933. Roger, Jr., is a member of the Class of 1941 at Dartmouth.

*Robert Percy Schenck

Member of the insurance firm of Schenck & Schenck,
 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J.
Residence, 2600 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City.

The firm of Schenck & Schenck, of which Schenck has been a member since January, 1911, is a co-partnership consisting of his father, who is nearly eighty years old, his brother, Douglas, Yale '05 S., and himself. Schenck has been a trustee and member of the finance committee of the Community Welfare Chest of Jersey City since 1932, and he is secretary and a board member of the Jersey City Boys Clubs, Inc. He is a member of the Bergen Reformed Church of Jersey City—the oldest church in the state (1660)—and, in addition to various organizations pertaining to his business, he belongs to the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club (of which he was formerly president), the Sons of the American Revolution, the Holland Society of New York, the Baltusrol Golf Club of Short Hills, N. J., and the Carteret Club of Jersey City.

When Schenck sent his questionnaire for this record in May, 1939, he said: "In June, 1934, I suffered a heart attack, which prevented attendance at the Thirtieth Reunion, the only reunion I have missed, which was a keen disappointment to me. In consequence, my activities have of necessity been considerably curtailed, but I am still on the job, giving all my time to business in the endeavor to make a living and pay taxes in these very hectic years of the New Deal."

Laurence Selling

Residence, 2228 S.W. 21st Avenue, Portland.

"I am actively engaged in the practice of medicine and in teaching at the University of Oregon Medical School [where he is head of the Department of Medicine] and am busy and happy with my family and my work," Selling tells us. For several years he has served as vice-president of the Oregon Mental Hygiene Society. His recent publications include: "Chronic Benzol Poisoning," in International Clinics, 1935, and "Action of Benzol, Roentgen Ray, and Radioactive Substances on the Blood and Blood-Forming Tissues," in the Handbook of Hematology by Hal Downey, published by Hoeher in 1938. Selling is a member of Temple Beth Israel in Portland.

Philip, his oldest boy, graduated from Reed College in 1935 and from the University of Oregon Medical School in 1939. John also went to Reed College, and Margaret is a member of the Class of 1940 there, having entered in 1938 from Mills College, where she had spent the preceding two years. John is working at present with Wadhams & Company, wholesale grocers, in Portland. Selling says he hopes to have Ben enter Yale with the Class of 1945.

Paul Shaffrath

Lawyer, 511 Marion Building, Seattle, Wash.

Residence, 502 West Roy Street, Seattle.

Shaffrath, who was formerly a partner in the firm of Shaffrath & Fluent, is now practicing independently. He is a member of Plymouth Congregational Church in Seattle and of Seattle Lodge No. 7, I.O.O.F. "I am afraid our Class has passed its zenith," he says. "Here we have lost, rather recently, two of our small contingent—Burns and Love—and it seems but yesterday that when, on opening the Class secretary's last dark-bordered notice and asking myself the hypothetical question, 'Who next'—was I shocked, grieved beyond measure, to find that it struck home closely this time in that it reported the passing, the untimely passing, of 'Nick'—Professor Nichols later on—which brought back vividly many happy incidents of two years' close association as roommates in old Farnam Hall. His joyous optimism, friendly disposition, and unblemished life will make his memory a benediction to all of us.

"Last time I heard his voice was some years ago when he was in a party visiting Mount Rainier—and called me up long distance to say hello and send us greetings from the heights. He had great admiration for this wonderland—Rainier National Park—and rightly so. I would join in commending a visit—short or long—to its hospitable slopes, Paradise Park, Yakima Park, Sunrise, etc., to all those of the Class who have never enjoyed such an exhilarating outing. A few might even aspire to climb the top of this majestic dome, and, let it be remembered, apparently extinct volcano!"

Shaffrath's daughter, Louise, graduated, cum laude, at the University of Washington in 1935 and has been with the State Social Security Department most of the time since then, at present being in charge of the children's department of that work in Ellensburg, Wash. Paul was in the Class of 1940 at the University of Washington; he spent two years in the Forestry School there, but has now transferred to national park service, which he expects to make his permanent work after graduation. He received his "W" in skiing and volley ball last year. Shaffrath says that he is a real husky, being six feet, two inches tall.

John Jacob Shambaugh

General manager, J. J. Shambaugh & Company (investments), 616 Insurance Exchange Building, Des Moines, Iowa.
Residence, 548 43d Street, Des Moines.

In 1932 Shambaugh left the Des Moines Life & Annuity Company, of which he was president, to become receiver in charge of the Register Life Insurance Company of Davenport, Iowa. For the past two years he has been general manager of J. J. Shambaugh & Company. He is a member of the University and Kiwanis clubs of Des Moines. Shambaugh has two daughters, Elizabeth and Nancy; the older girl attended Scripps College as a member of the Class of 1939.

Kenneth Rae Shand

President, Essex Title Guaranty & Trust Company, 583 Bloomfield Avenue, Montclair, N. J.
Residence, 27 North Mountain Avenue, Montclair.

Since 1927 Shand has been president of the Essex Title Guaranty & Trust Company, with which he first became connected in 1909. He is serving as president of the Nishuane Building and Loan Association and the Essex County Building & Loan League and as vice-chairman of the Montclair Town Planning Board. "Strange as it may seem, I have never been so busy in my life," he remarks.

Shand belongs to the Montclair Rotary and Athletic clubs. His son, Kenneth, who is a graduate of the Montclair Academy, is in the real estate business in Bloomfield, N. J. Marjorie, who attended the Kimberly School in Montclair and the Phoenix Art School in New York, was married on April 19, 1940, to George S. Wing, Jr., Yale '35. S. Gordon goes to the Montclair High School.

Carleton Shaw

President of Shaw, Inc. (real estate), 1116 Madison Avenue, Toledo, Ohio.

Residence, 216 10th Street, Toledo.

Shaw reports that he has been president of the above firm since 1934, but gives no further information other than that he is still a bachelor and that he belongs to the Toledo Club.

Patrick Joseph Sheehan

Residence, 13 Ward Street, Norwich, Conn.

Sheehan retired from business some years ago on account of poor health.

Henry Wood Shelton

Consulting engineer in management; business address,
Box 48, LaJolla, Calif.

Residence, 1560 Torrey Pines Road, LaJolla.

Shelton has been engaged in work along the above lines for a number of years. Since 1928 he has been a trustee of the Library Association of LaJolla. His oldest boy, John, received a B.A. at Pomona in 1935 and has since been working for a Ph.D. in geology at Yale; last May he was appointed instructor in mineralogy at the University. His marriage to Gertrude Winthrop Coffin, who graduated from the Beaver Country Day School in 1931 and from Vassar in 1935, took place at Duxbury, Mass., on September 8, 1937; they have a daughter, Nancy Hale, who was born in New Haven on June 13, 1938. Hal received a B.A. at Pomona in 1938 and is now a junior engineer with the U.S. Geological Survey. The youngest son, Robert, was born on September 30, 1923.

When Shelton came to our question, "Now tell us anything and everything about yourself that we haven't asked for," he said, "A few words of wisdom and warning on the passing scene were my intention. I thought to point out some of the political, economic, social, and scientific contradictions which clamor for solution and to deplore the general scramble to get something for nothing (without regard to the other fellow, who thereby gets nothing for something). But then I thought: 'Why? You other gray and bald heads are not blind, or deaf, nor are many of you conspicuously dumb. You desire and strive, no less than I, to understand and solve the pressing problems of your several worlds. So why bore you with the serious, working side of my life, or tread on your pet prejudices, or impose my own?'

"Therefore, instead, here are a few of our family adventures in contentment during the past ten years: A pack train trip in the High Sierras—over one pass 13,000 feet high—three weeks on horseback beyond reach of other humans, our six-year-old Robin proving himself a natural. Various camping trips in desert and mountains, including the Grand Cañon, the Yellowstone, Mount Rainier and the Olympic Peninsula, and Vancouver Island. Building, largely with our own hands, a cabin at 5,000 feet elevation, two hours' drive from our home on the shore of the Pacific. A trip abroad in 1936, visiting nine countries, including the U.S.S.R., where our experience proved how one-sided are most of the reports one reads here. A neighborhood orchestra (ages ten to fifty) and occasional family simple chamber music, such as Haydn trios and quartets and Mozart's 'Eine Kleine Nacht-Music' in which I essay the cello part."

Dudley Frank Sicher

Member of the law firm of Davidson, Moses & Sicher, 160 Broadway,
New York City.

Residence, 601 West 110th Street, New York City.

Sicher, who has been a partner in the above firm since 1921, served from April 8 to June 8, 1937, as a temporary justice of the Domestic Relations Court of the City of New York, and in September, 1939, he received another temporary appointment to this court to fill an unexpired term. During the year 1937-38 Sicher was commissioner of appraisal in the proceedings of the Board of Water Supply of New York, Delaware Section, by appointment of the Supreme Court of the State of New York. He has held a number of trusteeships under wills and for the past two years has been a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York Committee on Domestic Relations Court of the City of New York. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the National Lawyers Guild, the New York County Lawyers Association, the Lawyers Club, the Academy of Political Science, the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni of New York, the Manhattan Chess Club (director), the Yale Club of New York, the Quaker Ridge Golf Club, Inc., in Mamaroneck, N. Y. (of whose finance committee he is a member), and the Masonic order.

He concludes his report for our book with the following: "The Thirty-fifth Reunion questionnaire should deflate any egotism; its citation to an accounting of concrete achievements lays bare our mediocrity.

"In a world of vast problems and cataclysmic changes, it is no longer enough merely 'to be honest, to be kind—to earn a little and spend a little less,' nor may one still lay to his soul the flattering unction that 'if a man love the labor of any trade, apart from any question of success or fame, the gods have called him.' Nowadays, something more is due on a noblesse oblige roll call of those privileged to have been Yale undergraduates during the four opening years of the century.

"And yet the succeeding span has not been barren of things of the spirit. Youthful idealism may have seeded into complacency, and we survivors perhaps constitute only a select group of Babbits. But our June, 1939, reunion manifested real and abiding values; unquestionably it was a stimulating and heart-warming experience to re-mingle and match views with scattered contemporaries of diverse personalities but of backgrounds containing the common factor of roots in the same early manhood environment.

"Also inspiriting, in this dark era of intolerance, is Yale's vigorously outspoken espousal of the cause of individual freedom, recently expressed in President Seymour's baccalaureate sermon on 'public opinion' and conferring an honorary degree upon Beneš of Czechoslovakia. For, of course, if our civil liberties go, all else is dross.”

Joseph William Sidenberg

Associate manager of the uptown branch office of Stephen J. Stroock & Company, brokers, Savoy-Plaza Hotel, 761 5th Avenue,
New York City.

Residence, 12 East 86th Street, New York City.

In January, 1929, Sidenberg entered the brokerage field, after having been in the cotton goods business ever since graduation. He was associated with L. F. Rothschild & Company until 1939, at first in New York City and later at Saratoga Springs. Since last April he has been with Stephen J. Stroock & Company. He belongs to the Yale Club and the Turf and Field Club.

Sidenberg and his wife were divorced in 1935. His daughter, Janet, who attended Leatherhead Court in Surrey and the Bennett School at Millbrook, N. Y., was married on April 28, 1931, in New York City to Joseph S. Reckford, Harvard '24; they have two sons: Kenneth, born in May, 1933, and Philip in June, 1936, both in New York City. Sidenberg's son, John, studied at Bishop's School at Lenoxville, Ontario, Hotchkiss, and Williams College, where two years were spent. He is in the advertising business with Brown & Thomas.

Brainerd Edwards Smith

Partner in the law firm of Perley D. & B. E. Smith, 253 Essex Street, Lawrence, Mass.

Residence, 116 East Street, Methuen, Mass.

When Smith filled out his questionnaire on July 1, 1939, he remarked that he had recently joined the Italian Alpine Club and went on: "My law practice has been more exacting and my interest in the activities of my family more absorbing than ever in the past ten years. I can honestly say I am not a good golfer and yet I have had great fun trying to be one. But I have derived the greatest enjoyment from my favorite sport, mountain climbing, in our near-by White Mountains, in Canada, and in Europe. Last summer I went with my wife, son, and daughter on a climbing trip to the eastern Alps, taking along our own car, which made it possible for us to reach several remote mountainous regions, such as the Auvergne and Cevennes ranges in Central France (the latter where R. L. Stevenson made his Travels with a Donkey), and in Italy the northern Apennines, the Brescian Alps, the Ortler Group, and best of all, the Dolomites in the province of Bolzano, which offer the most remarkable scenery for color and picturesque peaks and valleys I have seen anywhere. We also penetrated into some striking sections of the Austrian Alps, the Gross Glockner, the Gesause, and Salzkammergut and even a part of Czeckia, I believe it should now be called, whence we intended to continue east to the Tatra range of the Carpathians between Poland and Slovakia; but as Runciman was then working in Prague and things looked pretty hot, we concluded it was wise, after a visit with some Sudeten friends, to get back to Vienna before conditions became any more warlike."

Smith is on the boards of the Lawrence Savings Bank, the Lawrence City Mission, the Lawrence International Institute, and the Salvation Army and is serving as a vestryman of Grace Episcopal Church in Lawrence. His daughter, Clara, completed her course at Abbot Academy in 1933, and Everett graduated from Sheff in 1938.

Robert Lincoln Smitley

President, Dixie Business Book Shop, 126 Liberty Street,
New York City.

Residence, 204 South Euclid Avenue, Westfield, N. J.

In answering our question about himself, Smitley said, "Good health—plenty of interesting acquaintances—fine books—good home—optimistic—cannot think of anything interesting otherwise. No complaints." For additional information about his business he refers us to the "Off the Record" section in the April, 1939, issue of Fortune. His book, Popular Financial Delusions, was published by the Swain Company in 1933. He has written a number of magazine articles and special résumés, but says that they are too numerous to list. With his questionnaire Smitley sent an interesting article written to sustain his contention that when he graduated from college he left with more information than is contained in the brains of Kieran, Adams, Levant, and all the invited guests to "Information Please." We regret that space limitations prevent our quoting from this.

Smitley's daughter, Frances, who attended Simmons College and Connecticut College, was married on November 7, 1924, to O. John Zeiller, and they have a son, John Robert, who was born in Westfield on November 4, 1928.

Cornelius Harry Snell

Manager, C. R. Snell & Sons Company (retail lumber), 301 East Albany Street, Herkimer, N. Y.
Residence, 245 North Main Street, Herkimer.

Snell continues as manager and a member of the firm of C. R. Snell & Sons Company in Herkimer, and he is also a director of the First National Bank, the Herkimer Memorial Hospital, and the Herkimer Free Library. He is a member of the consistory of the Herkimer Reformed Church.

Cornelia and Julia, his two oldest daughters, are studying home economics at Cornell, the former with the Class of 1940 and the latter with 1942. Harry, Jr., expects to complete his course at the Hope School in 1941, and Katharine is at the Herkimer High School. The two youngest Snells are George, who was born in 1923, and Mary, aged fifteen.

Walter Bunce Spencer

Principal, Commercial High School, New Haven, Conn.
Residence, 117 Marvel Road, New Haven.

Spencer, who became principal of the Commercial High School in New Haven in 1920, has edited and published monthly since 1930 the Bulletin of the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference, an organization of the Connecticut high schools, and he is also associate editor of Scholastic Coach, a national publication devoted to high school athletics, and has been an occasional contributor to Congregational Connecticut. He was president of the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference from 1923 to 1937 and has since been executive secretary, and he has served as president of the council of the New England Secondary School Principals Association and as a member of the board of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. Since 1931 Spencer has taken part regularly in the annual drives, etc., of the New Haven Community Chest (served on the budget committee from 1934 to 1937), and he was on the "do-good-chest" Committee of the New Haven Rotary Club from 1936 to 1939. He has been on the board of managers of the New Haven Children's Center since 1937 and of the New Haven Boys' Club since 1930, also being president of the latter organization for the past four years. He is a member of Plymouth Congregational Church in New Haven and is serving as chairman of the Connecticut State Laymen's Committee; in 1938 he went as a delegate to the biennial General Council at Beloit. Spencer is a member of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, the Masons, the Grange, the University Glee Club of New Haven, and also of the Congregational and Graduates clubs of New Haven and the Woodbridge Hills Golf Club.

His oldest boy, Walter, Jr., graduated from Mount Hermon last June, receiving the "Cum Laude" election there, and is now a Freshman at Yale. Katherine, the older girl, is a member of the Northfield Class of 1941; she has been on the honor list. The other children are Charles Corliss, born January 16, 1926, Antoinette on July 19, 1930, James Albert on September 18, 1934. "My youngest son is not yet five! Is this a Class record?" Spencer asks.

Norval Burpee Spinney

Principal, Junior High School, West Springfield, Mass.

Residence, 754 Alden Street, Springfield.

Spinney, who has served in the above capacity for a number of years, is an executive in the Boy Scout organization and belongs to the Baptist Church. His older daughter, Katherine, taught domestic science for a time after graduating from Simmons College in 1929; she married Frederic C. Holmes, a graduate of Worcester Tech, and they have two sons, Curtis Lane, born May 17, 1936, and Milton Calvin, born April 13, 1939, both in Lee, Mass. Rachel, the younger girl, attended Mount Holyoke and also has a degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She taught at Smith College for six years and is now a candidate for the degree of Ph.D. at the University of Michigan.

Robert Allan Squire

Partner in the W. H. Squire Company (insurance), 67 Colony Street, Meriden, Conn.

Residence, 140 Hillcrest Terrace, Meriden.

In addition to the above connection—which has lasted since 1906—Squire is president of the Meriden Title Finance Corporation, which finances the purchase of automobiles. He is a director of the Y.M.C.A. and the Employers' Association, is a member of the Alpine Club of Canada, the Appalachian Mountain Club, and the Choral Club of Hartford, and belongs to the First Congregational Church of Meriden. From May, 1930 until last June he was organist of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Middletown, Conn. "Have nothing to tell," Squire remarked, but then went on, "Routine of business life, family planning, and attempting to make both ends meet take up most of my time. Spent a delightful vacation in the Canadian Rockies in 1935 with my daughter, making the trip by automobile and taking in Glacier and Yellowstone Parks. Went on a West Indies cruise with my wife in 1937—trip won in a contest conducted by one of the companies we represent, the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company of Chicago."

His older boy, Wilbur Welles, who prepared for college at the Salisbury School and Choate, graduated from Princeton in 1938. Squire's daughter, Dorothy Southworth, received her preparatory education at the Emma Willard School and is now a member of the Vassar Class of 1940. His youngest son, Robert Wolcott, was born July 20, 1931.

George Emanuel Stansfield

Assistant managing editor of the Hartford Courant, 64 State Street, Hartford, Conn.

Residence, 102 Avon Street, New Haven, Conn.

Since November, 1939, Stansfield has been assistant managing editor of the Hartford Courant, with which he became connected in 1924. His son, Robert, who graduated from Wesleyan in 1935, is now assistant financial editor of the paper. Stansfield's daughter, Edith, attended Connecticut College and is at present a private secretary at Grace Hospital in New Haven. Robert married Estrid Mattson, of Berlin, Conn.

Residence, 1218 Clover Street, Rochester.

At the present time the Class secretary is secretary and treasurer of the East Avenue & Gibbs Street Corporation and the Rochester & New York Realty Company in Rochester and is commissioner of Brighton Sewer District No. 2. In addition, in 1939 he became president of the First Industrial Bank of Rochester, and he is also a director of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association, the Abstract Title & Mortgage Corporation, the Family Welfare Association (of whose board he was president from 1928 to 1930), the Citizens Tax League (president of the board during 1936-37), and the Automobile Club of Rochester. He served as a director of the First National Bank & Trust Company from 1929 to 1936, also being vice-president from 1933 to 1936, and he was a member of the New York State Committee on Stabilization of Industry for the Prevention of Unemployment, appointed by Governor Roosevelt in 1930, and chairman of the Rochester Civic Committee on Unemployment from 1930 to 1935. In 1930 he became a director of the Rochester Community Chest and during the next six years acted as chairman of its budget committee. He belongs to the Third Presbyterian Church of Rochester and was a member of its board of trustees from 1912 to 1930 and treasurer from 1914 to 1926. During 1929-30 he was a director of the Federation of Churches of Rochester and Monroe County and president of the board and for the past two years has been a member of the executive committee of the Synod of New York of the Presbyterian Church. Since 1932 he has been a member of the board of visitors of the State Normal School at Brockport, and he has been a director of the Auburn Theological Seminary since 1935 and president of the board since 1939, a trustee of Wells College since 1937, and chairman of its board since 1939. He belongs to the Country and Tennis clubs of Rochester and the Quogue Beach Club at Quogue, Long Island.

Stebbins' daughter, Julia, attended the Masters School, L'Ermitage at Versailles, the Mechanics Institute in Rochester, and the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts. On September 14, 1935, she was married to William Watson Northrop, of New York City, who attended the Collegiate School of New York, Amherst, and Massachusetts Tech, where he graduated in 1925; they have two children, James Watson, born October 3, 1936, in New York City, and Clarinda Carrington, born November 17, 1939, in Rochester. Henry Hamlin Stebbins, 3d, who attended the Fessenden and Hill schools and Amherst, is buyer for the book department of Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company of Rochester. His marriage to Mina Gary Armstrong, of Selma, Ala., took place on May 31, 1939; she attended the Masters School and Chatham Hall and graduated from Duke University in 1937. The two youngest boys, Arthur and Frederick, prepared for college at Fessenden and Andover and graduated from Yale in 1934. Arthur is assistant treasurer of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Rochester, and Frederick is with the advertising firm of McCann-Erickson, Inc., in New York City.

His older daughter, Margaret, who attended the Johns Hopkins Training School for Nurses, married Edwin F. Kehr, University of Wisconsin '26, Johns Hopkins Medical School '30, in October, 1930, in Santa Barbara, Calif. Dr. Kehr died on November 1, 1937, and she is now living in Carmel, Calif. Taylor's younger daughter, Virginia, attended the University of Louisville and the St. Joseph School for Technicians in Louisville; her marriage to Dale Black Leidig, a graduate of the University of Oregon, took place in Pasadena on October 9, 1937, and they have a son, Brian Dale, born in Carmel, June 16, 1939.

Thomas Day Thacher

Partner in the law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett,
120 Broadway, New York City.
Residence, 16 East 73d Street, New York City.

In 1933 Thacher resigned as solicitor general of the United States and at that time returned to his old firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett. He served as president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York from 1933 to 1935 and the following year was chairman of the New York City Charter Revision Commission. He is a director of the Foreign Bondholders Protective Council and a trustee of the New York Public Library and of The Taft School, and he has also served as a member of the council of the American Law Institute. Thacher has been an alumni fellow of the Yale Corporation since 1931. He served as president of the Yale Law School Association from 1933 to 1936 and at present is chairman of one of the committees formed to raise an additional endowment for the Yale Law Library. In 1933 he was given the Montclair "Yale Bowl," awarded annually to a distinguished alumnus, and in 1937 he received the Boys' Association Gold Medal, "for outstanding and unselfish service to the City of New York." He is an associate fellow of Branford College at Yale and belongs to the New York Yale Club. He received an honorary LL.D. at Yale in 1930 and at the University of Wisconsin in 1935.

Thacher's older daughter, Sarah, graduated from Smith in 1931 and was married on August 22 of that year to George L. Storm, Yale '28; they have two children, George and Mary Eunice. His second daughter, Mary Eunice, received her degree at Vassar in 1932. Thomas graduated from Yale in 1938, spent the following year studying abroad, and is now in the Yale Law School.

Chauncey Edwards Treadwell

as vice-president of the Casket Manufacturers Association of America and a member of its executive committee during 1935 and 1936. He has been a trustee of the Wakefield Savings Bank since 1937 and has served as a member of the local Board of Assessors for eight years, being chairman for four. He is a member of the Wakefield Congregational Church. Tuttle reports as follows: "Regularly attend the luncheons, dinners, and outings of the Boston Yale Club, where I enjoy meeting Barnes, Esty, Chandler, King, and Woodbridge, but miss the others who should also be present. Lead a normal small-town sort of time, enjoy my family, the dog; play a little contract, a little golf; smoke and otherwise indulge myself moderately in vices. Interest myself somewhat in my church and of course apply myself to the job of trying to eke out a livelihood under increasingly difficult conditions."

Howard MacGregor Tuttle, Jr., went to the Salisbury School for two years, graduated from Sheff in 1936, and is now doing sales promotion work with the General Foods Company in Cincinnati. Katrine, the oldest girl, who graduated from Smith in 1937, is now tutoring three girls in a private family. The second boy, John Forbes Tuttle, completed his course at Green Mountain Junior College in 1939; he prepared for college at Tabor Academy and the Brown and Nichols School. Jane is at the Emma Willard School and the youngest boy, Philip Benjamin, goes to Taft. Susan, the youngest child, is still in grammar school.

Herman Henry VanHorn

Pathologist at the Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital, Harrisburg, Pa.

Residence, 2339 North 4th Street, Harrisburg.

VanHorn left the Maine General Hospital in 1930 to assume his present position as pathologist at the Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital. He reports that he is a member of the Unitarian Church. Robert Hibbard VanHorn, the oldest of his three sons, received the degree of B.S. at Penn State in 1937 and then did graduate work at Columbia for a time. He is now engaged in research work with the Bell Laboratories in New York City and is married to Helen Baum. The second boy, George Schermerhorn, is studying at the Dunmire School of Music, and the youngest, John Hills, is attending a school of aviation.

William Bryan Wait

First vice-president, Nye-Wait Company, Inc., manufacturer of carpets and rugs, 11 North Division Street, Auburn, N. Y.

Residence, 211 Genesee Street, Auburn.

Wait has been in the carpet and rug manufacturing business in Auburn ever since graduation. His present position as first vice-president of the Nye-Wait Company, Inc. (formerly the Nye & Wait-Kilmarnoch Corporation), dates from 1936. He is a member of St. Peter's Episcopal Church and belongs to the Owasco Country Club. Mrs. Wait's death occurred on December 29, 1930.

Francis Eames Walton

Senior partner in Hunter, Walton & Company (butter, cheese, and eggs), 164 Chambers Street, New York City.

Residence, 109 Willow Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The years roll by fairly peacefully," said Walton, writing in May, 1939. "I have been taking every other summer off—spent one on a ranch with my wife and four children and in 1937 toured France, Switzerland, and Italy all summer. The New Deal has made it increasingly more difficult to do this, so this summer I will have to stay at work as I have three beautiful débutantes to provide for."

In addition to his connection with Hunter, Walton & Company, which dates from 1904, Walton is a trustee of the Irving Savings Bank, secretary and a member of the executive committee of the New York Mercantile Exchange, assistant treasurer of the Brooklyn Orphan Asylum, and a member of the board of trustees of the Brooklyn Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. He is on the membership committee of the 1st Reserve Aero Squadron and attends the Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn. His clubs are the Merchants of New York City, the Heights Casino of Brooklyn, and the Nassau Country of Glen Cove, Long Island.

Walton's daughters all attended the Packer Collegiate Institute in Brooklyn. The two older girls, Andrée and Jean, are now at the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn., and the younger one, Francise, goes to the Madeira School in Greenway, Va. Walton's son, Jacques, was for a time at the Poly Prep Country Day School in Brooklyn and is now at St. Mark's.

Sheldon Eaton Wardwell

Partner in the law firm of Burdett, Wardwell & Ranney, 84 State Street, Boston, Mass.

Residence, 73 Seaver Street, Brookline, Mass.

Wardwell, who has been a partner in the above firm since 1910, is a member of the executive committee of the Great Northern Paper Company, chairman of the executive committee of the Champion International Company, vice-president of the Lynnellen Corporation, and a director of the Mineola Homes Company, the Knox Lime Company, the Millinocket Water Company, the North Branch Dam Company, the Pope Appliance Corporation, the Northern Water Company, the Seboomook Dam Company, and the West Branch Dam & Reservoir Company. He belongs to the Brookline Country Club, the Beacon Society, the Exchange, Algonquin, Union, Engineers, Middlesex, Yale, and Republican clubs of Boston, the Essex Country Club of Manchester, the Sabbatis Club of New Brunswick, and the National Republican and Yale clubs of New York. His church affiliations are Episcopalian.

Wardwell's oldest daughter, Polly, who attended the Winsor School and St. Timothy's, was married on February 26, 1938, in Boston, to Chauncey Keep Hutchins, who went to St. Mark's and Princeton. Mary, the second girl, studied at the Lee School in Boston; she married James Espy Simonds, of Brookline, who attended the University of Chicago. Wardwell's son, Jacob Otis, 2d, who is at St. Paul's, plans to enter Yale. The youngest child, Anne Ransom, was born in 1930.

Lawyer, 1030 Grant Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Residence, 4800 Ellsworth Avenue, Pittsburgh.

"There is not much to tell," Warmcastle remarks. "Since the death of my partner [in 1935] I have continued the practice of law and in 1929 was considering either retiring or at least limiting my practice. At present the limit is off, and I am making every effort to prevent a compulsory retirement. However, I and all of my family enjoy perfect health and with my four-year-old granddaughter as a pal I am leading a very happy existence."

Warmcastle is a member of the Yale Club of Pittsburgh and belongs to the Shady Side Presbyterian Church in that city. His older daughter, Barbara, attended the Winchester School in Pittsburgh, Briarcliff, and then Vassar, where she was a member of the Class of 1935. She left college at the end of her Sophomore year and on June 15, 1934, married Stanton Clarke Johnston, who graduated from Shady Side Academy in 1929 and from Princeton in 1933; they have two daughters, Barbara, born March 31, 1935, and Joanne, born December 27, 1939. Warmcastle's second daughter, Gretchen, attended the Winchester School, received her B.A. at Vassar in 1938, with honors, and is now an assistant fellow on the Albany Felt Company Fellowship at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh.

William Hyde Warner

Address, care Secretary's Office, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

Warner has been in ill health for a number of years. His son, Albert, was born in 1909.

Frank Lord Warrin, Jr.

Residence, Villa La Promesse, La Tour-de-Peilz, Vaud, Switzerland.

Warrin has now retired from the practice of law and is making his home in Switzerland. On November 5, 1938, he was married in Evian, France, to Germaine Helene Gerardot.

Clayton Wolcott Welles

Agency manager of the interstate agency of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, 49 Pearl Street, Hartford, Conn.

Residence, 301 Wolcott Hill Road, Wethersfield, Conn.

“I enjoy my home, my friends, my work,” Welles tells us. “And for recreation just now it is our boat—a thirty-six foot cabin cruiser, a two-motor affair that sleeps six people very comfortably; and Mrs. Welles is a wonder in providing the eats. A really delightful home and home folks, interesting friends, the best work, and a good boat all help to make it a good world to live in.”

Welles has been with Phoenix Mutual since 1909. He continues to take an active part in local affairs in Wethersfield, serving as chairman of the Wethersfield School Board for six years and as president of the Wethersfield Business Men's and Civic Association and the Wethersfield Cemetery Association. He is also chairman of Indian Town Association, Inc., a shore development project in Saybrook, Conn., and he is principal of the Sunday school, a deacon, and chairman of the prudential committee of the First Church of Christ of Wethersfield, of which he has been a member all his life. Welles belongs to the University Club of Hartford, the Wethersfield Country Club (of which he was president for two years), the Wethersfield Yacht Club, and the United States Power Squadron, and he is a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of the Knights Templar.

Jane Wolcott Welles, the oldest of his three daughters, who, he says, are all accomplished musicians, attended Rollins College and later studied at Essex College in England and at Columbia, where she took her M.A.; she was married August 30, 1937, to Kenneth Addicott, who has a B.A. from Stanford and an M.A. from Ohio State. The second daughter, Judith Beach, graduated from Mount Holyoke and later studied at Chicago Theological Seminary, receiving an M.A. degree. The youngest daughter, Nancy Curtis, is a member of the Wellesley Class of 1940.

Paul Bessal Welles

Sales manager of the Pequot Mills (cotton goods), 21 East 26th Street,
New York City.

Residence, 983 Madison Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

“Sorry there is so little to inform you of,” said Welles when he sent his report for our book. “My life, I fear, is very humdrum, but none the less happy.” Until a few years ago he was connected with Parker, Wilder & Company, cotton goods commission merchants, but since 1936 he has been associated with the Pequot Mills.

Welles has had five children, the oldest of whom, Barbara Grahame, died in infancy. His son, John Sherrerd, who graduated from Hotchkiss in 1930 and from Yale in 1934, is now with the Federated Textile Company in New York City. He was married on August 15, 1938, to Clara Gertrude Koch, who studied at the Barnard School and Columbia University, and they have a daughter, Sherrerd Koch, born November 12, 1939. The two older girls, Margery Morson and Theo Elsa, are graduates of Dobbs Ferry, and the youngest, Paula, is in school at Plainfield.

George William Welsh

Engaged in the real estate business, 1 East 57th Street, New York City.

Residence, 1030 Park Avenue, New York City.

The retail jewelry business of George W. Welsh's Sons, which Welsh and his brother had been conducting since 1904, was liquidated at the time of his father's death in 1936, and since then he and his brother have been carrying on the administration of their father's estate and other real estate interests in New York City. Welsh is a trustee of the Irving Savings Bank and a member of its real estate and executive committees and also holds a number of family trusteeships. Since June, 1936, he has been a governor of the Nantucket Yacht Club, and he is a governor and treasurer of the Anglo-American Fish and Game Club of Canada. He is a member of St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City. His son, George, 3d, is a member of the Class of 1942 at Yale. Welsh's stepdaughter, Kathleen Hastings Curtis, was married on January 7, 1932, to Alfred Wagstaff, 3d, but they were subsequently divorced; they have a daughter, Audrey Curtis, born January 21, 1934.

"These times it is hard to say much, except that life is much more of a struggle than heretofore," is Welsh's comment. He goes on, "If I could sell some real estate, things would be much brighter. Nevertheless, my wife and I are well and happy and determined to carry on to the best of our ability in spite of all."

William Ernest Whiting

Residence, Northford, Conn.

Whiting, who formerly lived in New Haven, now makes his home at Northford, a few miles from the city.

Frederick Holme Wiggin

Partner in the law firm of Wiggin & Dana,
205 Church Street, New Haven, Conn.
Residence, 232 Bradley Street, New Haven.

The law firm of Bristol & White, with which Wiggin had been associated since 1916, was dissolved on April 2, 1934, and the present firm of Wiggin & Dana, composed of some of the associates of the former, was formed. Since 1938 Wiggin has been president of the Connecticut State Bar Association. He formerly served as president and a director of the New Haven Community Chest, and at the present time he is vice-president and a director of the New Haven Hospital, an associate fellow of Davenport College at Yale, and a director of Sargent & Company and the First National Bank & Trust Company. He has been active in the University Glee Club of New Haven, last year serving as chairman of its program committee. Wiggin is an Episcopalian.

He has four adopted children, Florence, Paul, Lewis, and Mary. Florence has attended Chatham Hall and Bryn Mawr, and Mary is at Miss Hall's School in Pittsfield.

James Harvey Williams

President, J. H. Williams & Company, manufacturers of drop forgings and tools, 225 Lafayette Street, New York City.

Residence, 1100 Park Avenue, New York City.

Williams, who has been connected with the above company since 1905, has had his office in New York City since 1930. During 1934-35 he served as president of the American Supply and Machinery Manufacturers Association, and at present he is a board member of several charitable organizations. He belongs to the Yale Club of New York City. Since our last Class record was published he has written sundry magazine articles on the anti-trust law amendment, including an Atlantic Monthly article in June, 1931, entitled "The Reign of Error." He has also made various addresses on the same general subject; one of these, "A Cure for Our Sherman Act Troubles," was delivered before the American Hardware Manufacturers Association at Chicago in 1931 and also before New York University's National Conference on the Relation of Law and Business that same year. Another, "How the Anti-Trust Laws Should Be Modified," was delivered before the American Academy of Political and Social Science at Philadelphia in 1932, and the speech was published in the Annals of that organization in January, 1933.

Williams' older son, James Harvey, 3d, graduated from Harvard in 1937, while the younger boy, Blackwell, is a member of the Yale Class of 1941.

Justice Wilson

Partner in the law firm of Tyler, Wilson & Rhinefort, 1111 Edison Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Residence, 4144 River Road, Toledo.

In 1931 the law firm of Tyler, McMahan, Smith & Wilson, of which Wilson had been a member since 1925, was dissolved, and since then he has practiced in association with Julian H. Tyler and Joel S. Rhinefort under the firm name of Tyler, Wilson & Rhinefort. In 1932 he was made president of the First National Bank of Fremont, Ohio, of which he had previously been vice-president and a director, but in 1933 gave up his connection with it. Since 1929 he has been a director of the Central Securities Corporation of Toledo and for the past three years has been president and a director of the Ohio Insulation Company of Toledo. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and belongs to the Toledo Country Club and the Highland Meadows Golf Club. "I am older and much grayer," he notes, "but am still plugging along in spite of Mr. Roosevelt."

Both of his daughters are married. Laura, who attended the Knox School, married Frederick R. Kanengeiser, Jr., a graduate of Kenyon College, and has two children, Frederick R., 3d, who was born in June, 1931, in Youngstown, Ohio, and Lee, born in January, 1937, in Portsmouth, Ohio. The marriage of the younger daughter, Justine, to Alvin Robert Louis Dohme, a Williams graduate, took place on October 24, 1936; she attended the Emma Willard School, Vassar, and the Katharine Gibbs School in Boston.

Burnside Winslow

Vice-president, Hincks Brothers & Company, Inc., investment brokers, 173 Church Street, New Haven, Conn.
Residence, 145 Cold Spring Street, New Haven.

Winslow continued with the firm of Winslow, Day & Stoddard, Inc., until 1931 and since 1932 has been associated with Hincks Brothers, of which he became vice-president in 1935. He is still treasurer of Mory's.

His second marriage, to Kathryn Whiteley, took place on June 28, 1930, at Glen Ridge, N. J., and they have a son, Burnside, Jr., who was born July 12, 1931. Winslow's daughter, Anne, was divorced from her first husband in 1932, and on August 5, 1938, she married James Barclay Potts, Yale '31.

Eugene Hale Winslow

Chairman of the board of the Punxsutawney National Bank, Punxsutawney, Pa.

Residence, Pine Street, Punxsutawney.

In 1936 Winslow became chairman of the board of the Punxsutawney National Bank, of which he had been president since 1928. He says that he also is connected with other banks and coal companies in the locality. He has served as district administrator of the State Emergency Relief organization and also of the Federal C.W.A. "Have never excelled at anything," he confides. "Always seemed to be popular with women, but now since hair is getting distressingly thin, and hearing less acute, I am unable to hold my own in that line. My best is yet to come."

His older boy, Samuel Rinn, attended The Hill School and Yale, where he spent some time with the Class of 1931. He was married on August 4, 1926, to Elizabeth L. Nickerson, who attended the Spence School, and they have a daughter, Elizabeth Nickerson, who was born in Paris in May, 1927. The second boy, John Colburn, went to the Hun School and Princeton. He and his brother are both working for Winslow & Douglas, members of the New York Stock Exchange. Winslow's daughter, Anna-Martha, has attended the Shipley, Gardner, Birmingham, and French schools.

Garrard Bigelow Winston

Partner in the law firm of Shearman & Sterling, 55 Wall Street, New York City.

Residence, 7 East 92d Street, New York City.

Winston continues to practice law in partnership with Shearman & Sterling, which he joined in 1927. He is a trustee of Roosevelt Hospital and the New York Trade School and is a director in the Seaboard Oil Company of Delaware, the General Sugar Corporation, the Vertientes-Camaguey Sugar Company, the Watab Paper Company, and the Great American, American Alliance, and Rochester American insurance companies. Winston belongs to the Society of the Cincinnati.

Aaron Wittstein

Treasurer, City Lumber Company of Bridgeport, Inc.,
75 3d Street, Bridgeport, Conn.
Residence, 815 Clinton Avenue, Bridgeport.

Wittstein is treasurer of the Cilco Terminal Company, Inc., of Bridgeport, as well as of the City Lumber Company, and he is a member of the board of trustees of the Congregation B'nai Israel (Park Avenue Temple, Bridgeport), having previously served as president for eight years and treasurer for four. He served a four-year term as campaign chairman for the United Palestine Appeal and a similar period as president of the Bridgeport Zionist Organization of America. He belongs to Temple Lodge 127, A.F. and A.M.

His oldest boy, Ansel, graduated from Worcester Academy in 1929 and from Yale in 1933 and is now in business with his father, acting as paymaster of the Cilco Terminal Company, Inc. Beulah graduated from Wellesley in 1933 and was married the following year to Milton H. Slote, a Cornell graduate. They have an adopted daughter, Carol Louise Slote, who was born January 19, 1938. The youngest boy, Martin, is in grammar school.

"We have just taken into our home a refugee from Vienna," Wittstein explains. "Ludwig Strasser, thirteen years of age, arrived in this country August 17, 1939, after a year's effort to get him over here. He is not related to us at all, has a father and mother living. His father was a well-to-do lawyer in Vienna at the time of the Anschluss. Unbearable conditions forced them to migrate, and they are now floaters, on temporary permits of sojourn, between Hungary and Slovakia, where they have relatives. We are responsible for the boy's entire support, training, and education. We learned of the boy through a mutual friend and offered to take him."

James Haydon Wömelsdorf

Cashier with the brokerage firm of Paine, Webber & Company, 201 Pioneer Building, St. Paul, Minn.
Residence, 413 Holly Avenue, St. Paul.

Wömelsdorf, who was formerly with Schuneman, Bayliss & Company, became cashier for Paine, Webber in 1936. In reporting about himself last August, he said: "There is not anything new. Just returned from Cape Cod, but as every one saw me first I did not run across a single classmate. Am ashamed to say that I was mixing it up with the Harvards of a younger generation. Needless to say, the results of the boat race did not add to my enjoyment of my visit. I believe we also played some baseball with Harvard."

Wömelsdorf has had three children: James Haydon, Jr., who died March 1, 1916, Gail, and George Haydon. Gail attended the University of Minnesota and in connection with this Wömelsdorf remarked, "This lasted until Guy Stanton Ford caught up with her. There should be a law against a guy flunking a man at Yale and then sneaking up on the daughter at Minnesota."

Sumner Byrne Woodbridge

New England regional sales manager, E. I. duPont deNemours & Company, Inc. (paint, varnish, and lacquer), 59 Waters Avenue, Everett, Mass.
Residence, 197 Nehoiden Road, Waban, Mass.

Woodbridge, who has been with the duPont Company for thirty-two years, writes as follows: "On January 1, 1929, I was in charge of industrial sales in western Michigan, with headquarters at Grand Rapids, and left that position late in 1932 to take up my present job. My return to Boston was a very agreeable move. I spent my boyhood in Middleboro, Mass., going to Yale from the Middleboro High School, and have always looked upon this territory as my home, although I was born in Osage, Iowa. My business activities have been chiefly in the paint industry and in connection with the New England Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, various committees of which I have headed up during the last six years. The Yale connections in Boston are very pleasant. I attend the monthly luncheons as often as I can and never miss an annual meeting. 1904 is pretty well represented in Boston with Charlie Esty, Howard Tuttle, Clare Barnes, Bobby Chandler, Sheldon Wardwell, Walter King, and the writer. We see a little of each other during the year, but principally at Yale Club meetings. Perhaps the most important thing that has happened to me since the last reunion has been the marriage of my daughter, Betty, to James Burnley Doak, of whom her mother and myself are very fond."

Betty's marriage took place on June 12, 1937; her husband graduated from Swarthmore in 1932 and from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1935. Betty also attended Swarthmore College, graduating in 1935, and studied at the Katharine Gibbs School the following year. Woodbridge is a member of the Second Church in Newton, the Boston City Club, the Charles River Country Club of Newton Center, and the Boston Chamber of Commerce and is a thirty-second degree Mason.

George Ezra Woodruff

Manager of the Woodruff Farm, R.F.D. 2, Shelbyville, Ky.

Residence, 2531 Ransdell Avenue, Louisville, Ky.

Woodruff has been engaged in agricultural pursuits since 1917. He has four children: Gordon, Francis, Louise and Grace. The boys both spent some time at Yale, Gordon being with the Class of 1933 S. for a time and Francis with the College Class of 1937; Gordon later transferred to the University of Louisville, where he received the degree of M.D. in 1937.

John Eastman Woodruff

Vice-president, Travelways, Inc., 542 5th Avenue,
New York City.

Residence, 829 Park Avenue, New York City.

Woodruff has been vice-president of the above travel bureau since 1938. He is a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club. His daughter, Eugenie, who attended St. Timothy's, was married on April 14, 1938, to Sayre MacLeod, Jr., Princeton '26. His son, Timothy, went to St. Paul's.

Fred Apgar Wyckoff

Owner of J. M. Wyckoff, feed and grain dealers, 72 North Kistler Street, East Stroudsburg, Pa.

Residence, 65 Lackawanna Avenue, East Stroudsburg.

Wyckoff, who has been sole owner of the above firm since 1920, writes as follows: "Looking back in the Vicennial Record to see what I recorded about myself fifteen years ago I find nothing new of a business nature. I have acquired a son-in-law and a grandson. When things got dull after 1929, I looked around and persuaded President Hoover to give me a job as postmaster. As evidence of my continued integrity, I call attention to the fact that I have been treasurer of the Presbyterian Church for over fifteen years. My physical well-being deteriorated about seven years ago and since that time I have been hobbling around on a cane and making many adjustments to a physical condition that I never dreamed could happen to me. Had to give up hunting and trout fishing—my principal hobbies. But by the grace of God I came through."

Wyckoff's job as postmaster covered the period from 1931 to 1935. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and belongs to the Saw Creek Hunting and Fishing Club. His son, John Franklin, who graduated from Sheff in 1928, is now teaching at Trinity College. His daughter, Alice Lydia, attended the Drexel Institute. Her marriage to Everitt Thorne, a civil engineer, who also went to Drexel, took place a few years ago, and their son, Garret Wyckoff, was born October 29, 1937.

Jesse Watkins Wynne

Vice-president and general manager, McKesson & Robbins (wholesale drugs), Memphis, Tenn.

Residence, 647 South McLean Avenue, Memphis.

Wynne left Biloxi about 1930 and returned to Memphis, where he has since been vice-president and general manager of McKesson & Robbins (formerly the McKesson-VanVleet-Ellis Corporation). He is still unmarried.

NON-GRADUATES

Fernando Moreno Blount

President, F. M. Blount, Inc., investment bankers, American National Bank Building, Pensacola, Fla.

Residence, 111 West LaRua Street, Pensacola.

Blount, who has been president of F. M. Blount, Inc., since 1925, is state president of the Civitan Club, a director of the Pensacola Country Club, and a member of the Order of the Cincinnati. He is also president of the Pensacola Maternity Home and of the Community Chest of that city and is a member of the Florida District Welfare Board, chairman of the Florida Merit System Committee, and a director of the West Florida Children's Home. In 1933 he served on the Florida Advisory Board for the N.R.A. He has also been F.E.R.A. administrator of Escambia County (Fla.) and C.W.A. regional administrator for west Florida.

Blount's oldest son, William Fisher, graduated in 1935 from the University of North Carolina (where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Psi), received the degree of LL.B. from the University of Florida in 1938, and is now practicing law. His second son, Robert Fernando, graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1937, and the youngest boy, Frederick Alexander, is still enrolled there as a member of the Class of 1940.

Malcolm DeWolf Booth

Accountant, Fred J. Benoit & Company, public accountants, 5225 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif.

Residence, 1245 North Vine Street, Los Angeles.

Booth continued with Veator & David in El Paso, Texas, until 1932 and then went to Phoenix, Ariz., where he was an accountant for the Arizona Distributing Corporation for three years. From 1935 to 1938 he was in business for himself (still as an accountant), dividing his time between Phoenix and Los Angeles, and since then he has been associated with Fred J. Benoit & Company.

Helen DeWolf Booth, his older daughter, went to El Paso Junior College and subsequently attended summer sessions at the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Texas, receiving a B.A. at the latter in 1938. Prior to her marriage to I. S. Cordova, she was engaged in teaching; she has a son, Richard Nathaniel Cordova, born July 7, 1936. Booth's son, Edward Roberts, who is a salesman (automobile parts and accessories), married Edna Ann Sturgis, and they have two children, Larry Roberts, born September 28, 1936, and Ree Ann, born September 11, 1938. Both Edward and his wife attended El Paso Junior College, and Helen's husband studied there also. Booth's younger daughter, Barbara, who attended the Austin High School in El Paso and the Phoenix Union High School, is a dancer on the stage and in the movies.

Grenville Temple Bridgman

Consulting mining engineer with Guggenheim Brothers,
120 Broadway, New York City.
Residence, New Canaan, Conn.

Bridgman continues in the position of consulting mining engineer with Guggenheim Brothers. Since 1930 he has been vice-president and a director of the Pacific Tin Corporation and since 1938 president and a director of the Yukon-Pacific Mining Company. From 1930 to 1938 he was president and a director of the Guggenheim Smelting Company, the Mexican Union Railway, and the Great National Mexican Smelting Company and vice-president and a director of the Yukon Gold Company, and between 1930 and 1933 he was also president and a director of the Jarbidge Gold Mining Company and of the North Star Mining & Milling Company. He had a similar connection with the Elgoro Mines Company for four years and with Keno Hill, Ltd., for two. During 1929 and 1930 Bridgman served as president of the Mining and Metallurgical Society of America. He belongs to the Yale, Bankers, and Mining clubs of New York, the New Canaan Country Club, and the Pacific-Union Club of San Francisco.

His older son, John Mailliard Bridgman, graduated from the Kent School in 1929 and from Yale in 1933 and is now engaged in advertising work; his marriage to Margaret Anna Thompson took place on February 6, 1937, in Mill Valley, Calif., and their daughter, Anita Alden, was born in San Francisco in April, 1939. Grenville, Jr., is attending the Noble and Greenough School. The older daughter, Marion Louise, who graduated from the Shipley School in 1932 and from Bryn Mawr in 1936, married James G. Macey, Harvard '32. Bridgman's youngest child, Ann, is at the New Canaan Country Day School.

Winfield Newton Burdick

Broker with Clark & Loder (investments), 39 Broadway,
New York City.

Residence, 359 Hartford Road, South Orange, N. J.

Burdick left Myron S. Hall & Company in May, 1932, to become associated with Bryan, Penington & Colket. His connection with Clark & Loder dates from March, 1938. For the past five years he has been president of the Sinking Fund Commission of the School District of South Orange and Maplewood, N. J. He mentions that the battle of Gettysburg is his hobby and that as a result the Gettysburg Historians' Association was formed. Burdick's son, Winfield Newton, Jr., prepared for college at Andover and graduated from Yale with the Class of 1939.

Frederick Knebel Burnham

Residence, Family Club, 545 Powell Street, San Francisco, Calif.

Burnham's description of how he spends his time will surely make other members of the Class very envious: "Spend ten months in the year traveling all over the world, hunting and fishing, and have been doing same for the past twenty-five years. Wish you could 'dig up' a new place to go. Just returned from a trip up and down the west coast of Mexico from Panama to Guaymas hunting and fishing. Leaving today for my cabin and the woods in Oregon until snow flies."

Burnham adds that he has contributed articles from time to time to the Outdoor Magazine. His son, Frederick, received a B.A., cum laude, at Harvard in 1930 and then took a business course there; he is now vice-president of the Second National Bank in Boston. Burnham's daughter, Anne, married Dr. Lane Falk, of Eureka, Calif., and has two children.

Louis Thomas Cassidy

Physician; office and residence, 46 Main Street, Norwich, Conn.

Cassidy, who has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Norwich since his graduation from the Georgetown University School of Medicine in 1908, is an obstetrician on the staff of the W. W. Backus Hospital.

William Francis Damon

Residence, 3701 West 9th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

"Please forgive tardy reply," writes Damon, "reason, out in the wilds chasing oil, the elusive black gold.

"My only outside activities (and I take both seriously) are economic: (1) membership in Life Payments Association, 1731 North Highland Avenue, Hollywood, Calif., slangingly but aptly known as 'Ham and Eggs,' a real education proposing sound economic reform much needed in these parts. (2) A student of 'Mankind United,' a world movement for world peace through modern, practical economies.

"Health? Sound and vigorous. Only ailments, gray hair, spectacles, and collapsosis of the pocketbook." Damon was with the General Research Foundation Society in Los Angeles for a time and then became vice-president of the Key Oil Company of Bakersfield. In 1921 he married Mary B. Robinson, but they are now divorced.

James Delano

Address, Deerfield, Mass.

“At present I am not engaged in any business,” writes Delano. “I am recovering from the effects of an automobile accident in 1935, when a drunken driver crashed into my car, on my side of the road. He was arrested as a result of the accident, and I was allowed to go my way—but not rejoicing. I am much better and hope soon to be back to normal health.” Delano is a member of the Blue Lodge and Mount Sugar Loaf Lodge of the Masonic order in Deerfield.

John Forrest Dillon, 2d

Residence, 404 West 9th Street, Topeka, Kansas.

Dillon's daughter, Marguerite, who went to Wykeham Rise, was married on June 4, 1929, to Albert M. Hoyt, Jr., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. CLASS OF 1904

JAMES DELANO died in Northampton, Mass., on April 6. His death was due to arteriosclerosis and diabetes.

Delano, who attended the Lowell Textile School for a year after leaving Yale, was subsequently with the American Woolen Mills in Lawrence, Mass., for four years. He was later connected with the Whitall Tatum Company in New York City, but in 1918 moved to Deerfield, Mass., in order to do war work with the Greenfield (Mass.) Tap & Die Corporation. After the war Delano conducted his own business, the Delano Electrical Appliance Company, in Greenfield until he was obliged to give up active work on account of increasing ill-health.

In 1908 he married Edith Barnard, who survives him, her address being Barnard House, Deerfield, Mass. Their son, James, Jr., died in infancy. Delano was a brother of Rede L. Delano, ex-'00.

For the Class,

HENRY H. STEBBINS, JR., Secretary.

Gurley has been back in this country for some years after a long residence abroad. He is a member of the American Club of Paris and of the Military Order of Foreign Wars.

Ammon Latshaw Halteman

In the real estate and insurance business, 16 East Market Street, West Chester, Pa.

Residence, 116 West Miner Street, West Chester.

Halteman, who has been in the real estate and insurance business in West Chester since 1919, holds office as treasurer of the Chester County Real Estate Board and is also secretary of the board of trustees of the Westminster Presbyterian Church. "There is nothing very startling about myself," he says. "Am making a living with a small real estate and insurance business. Am in good health. May live a day or a decade."

Mrs. Halteman's death occurred on March 15, 1930. Their son, Theodore, graduated from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania in 1933; he received a second degree there in 1934 and has also done all the required work for his Ph.D. For the past three years he has been in the statistical department of the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives. His marriage to Esther D. Walker took place on July 1, 1939.

William Morris Houghton

Editorial writer for the New York Herald Tribune, 230 West 41st Street, New York City.
Residence, 996 Leland Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

With the exception of two years (1933-35), when he was on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest, Houghton has been an editorial writer for the New York Herald Tribune since 1927. He is a member of The Players and of the Dutch Treat Club in New York City, and says that, although he has written no books, he has done nothing else for a living except write for newspapers and magazines.

The death of Houghton's wife occurred on July 2, 1930. His daughter, Hess Pringle, who attended the Hartridge School and received her B.A. degree, cum laude, at Radcliffe, is secretary to the editorial department of the Herald Tribune, and her husband, Lessing Lanham Engelking, a graduate of the University of Texas, is also connected with that paper as assistant night editor. They were married on June 29, 1939; Engelking has a daughter, Elizabeth Engelking, by a previous marriage. Houghton's son, William Pringle, who attended The Loomis School, is with the Delco Appliance Corporation in Rochester, N. Y.

Harry Harrison Hyatt

No information in regard to Hyatt has come in a number of years.

William Rumsey Kinney

Title officer of The Land Title Guarantee & Trust Company, 314 Plain Dealer Building, Cleveland, Ohio.
Residence, 64 East 199th Street, Euclid, Ohio.

Prior to January 1, 1933, Kinney was vice-president of the Guarantee Title & Trust Company of Cleveland, then becoming connected with his present company as title officer. His first wife, Bertha Kingsley Tompson, died on May 18, 1930. His second marriage, to Anne Margaret Roche, of Cleveland, took place in New York City on August 11, 1936.

Charles Allen Lindley

Uptown manager for Whitehouse & Company, brokers, 5th Avenue at 59th Street, New York City.
Residence, 156 East 82d Street, New York City.

"No change except that I am now an uptown manager for Whitehouse & Company," said Lindley in a letter dated August 4, 1939. His son, Francis Vinton, who graduated from Groton in 1929 and from Yale in 1933, was married on June 28, 1933, to Grace Bigelow Cook. Lindley's older son, Willard, died in infancy.

Edward Manter Luce

We are still without any definite information in regard to Luce. Information in our Class files shows that his son, Edward Manter, 3d, was born in 1909.

Ray March Merrill

Assistant professor of French, School of Architecture and Allied Arts,
New York University; address, 1071 6th Avenue, New York City.
Residence, 59 Spruce Avenue, Floral Park, Long Island.

Merrill was promoted from an instructor in French to an assistant professorship at New York University in 1934. At the commencement of the School of Architecture last June he served as chief faculty marshal. He has two children, Betty Lou and Marquita Nelle.

“Well, it seems that a good many of us of Yale 1904 are beginning to ‘tend our candles’—that is, to take stock of ourselves and to try to watch out for whatever we’ve got spiritually, since there sometimes seems little to be done about material things,” Merrill remarks. “. . . I am now fifty-six years old and hence nearing the end of the eighth climacteric. Believe me, the word climacteric has always had an ominous sound and meaning for me, associated with eerie and flying beings like owls and bats and vampires. And pat, untoward things have happened to me this year! namely, bursting of a blood-vessel on the septum in the left nostril of the nose (January); development of dendritic keratitis in the left eye (February and March); discovery of sympathetic infections in certain teeth (April and May); ubiquitous nervousness during treatments and hence inability to attend the Thirty-fifth Reunion of Yale 1904 (June). But, in spite of all this, I am definitely better now (June 26), and I have freedom from college duties and leisure to devote my whole time to getting well. . . .

“Looking back over the past ten years I seem to have been marking time for I have accomplished nothing noteworthy with the possible exception of a small advance in rank, and I still haven’t my Ph.D., but am now attacking the dissertation for the nth time. . . .

“In conclusion, iterating the metaphor of ‘tending one’s candles,’ gone are the days of ‘gallivanting’ and ‘sashaying’ over Europe and Africa and the far corners of America (picnicking on father’s money). My family and I go necessarily on short vacations.”

John Wendell Minturn

Engaged in farming, Long Point Farm, Bemus Point, Chautauqua County, N. Y.

“Since leaving Long Island, where we lived at Syosset, and where I was in the real estate business for many years,” Minturn reports, "I have moved to Bemus Point and am devoting my time to farming and the raising of live stock." He is a member of the Knickerbocker Club in New York City.

Mestre Olcott

Engaged in the oil business, 1112 Fort Worth National Bank Building, Fort Worth, Texas.

Residence, 444 Burnett Street, Fort Worth.

Writing in May, 1939, Olcott said: "I have very little to report except that I have been in the oil game since I left my home in New York City in 1913. I have been a broker (oil leases, royalties, wildcat blocks, etc.). I've been an oil producer also—had shallow production near Tulsa in 1923. I've operated in practically all of the oil states in the so-called midcontinent oil fields—Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Mississippi. I expect to move down to San Antonio soon and stay there, as that area is the real 'white spot' in the oil country out here."

Harry Remer Platt

Assistant superintendent with the Town of Westport, Conn.

Residence, 86 Bridge Street, Saugatuck, Conn.

Platt, who was formerly with the Saugatuck Manufacturing Company, is now employed by the Town of Westport, his job involving both clerical work and the supervision of men at Compo Beach. "I am living the simple and sane life with plenty of exercise in jobs of a man of all work, with a little skating thrown in during the winter," he remarks. His children, Dorothy, John, and Kate, have now all graduated from the Staples High School in Westport. Dorothy is employed as a saleswoman and office manager with an advertising firm in Bridgeport, and John is manager of a Westport garage.

Jerome Max Rice

Agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, 826 Connell Building, Scranton, Pa.
Residence, 813 North Irving Avenue, Scranton.

Rice describes himself as still hearty and hale and always a booster for Yale. He has been in the insurance business for a number of years, and he reports that he is a member of the Elks.

George Frederick Vietor

With the brokerage firm of F. S. Smithers & Company, 30 Broad Street,
New York City.
Residence, 410 East 57th Street, New York City.

For the past few years Vietor has been associated with the above firm; previously he had been with Charles W. Hill & Company.

His daughter, Louise, who went to Farmington, was married on May 22, 1931, to Francis Lloyd Winston, and they have two sons, David Herbert and Lee. Vietor's son, George Frederick, Jr., who entered Yale from St. Paul's with the Class of 1940, was captain of his Freshman Crew, rowed on the Varsity in 1939, and served on the Junior Prom Committee.

Schuyler Carl Wells

President, S. C. Wells & Company (proprietary medicines),
1 Church Street, LeRoy, N. Y.
Residence, 118 East Main Street, LeRoy.

Wells has been with the above company since 1903 and has served as president since 1904. He is a director of the Bank of LeRoy and of the Union Steel Chest Corporation of that city, is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of LeRoy, and belongs to the Stafford (N. Y.) Country Club. "My main interest after business and family," he says, "is travel, which has taken Mrs. Wells and myself to most of the countries of the world. A beautiful thing this world of ours, if only it had the right kind of leadership."

Since 1929 Wells has acquired six grandchildren. His son,

Schuyler, Jr., whose marriage to Noelle Hurst took place on June 17, 1932 (she attended the Emma Willard School and Vassar), has three children, Schuyler Carl, 3d, born November 19, 1933, Susan, born May 7, 1936, and Sally Marie, born February 10, 1938, all in Rochester. Wells' daughter, Elizabeth, who married Floy Forrester Johnston, Exeter '24, Williams '28, on June 15, 1929, has three daughters, Elizabeth Wells, born May 19, 1930, in Tenafly, N. J., Marion Wells, born August 29, 1932, also in Tenafly, and Gertrude Wells, born March 4, 1937, in LeRoy. Elizabeth attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington and Miss Wickham's Classes in New York and also studied for a year in Paris. Schuyler, Jr., graduated from Hotchkiss in 1926 and from Yale in 1930; he is vice-trust officer of the Security Trust Company in Rochester. The younger boy, Osborne, was born on March 6, 1910.

Percy Arthur Whitmore

Salesman for the Nemo Tile Company, jobbers of floor and wall tile, 137 Sunrise Highway, Rockville Centre, N. Y.
Residence, 8 Davison Place, Baldwin, N. Y.

"On January 1, 1929, I became the Long Island and Westchester salesman for the American Encaustic Tile Company of New York City, and in 1933 I went to my present job," Whitmore reports. "Am just about able to grub along and pay my taxes. My greatest thrill is to hear Billy Phelps coming over the radio once in a while. Once, when he was commending the singing of Helen Jepson, his 'Splendid, splendid,' sounded just like he commended Brady once, back in the good old days." Whitmore is a member of the Methodist Church and of the Masonic order.

Elmer Reed Williams

Mailing address, care John B. Carse, Dunemere Lane, Easthampton, Long Island.

At the time the last Class record was published, Williams was connected with several coal companies, but we have no recent information as to his business connection or residence address. He has had three children, John, Marianne, and Thomas. The daughter's death occurred in 1927.

Albert Shelby Willis

Residence, Tuliphurst, Pewee Valley, Ky.

Writing to the Class secretary under date of August 22, 1939, Willis said: "There is very little to add to my case history in the past ten years, with the exception of one event extremely important and most satisfactory to myself—I was married at the Episcopal Church in Fort Myers, Fla., on March 2, 1931, to Mrs. Mary LeVielle Isert, granddaughter of one of Louisville's pioneers, as was my own grandfather, W. H. Dulaney, and thereby accumulating a brand new family, as Mary has three children, one of whom, her daughter, Isabel, spends the winter with us in Florida and is with us during the summer at Mary's house, 1294 Willow Avenue, Louisville.

"I personally prefer the country and am out here a great deal of the summer. But the winter is what I really enjoy, five or six months of it in a cottage in Florida just a stone's throw from the Gulf. We are on an island at the mouth of the Caloosahatchie River about sixteen miles south of Fort Myers, and, as there are several hotels and a goodly number of cottagers, all old friends, we have plenty of good company if we want it, but the splendid point is that you don't have it unless you do want it. The older I get the less I seem to care for boiled shirts and neckties, so we all live in shorts and sandals, except when we just have to go to town, which is as seldom as possible. And you'd be surprised how many highly worth-while people seem to hear of, and visit, and fall in love with and continue to come back to, our right little, tight (frequently) little isle. Apropos of this, one afternoon some years ago, I was told that a 'Yale man who said he knew me, named Raeburn,' was at one of the hotels on another island a few miles from us.

"You remember Bill Raeburn, don't you, who was Sheff in our time? Well, of course, I dashed off forthwith to Captiva to see Bill and when I got there I was told at his hotel that he was meeting some friends at the car ferry from Palm Beach but was due back any minute, and when he turned up, the friends proved to be Billy Hall and his wife of Louisville, whom, of course, you remember—it made me pretty blue to get one of your little cards about him just the next summer. Bill and Polly both swore they were from then on ‘regulars’ for that part of the world, and, though they were neither present nor accounted for last winter, we hope to see them this next one. Brent Arnold has been on Sanibel several winters, and we have both tried to sell Sanibel to Walter (Symmie) Clark, but to no effect so far. Do you ever come to Florida, Harry? Do, most certainly, come to see us if you come anywhere near—we are very accessible, good boulevard from Fort Myers to Punta Rassa, about sixteen miles, and a car ferry several times a day over to the island. I must warn you that we live somewhat primitively, no electricity nor running water, but have plenty of room in our cottage, and we’d love to see you and any of yours that are along. And, mark you, that’s a real honest-to-goodness invitation.

“Another curious little item—the other day I was mooning over a big box full of memoranda of years gone by and came across a passenger list of the ‘City of New York,’ old Inman Line, biggest of her day, circa 1890 or thereabout and there was ‘Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Shaw, Master Carleton Shaw’—good old Jog in person.”

Willis’ son, Albert Shelby, 3d, is an artist. He was married in June, 1938, in Hollywood, to Marie MacGregor.
